My dear Miss Farbell

I wanted to write you before this, but so many events crowded into my life — with my large family and many interests and duties. — I have been so very much interested in your articles in the new American Magazine — that I want to send you just a word and tell you how very much I appreciate them. I am wondering where in your busy life — in office and at the desk you found opportunity to make such true observations of life. I am also wondering how much of it the average woman understands about much that you say. — I am sure many must feel a note of response in their heart & mind and will make them think. The woman's problem in our generation is great, but women can solve it each individually if they reach to. There is opportunity for all of them only to know how. — I am looking for your next articles with much expectation & am with high regard very sincerely Yours
