ASIDES

By Dudley Michael

IN REPLY TO THE SON

I have been warned against answering the derisive letter in last week's Campus lest I should fall into some ambuscade by criticizing a thing so obviously beneath the most mediocre criticism. But upon learning that its author was none other than the blustering son of the blustering secretary's secretary, and that on sufficient provocation he would write again, I take up my pen in behalf of the readers who are anxiously awaiting his second appearance in the critic's corner. Besides I am both lazy and penurious. I seize upon the most contiguous subject. And I relish almost any pastime that is less expensive than tramping on the toes of the faculty archangels.

The Son must be restraining a horde of sinister facts when he says that my "policy of destruction, like that of Brutus, might even be called 'Sour grapes.'" Unless my memory of high school English has grown musty, he has confused Brutus with Cassius. But of course we can well understand any of his implications without consulting Shakespeare or the dictionary. Perhaps I, a mere college boy, look longingly at Davis' seat in the president's cabinet. Perhaps I am tainted with jaundice at not being a prominent Moose. Or, since I have never joined an honorary fraternity and have never competed in extra-curricular activities, perhaps I envy the athletic managers, the Y. M. C. A. boys, the members of Delta Sigma Rho, Pi Delta Epsilon, Omicron Delta Kappa, and whatnot. Only for good behavior the board of publications presented me with a lone key. This I shall willingly give to the prodigious Son or to anyone who feels that his watch-chain has been cheated.

Since Sonny Boy has accused me of envy and thwarted ambition, I cannot but speak somewhat frankly in regard to college politics. Last spring I wrote many words against the political corruption of the college, especially against the machinations of the student senate, though some of my best personal friends were members of this cabel. A number of dissenters organized a reactionary body which met in caucus. From the proceedings I made some private notations which I thought might be of future interest. Mr. Sonny Boy did most of the talking, while a large portion of the group leaned back in their chairs and nibbled finger nails. I learned that two of the most zealous dissenters were motivated almost entirely by personal hatred. However, the revolutionary faction drafted a plan for a new student government and set about to impeach the present senate. Disgusted with the conduct of the dissenters and duped by amendments proposed by the senate I voted for the support of the present senate under new amendments. The students, being anxious for dinner, voted both against the proposed amendments and against the impeachment of the present senate. By their strategic display of a reform program and by grace of an imminent dinner hour the senators gained a victory from which they emerged unscathed. At the close of the assembly those who had expressed personal dislike for certain senators attacked me for my vote. One of them said, "With ———on the senate, it will always be crooked." He spoke with most emphatic expletives. Patiently I waited.

The dishonesty of vote counting in class elections conducted by the senate has been a great thorn of contention. This year a new faction determined to insure the election of the proper man for senior class president. At their caucus the chairman stated, "(Sonny Boy) is the most prominent man on the campus." So Sonny was favored. At the election the ballots were counted under scrutiny; Sonny received less than ten votes. Thompson, a senator, was elected. A short time later a few members of Pi Delta Epsilon decided to elect officers. Only five members were present, others being notified at 9:30 that the meeting was to be held at 9:30. Of the five present four, including Sonny Boy himself, were elected to office.

Out of all this political maneuvering comes Sonny with the vice-presidency of a club that in nine months will not be worth five cents to him. The honors which he had previously raked together are not enough. He nurses his blood-stained political ambition and cries "Sour grapes!" at one whose only extra-curricular attempt has been to write a column a week.

On at least one point Sonny and I agree. It is indeed "distressing" that the English language should embarrass a college student, especially a student whose breast is fledged with honorary keys. Some of the money he has spent on gold pendants would have

ERIE ALUMNI PLANNING FOR DANCE AND BANQUET

FREE BUFFET LUNCHEON WILL BE SERVED AFTER GAME ON SATURDAY

Due to the activities of the Erie-Allegheny alumni asociation, the students who attend the Pitt-Allegheny football game in Erie next Saturday afternoon will not want for things to do after the game is over. After the football game, which takes place in the Municipal Stadium at 2:30 P. M., the students will be given a buffet luncheon at the Reed House. There will be no charge for this luncheon.

The next feature of the day will be a Banquet at the Reed House for the football team. This will take place about 6:30 P. M. Reservations for this banquet can be made with Mr. Filer or Mr. Dale at the Marine Bank Building in Erie. The cost will be $1.25 a plate.

The final feature of the day, and by no means the least important, will be an inter-collegiate dance, commencing at nine o'clock. This function will be held in the Norse Grill Room of the Masonic Temple, Erie. An admission of $2.25 per couple will be charged. This completes the program for the day.

The Erie Alumni Association of the College has gone to a great deal of work preparing this splendid program for the students and alumni who attend the game. The events are deserving of the support of the students, a large number of whom have already made plans to attend the banquet and dance. Late permission is being granted to all college girls, so that they may remain for the dance and return to Meadville after it is over. Permission to stay in Erie all night is also being granted to all who have secured a place to stay.

Girl's Glee Club Is Busy Preparing For Active Winter Season

Plans are being made by the Women's Glee Club to have a record season this year. Forty-six girls attended the rehearsal last Tuesday afternoon, October 15, and there is strong competition for regular places. The quartette has started rehearsing and is composed of the same members as last year: Eleanor Hughes, first soprano; Florence Green, second soprano; Vivienne Crippen, first alto; and Frances Greenawalt, second alto. The director, Professor Luvaas, expects to select a mixed chorus as soon as arrangements can be made for rehearsals. This chorus will probably be composed of sixteen women and sixteen men, and will make concert trips for the purpose of advertising the Glee Clubs.

A new plan will be used in rehearsals this year. Quartettes and double quartettes will be chosen, and these groups will practise alone. It is expected that this arrangement will give the girls much better training than mere chorus singing. Regular rehearsals are being held on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 4:15 in the chapel. Girls who have not yet tried out are urged to come to the rehearsals.

Officers of the Club were elected last Tuesday afternoon. They are: Frances Greenawalt, president; Lois Gardner, vice-president; Mildred Van Dusen, secretary-treasurer; and Ruth Lincoln, librarian.

Students Urged To Have Their Pictures Taken For Kaldron

With plans for an improved Kaldron this year well under way, the Editor of the publication is asking the cooperation of the students in having their pictures taken for the fraternity section of the book. It will save a great deal of work and will be more convenient for everyone concerned if the students will have their pictures taken on the dates scheduled for their fraternity or sorority. The schedule is as follows:

October 21-26—Delta Tau Delta, Alpha Chi Omega, Phi Delta Theta, Alpha Gamma Delta.

October 28-November 2—Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Theta Upsilon, Alpha Chi Rho, Alpha Xi Delta.

November 4-9—Beta Kappa, Tallagewe, Beta Upsilon.

Week-end guests at the fraternity houses were: Beta Kappa: Mr. M. C. and John Henderson of Derry and Mrs. Laura Evans of Tarentum; Alpha Chi Rho: Charles Butters of Corry; Sigma Alpha Epsilon: Mr. and Mrs. George Hibbs and family of Uniontown, and Stanley Anderson, '29; Phi Delta Theta: Mr. Helmsteder, '27, and John Helmsteder, Robert Wilson, '29, and Drs. Ellsworth and Griffin, both of '24.

POWERFUL PITT AGGREGATION TO MEET ALLEGHENY SATURDAY

Crum's Men Hope To Hold Panthers To Reasonable Score In Battle In Erie Stadium

Allegheny's gridiron machine will swing into action again on Saturday of this week after a layoff due to an open date on the schedule, meeting the powerful University of Pittsburgh team in the Municipal Stadium at Erie, Pennsylvania. The Golden Panthers will be the second straight opponent for national honors that Allegheny is called upon to meet, Dartmouth, their opponent of two weeks ago, also being counted on as a likely contender for the national title.

The layoff of last week has enabled Coach Crum to get most of his regular men in shape again after their strenuous battle with Dartmouth. Garbark and Berger were the worst hurt of the Allegheny players in the game with the Big Green and it is doubtful whether either of these men will see much service against the Panther aggregation. Art Balser, who put up a plucky game at Dartmouth, will attempt to fill Garbark's shoes if necessary, while Varano and Gamble will probably be the starting halfbacks.

Speaking of the Allegheny game, the Pittsburgh Press had the following to say in its Sunday edition:

"Harry Crum, former Princeton star, assumed the coaching duties at Allegheny this fall, and it has taken time to install a new system of play. Naturally, the Meadville team is not expected to threaten seriously Saturday, but Coach Crum may present a few surprises to the confident Pitt eleven.

"It will be next to impossible for Coach Sutherland to convince his players that Allegheny will cause much trouble. Pitt undoubtedly will go into the game supremely sure of victory, and this will be the biggest point in Allegheny's favor.

"Last season, the Panthers defeated Allegheny, 29-0. The one-sided score fails to indicate the splendid showing made by the plucky little visiting team. Coach Mel Merritt had worked out one of the most baffling forward pass attacks ever seen at the Stadium, and Allegheny gained more ground against Pitt than did any other opponent last year.

"Garbark, one of the hardest-hitting fullbacks in the district, turned in a convincing performance in the 1928 game, and is expected to play a leading role Saturday."

The Allegheny game is considered as a soft spot on the Pitt schedule, coming between two of the Panther's hardest games. Last Saturday the Golden Horde defeated the University of Nebraska by a 12-7 count. Their next opponent after Allegheny will be the undefeated Ohio State eleven. Because of the hard schedule facing the Panthers, they are likely to hold some of their stars in reserve during the greater part of the Allegheny game. Also, Coach Crum's men are likely to find their opponents over-confident and they will be quick to take advantage of any such condition.

The playing of an Allegheny game in Erie is no innovation. Three years ago the Blue and Gold met Bethany in Erie and the year before they opposed West Virginia in the same place. The game with Pitt is by far the biggest collegiate football attraction that the city has ever witnessed and it is expected that the Municipal stadium, which seats 14,000 people, will be filled.

Tickets went on sale Monday morning, the local agencies being Myford's

Debating Schedule For Coming Season Is Being Arranged

Five debates have been arranged for the varsity debate team for this year. Two debates have also been arranged for the first season of the girls' debate team.

The varsity team will meet Western Reserve near Cleveland in March, and will hold a triangular debate with Oberlin and Wooster in the same month. Dickinson and Ohio Wesleyan will be met early in the second semester, although the exact dates have not been arranged for any of the debates. The team will also debate with Westminster this year, this debate probably being held earlier than the other debates.

The girls' debate team will meet the Ohio Wesleyan and the Wooster girls' teams. The Ohio Wesleyan debate will be held here, but the Wooster debate will be held in Ohio, no definite place having been decided upon yet.

The question which will be used by the debaters this year is "Resolved, That higher learning be rendered to those of special ability."

A more specific schedule of debating will be announced in The Campus later.

F. L. LA BOUNTY RETURNS AS ALUMNI SECRETARY

On Monday morning, October 21, 1929, Francis LaBounty resumed his duties as Alumni Secretary of Allegheny College. Late last spring ill health forced Mr. LaBounty to tender his resignation as Alumni Secretary, but the resignation was never accepted and the position was held open for the time being. Six months of rest has restored Mr. LaBounty to health again, so that he is now able to continue his work for the College.

HARRIERS SUFFER FIRST DEFEAT IN THREE YEARS

ALLEGHENY RUNNERS DEFEATED BY PITT ON SATURDAY; SCORE, 21-34

Allegheny's harriers lost their first meet in three years last Saturday when they were defeated by the powerful Pitt cross country team on the Schenley Park course in Pittsburgh. The score of the meet was 21-34. The defeat eliminates Allegheny from any chance for the Tri-state championship, which they have held for the past two years.

Only two of Allegheny's men were among the first nine to finish. These men were Dreibelbis, captain of the team, and Norman Ish. Needham took tenth place. The race was won in commendable time by Allegheny's plucky little distance man, Paul Dreibelbis, who showed his heels to a flock of Panther runners over the long and difficult course. Dreibelbis had a lead of nearly 250 yards over Pitt's best runner, Maizzie, who finished second. Four Pitt men then crossed the finish line before another Allegheny man, Ish, was able to complete the course.

The Allegheny team has been greatly weakened by the loss of Gil Minnis, one of the best distance runners in the section. Minnis found it necessary to give up cross country in order to devote sufficient time to his studies, which were particularly pressing this year. Only one more race remains for the team this season, Geneva being the last opponent of the year. This meet is carded for November 16 over the local course.

The order in which the contestants finished and their time in the Pitt race is as follows:

Dreibelbis, Allegheny, 25:02; Maizzie, Pitt, 25:40; Caeser, Pitt, 25:57; Alberts, Pitt, 26:25; McDowell, Pitt, 26:40; Ish, Allegheny, 27:23; Thiele, Pitt, 27:29; Smoyer, Pitt, 27:35; Schmieler, Pitt, 27:43; Needham, Allegheny, 28:00; McAdams, Allegheny, 28:07; Rocky, Allegheny, 28:40; Eastman, Allegheny, 28:45.

Dr. Lucius H. Bugbee Is Speaker at Chapel Last Friday Morning

Allegheny students who attended chapel on Friday, October 18 had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Lucius H. Bugbee of Minneapolis, Minn., former pastor of Stone Church, talk on the subject of "The Place Religion Holds in Life."

Doctor Bugbee claimed that while science is able to measure facts by means of definite figures and formulae, religion alone can express the beauty of life. Inner qualities of men can not be measured by any man-made instrument; beauty, music, and poetry have to be expresed through some other means than those science has put forward. Religion, art, and music are the only ways of expressing the finer feelings of life, and of these three, religion is the most important because it is a combination of the other two.

To judge a country in terms of its value, a scientific estimate is taken of its means of acquiring wealth, but to judge people thre are three means: either by their Book of Words, by their Book of Deeds, or by their Book of Arts. Of these three, the Book of Arts is the only reliable one.

Dr. Bugbee summed up his talk in a quotation that while trees, flowers, and races of men die, song lives on forever.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE IS STARTED BY COLLEGE "Y"

PLANS ON FOOT TO MAKE LIVE ORGANIZATION OF "Y" THIS YEAR

After two years of being a non-entity in the college life at Allegheny, the Y. M. C. A. is waging a huge membership drive, starting October 21 and lasting for two weeks. In the past all of the male students of the college automatically became members. This year, to give a stimulus to the active growth of the "Y," a membership drive will be instituted.

Each fraternity house will have its "Y" representatives who will solicit his house, and each man in the Freshman class will be visited personally for membership. Later the faculty will be canvassed, and it is hoped that all will give their hearty co-operation.

This year the Y. M. C. A., with the co-operation of the Y. W. C. A., has been responsible for a number of activities and affairs. The All-College Social and Freshman Picnic during Freshman Week, as well as the Vesper Services, were under the direct auspices of the two organizations. They were instrumental in obtaining two very distinguished speakers, Secretary Davis and Professor Pogue. On November 16 Juan Rodriquez, a distinguished Filipino and scholar, is to appear in an address at the college. At least four other very excellent lectures have been arranged for the future. The scope of the attractions are to be considerably broadened, with several musicals and perhaps a dance.

It is hoped that the drive will arouse interest in the "Y" movement at Allegheny. The Y. M. C. A. can, if given the proper support, become a very powerful factor on the campus, giving much assistance that it finds impossible to render at the present. It is hoped that all of the men will realize the benefit to be derived from their hearty co-operation and support.

Fourth Performance Of "The Valiant" Is Given in New Theater

Last Thursday evening, in the Alice Spalding Theater in Arter Hall, "The Valiant" was repeated by the class in play production. Although this was the fourth time that the play has been given in the College, a large crowd was present to witness the performance. An admission of fifty cents was charged, the proceeds being used to equip still further the Little Theater.

One may readily judge the excellence and realism of the performance by the number of moist eyes and handkerchiefs that were to be seen after the play. From the "Yes, sirs" of the Attendant to Mr. Weyand's "the valiant taste of death but once," there was nothing in the play that could have been improved upon.

The first part of the evening's program consisted of a group of songs by James Springer. He sang, "Where My Caravan Has Rested," "Absent," and "Jean." His accompanist was Mary Chamberlin. John Walton then read Vachel Lindsey's stirring poem, "The Congo," an interpretation of the negro race. The third feature of the program was a group of songs by Mrs. H. W. Church. She sang "She Never Told Her Love," and "Who Is Sylvia." Her songs served to create a proper atmosphere for the play.

Before the program commenced, Ralph Grimm thanked all those who had contributed their talent to the evening's entertainment. He also announced that when the Little Theater had been entirely completed there would be a formal opening, with a three-act play as the feature of the evening.

George W. Wellburn Addresses Students At Monday's Chapel

In Chapel on Monday, October 25, after the announcement of the election of five Senior men to the Omicron Delta Kappa fraternity was made by Tom Jones, Dean Ross introduced the speaker of the morning, Dr. George W. Wellburn, the Superintendent of the Religious Education Department of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association. Dr. Wellburn took as his subject the similarity between the moon and the human race. He first reminded his hearers that the moon does not give light of itself, but merely reflects the light of the sun. In like manner, declared Dr. Wellburn, we as Christians do not "shine" of ourselves but reflect the mercy and goodness of God, the real Light of the world.

Doctor Wellburn, who is Dean of the Leadership Training School at Spruce Creek, was brought here under the auspices of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. He is now teaching in the Community Leadership Training School at Stone Church.

FIVE MEN ARE ELECTED TO O. D. K. FRATERNITY

TAPPING SERVICES ARE HELD AT CHAPEL HOUR ON MONDAY

Five new members were "tapped" into the Psi chapter of the Omicron Delta Kappa, Honorary Senior Activities Fraternity, at Monday's Chapel. The three members of last year's Junior class who were elected last February to this fraternity held a meeting last Thursday evening for the purpose of selecting three per cent of the Senior men for membership in the organization. The names of those chosen were not, however, made known until the officers, President Tom Jones, Vice-President William Wycoff, and Secretary John W. Bair, stepped from the platform and "tapped" the new members. Membership was given on the basis of points scored in scholarship and extra-curricular activities to Lloyd Thompson, John B. Hibbs, Oliver Wendell Gornall, Robert Rutherford, and George Munnell.

In 1914 the O. D. K.'s first circle was established at Washington and Lee College. Since then twenty such circles have been established, the last one being at Allegheny in 1928. The character and requirements of this organization are high. A look at the achievements of its members convinces one of the variety of all-round student activities that are represented, such as scholarship, journalism, athletics, publications, and other extra-curricular activities. Members must win distinction in one of these fields.

It is interesting for us to note what each of the new members has done to earn this honor:

John B. Hibbs edits the Kaldron, is president of the Alpha Chi Sigma, and a member of the Pi Delta Epsilon.

Lloyd E. Thompson is president of the Senior Class, Senior member of the Student Senate, and manager of the Glee Club.

Oliver Wendell Gornall, besides being a Senior member of the Student Senate, is its president. He is also general-manager of publications, member of i DeltaP Epsilon, and a member of Pi Tau Epsilon. In his Sophomore year he was president of his class.

Robert Rutherford is an outstanding man on the varsity debate team, is one of the Oratorical Board, a member of Pi Delta Epsilon, and a member ary debating society; president of the Philo-Franklin Forum, the German Club, and ex-president of the Quill Club, as well as managing editor of the Literary Magazine.

George W. Munnell was department editor of The Campus and the Kaldron, business manager of the Literary Magazine, production manager of College Play, a member of the Delta Sigma Rho, Kappa Phi Kappa, History and Political Science Club, the Blue and Gold Key Club, president of Pi Delta Epsilon, and a member of the varsity debate team.

Life Service Group Has Been Organized At Stone Church

Gertrude Thomas, Secretary of the Meadville Y. W. C. A., has organized a Life Work Union among members of the college student membership at Stone Church.

The group meets every Sunday morning in the Church at 7:30 for devotions and discussion. After each meeting breakfast is served.

The purpose of the union is to create a fellowship among students at college who are definitely planning to follow some line of Christian service. "Most students get the idea," said Miss Thomas, "that it is only for the benefit of ministerial students and 'Y' secretaries; but it is as much for others who, in their particular professions, expect to devote themselves, at least partly, to Christian service."

Charles Hartung is president of the local union and Douglas K. Marks is secretary treasurer. Charlotte Sweet will lead the devotions and discussion next Sunday morning. All students interested are cordially invited to attend.

TICKETS NOW ON SALE FOR SATURDAY'S GAME

Tickets for the Pitt game in Erie on Saturday are on sale at Ballinger's Drug Store, Wirt's Durg Store, and at "Doc" Myford's. General admission tickets for the Allegheny section are one dollar. A reserved seat in one of the sideline boxes will cost one dollar and a half. All of the Allegheny tickets are between the 30-yard lines

ALPHA CHI RHO

Alpha Chi Rho held a "come-as-you-care-to" masquerade at the chapter house on Friday evening, October 18, 1929. Professor and Mrs. Coe chaperoned. The house was decorated in a Hollowe'en manner. Kress' Orchestra furnished the music.

SHOULD WE PLAY PITT AND DARTMOUTH?

Just at this time of the year, a week after the game with Dartmouth and a few days before the game with Pitt at Erie, a goodly number of us begin to question the wisdom of playing teams from colleges many times larger than we are. We are practically certain beforehand that we will be defeated, and probably by a rather embarrassing score. Even leaving aside the question of victory, which may not be important, we must consider the chances of injuring our first string players and keeping them out of the game for the rest of the season or at least injuring them enough to keep them from their best performance against our dearer and certainly more equal rivals, Grove City and Thiel. Every year within our memory, one or more of our varsity squad has been injured in one of these two major games and forced to sit on the bench for the rest of the year. There is, to be sure, some value in the advertising Allegheny receives from playing Dartmouth and Pitt, and our share of the gate receipts is usually larger than we could receive from a game at Montgomery Field or on the fields of any of our nearer and smaller neighbors. However, the first and only factor to be thought of in arranging a schedule is the team itself. Certainly they would rather play teams that would not have the game "in the bag" before it began.

ON FRIENDLINESS

Barton Rees Pogue brought a message to the students last week which was much needed. It is generally recognized that youth is intolerant and independent. This is one of the great problems in adolescent education. The thought of being friendly does not occupy a very high place in the mind of a young person, at least until he has had considerable experience. The more experienced college students recognize more fully the value of the art of making friends than do those who have not had much college experience. Being "high-hat" is burying one's talent in the ground in order to save it. The talent gets rusty and does not earn any interest. Being friendly is an investment, a safe investment and one which does not take much capital.

Professor Pogue showed by his expressions of appreciation for the hospitality shown him at Allegheny that he values friendliness and that he "practices what he preaches." He shows by his own example that friendliness is worth while.

STAY OUT OF THOSE "OLD RUT HABITS"

Mice still push their inquisitive noses into cheese traps; flies still swarm to poisoned honey; sheep still follow a leader to a slaughter pen; moths still fly into a candle flame. They never learn from the experiences of their fellow beings—they go on doing the same things in the same way generation after generation—and die.

A school composed of students who fail to profit from their predecessors' follies is also bound to die. Until a short while ago, all but a few of Allegheny College's most steadfast supporters prophesied its inevitable fall before the encroachments of large universities. They pointed to the many troubles of a small liberal arts school, not realizing that at least part of the trouble might be due to the students themselves and to their spirit—that their "old rut habits" were killing ambition, spoiling results before they even blossomed. Each new class came fired with ambition which died down when buried in the time-worn ruts of those before them. Lately the school has shaken off this deadening stupor of taking things as they are, merely because "it was always that way." The general mixing-up of the fraternity men last year, a successful athletic year, the building of two new halls—all helped to shake the students out of the ruts they have been in. This newly-found spark of freedom should be carefully guarded.

Mice will continue to poke their heads into cheese traps; flies will continue to swarm around poisoned honey; moths know no better than to fly into a candle flame. Experience teaches them nothing. Let us learn from the past, though, and shelter our precious spark of freedom which may light the way out of our "old rut habits."

THE SCRUBBING BRUSH

My gentile—I mean gentle-readers, good news! Let's do the Breakaway! I received a letter from my god-father, Carl Columnist II, this morning, and the material therein was quite enlightening. If you'll peak over my shoulder, I'll let you read it.

"My Dear Carl,

"How's tricks with you, my boy? Are you still carrying on the propaganda of your dad against dear old Hulings? You remember I had a great time panning the women via this column before I turned over the reins to you. Do you remember how I used to study night after night to find woman's excuse for being? I realize now that there can be no answer to something which does not exist. They can offer no excuse, my son—these creatures who have been romantically termed the Fair Sex. Fair Sex, my eye! Why that under-sized, narrow-shouldered, broad-hipped, scrawny-necked, short-legged race! Anything but attractive, I calls it.

"'Get your man' always has and always will be a woman's motto. She is supposed to be docile, receptive, motionless. Oh yeah? Motionless like the spider who waits for a fly. Like the spider she spins her web. And, if the human fly shows signs of escaping, how swiftly does she throw off the veil of passiveness and weave her coils about him until the poor victim ceases to wriggle. Ah, me lad, they have no strength, but they have cunning and—craft. Hear ye and take heed!

"And what have women ever done in the world? Where are their social achievements? Ah me, they are deserving objects of pity with their inferiority in powers of abstract thought and creative thinking. Where are their geniuses? Where are their achievements in the fine arts, or in any work of permanent value?

"My boy, pray be kind to women, for theirs is a miserable lot. They realize they are subordinate beings—sort of a lagging Number Two in the human race. It is too bad, though nevertheless true, that Nature in dividing the human race did not draw the line exactly through the middle.

Carl, me lad, the one and only time when a woman shows any superiority is during the early stages of wooing. Man comes to her, n'est-ce pas? Ah—I can read your thoughts—you are wondering why man, the superior being, does not make woman come to him. Oho! And a fair question for a' that an' that! If she were to approach man and make the first advances can't you see that she would risk a refusal? Can't you see, me lad, that a refusal would be a blow to her vanity? But, after man takes the first step, he stands on equal footing with his woman, and soon occupies his rightful position as master.

"Your grandfather, Carl Columnist I, has seen a lot of the world—but so's your old man. Most of my learning came through hard knocks, the latter coming during my term in office as Carl Columnist II."

Esperanto is to be taught at Texas U. this year if enough students are interested, according to an announcement from the Romance Languages department. If we remember correctly, Texas U. offered a course in sleeping last year.

Believing that there should be more cheering and less gossiping at Ohio U. football games, the authorities have forbidden men and women students to sit together in the stands. Tough, fellows, tough.

been better invested in a dictionary. The benefits derived from using it would possibly mitigate the dishonor of not having his picture on every fifth page of the Kaldron.

Sonny is perfectly justified in expressing his opinion of a person's intelligence, humor, vocabularly, tactfulness, or sincerity. But on questions of logic he should be less impetuous. It is surprising that an educated and somewhat mature young gentleman should classify "ranting against radicals" as a necessary antipode of conventionality. The one who rants against the liberal element is the fanatic of orthodoxy. Sonny does not know his William Jennings Bryan, nor his Carrie Nation, nor his Anthony Comstock, nor even his James J. Davis.

BETA KAPPA PARTY

Beta Kappa held its annual "Bowery Brawl" at the chapter house on Friday evening, October 18, 1929. Decorations were carried out in true bowery style with swinging doors and a specially constructed bar with appropriate scenery. The chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. Stinebower. Music was furnished by Ernie Palmquist and his Recording Orchestra of Erie.

A COMMENDATION

No greater tribute to the spirit of the new Allegheny could be desired than the commendation of the cordiality of the College recently received from Professor Barton Rees Pogue of Taylor University. Professor Pogue, well-known author, entertainer, and lecturer, addressed the Allegheny student body on Monday evening, October 14, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A., on "Fortunes in Friendships," and he proved to be one of the most delightful speakers who has ever spoken from the College rostrum.

That he appreciated Allegheny as much as Allegheny appreciated him is shown by his graceful message of thanks to a member of the student body, a note which expresses sincere gratitude for the pleasures of his visit. Being a public speaking instructor in Taylor University, he was especially attracted by Allegheny's dramatic activities, and he had many compliments for the Alice Spalding Theater. His contact with faculty also proved very enjoyable. For the cordiality and spirit of the students, however, he reserved his chief praise.

The entertainment of guests in any connection is always more or less of a problem, and Allegheny may well be proud of having succeeded in creating such a good impression as in the case of the speaker. The praise of such well-known men as Professor Pogue is the best possible advertisement for the College. The school is neglecting a great opportunity when it permits a visitor to leave the campus with an unfavorable impression due to rudeness or carelessness on the part of any member of the College group.

Attention of Club Secretaries Called To Campus Service

Beginning with next week's issue of The Campus, an innovation is to be tried in the form of a weekly canendar. All organizations which are to meet during the week are requested to call 970-R before Sunday afternoon. Information received before Sunday afternoon will be published in Wednesday's Campus. It is hoped that all Clubs and Fraternities will immediately adopt this system, which will not only do away with written notices to each member, but also serve as a surer method of reaching all members. For those organizations which meet before Wednesday of each week, notices of meeting will be published in the preceding week. The method of reporting a meeting is to leave the Name, Date, Time, and Place of meeting. This service will be a regular feature beginning in next week's issue. Keep posted by getting the habit of looking in The Campus each week to see what is on the program. Do not forget, club secretaries, the phone number is 970-R.

William E. McDowell, '77, died on July 31, 1929, in his 75th year. He was born and spent his early youth in Conneautville, Pennsylvania. After his graduation from Allegheny College he intended to continue his preparation for the ministry, but other calls beckoned him, and he never rose above the order of deacon. He early became a champion of the temperance movement and for a time edited a journal advocating the reform. He taught school for a number of years, then in the late 80's moved to Kansas and settled in Arkansas City. In 1891, while in the employ of a lumber company, he was sent to Honduras, Central America, for a year. While there he made an extensive collection of relics illustrative of the life and customs of the people. This collection now bears his name and is the property of Southwestern College. He was interested in historical research and helped secure exhibit material for the Kansas Historical Society.

For 20 years he served the Kansas Children's Home Society as district Superintendent. Mr. McDowell was kindly, sympathetic, a wise friend and counsellor.

Miss Beatrice Cotten, Assistant Registrar, in company with her cousin, Mrs. Breckenbridge of Meadville, left on October 12 for a three weeks motoring trip to the Finger Lakes region, Scranton, and possibly on up the Hudson River.

Alumni Notes

A. W. ROBERTSON

A. W. Robertson, '06, was elected to the board of directors of General Motors Radio Corporation, recently organized in New York City, as a result of agreement between General Motors on the one hand and the Radio Corporation, General Electric Company, and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company on the other. Mr. Robertson is now chairman of the Westinghouse Company, with residence in Pittsburgh.

After the first term of Summer School at the University of Chicago, Glenn Barr, '19, and Mrs. Barr, motored to Miami, Florida, to visit Mrs. Barr's father. The total of their "rambling" during the summer was nearly 7,000 miles. Among Alleghenians whom they visited were L. C. Strong, '17; Margaret Houghton Fopeano, '19; Zella York Hallet, '19; J. O. Russell, '21; George Bird, '22; and John Hutchinson, '09. A week in Cuba was a fitting climax to the Barr's vacation before returning to Spanish classes at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Powell, '17 and '18, have moved from Leonia, New Jersey, to 316 Boyer Road, Cheltenham, Pennsylvania.

The Reverend William L. Stidger, ex-'10, six years on the Pacific Coast, six years in Detroit, four years in Kansas City, and one year in Boston, is pastor of the Copley Church in Boston. He is also Professor of Homiletics at Boston University. "The Christian Leader," last year paid Doctor Stidger a real tribute when it said in its August issue: "Honest, outspoken, unusual in his methods, always earnest and eloquent, Bill Stidger, as he is affectionately called, has carried everything before him in the West."

Mrs. W. P. Murray (Florence Sullivan, ex-'88) and Mrs. O. P. Akers recently attended the Philadelphia Branch meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church. They stopped enroute to visit Mrs. Murray's daughter, Helen, '10, in New York City.

J. W. Morrissey, '25, has been transferred from the New York City office of the Hookless Fastner Company to their Boston office, 950 Park Square Building.

Frank T. Stockton, '07, Dean of the School of Business, University of Kansas, was engaged in business survey work the past summer. In the summer of 1928 he was director of field research in Kansas and Missouri for the U. S. Personnel Classification Board and later on was called to Washington to write part of the Board's report.

Arthur Ellis, '29, recently spent a few weeks in New York City but has returned to Meadville to take a position in the Accounting Room of the Hookless Fastener Company.

F. Leslie Stewart, '19, an instructor in the Rocky Grove High School was elected president of the Venango County Teachers' Institute, on October 18.

Walter Irving Bates, '96, has been appointed a member of the National Panel of Arbitrators of the American Arbitration Association, New York City. He will sit as arbitrator in commercial disputes arising in his locality which have been submitted to arbitration under the rules of the American Arbitration Association.

YOUNGEST COLLEGE STUDENT

One of the youngest college students in the country is enrolled as a freshman at Northwestern University this fall. He is Harold M. Finley of McConnelsville, Ohio, who was only 13 years old last February.

Harold was graduated in June with highest honors from the Malta-McConnelsville high school and was valedictorian of his class. None of his high school grades fell below E and were the highest ever given by the school.

NEW COURSES

Since the appearance of the latest college catalogue last spring, two new ccurses have been added to the curriculum of Allegheny College.

The first addition was made in the department of Romance Languages. The new course is called French X and is a course in oral and written composition.

The other subject is English Language 4-A, a course in debating. Enrollment in this course, whether for credit or not, is necessary in order to compete for varsity debating. A large number of students have signified their intention of taking this course.

VETERAN BASKETBALL TEAM TO REPRESENT COLLEGE THIS YEAR

All Regulars From Last Year's Team Again In School; Only Two Men Lost From Squad

Although the football season is just reaching the mid-way point, it is not too early to give a little thought to the coming basketball season. Nothing definite can be predicted at the present time, but the indications are that Allegheny will have another successful season on the court this winter.

The entire varsity team from last year remains intact. "Granny" Bair and Harry Dennison are being counted upon for the forward positions, while Willard Conn will see much service at center. Conn, with a year's experience behind him, should be a much better player this year. At the guards Allegheny will have a pair of men who won for themselves quite a reputation last year by their brilliant work. Berger and Garbark are considered by many to be one of the finest pair of guards in the Tri-state district. Berger is a heady player, while Garbark is a dependable defense man and a long shot artist.

Only two men from last year's team are not in school again this year. Al Moon was the only letter man to be graduated. He saw much service at center and was a member of the Tri-state championship team of 1926-27. Al is now teaching and coaching at Cochranton High School. Herb Eighmy is the other member of last year's squad who is not numbered among those present in school this fall. He did not return to college this year.

Allegheny can also count upon some very dependable substitutes. Coach Baker still has Mills, Lane, Heffrin, and Massing on his reserve list from last year. All of these men saw a great deal of action last year. Mills and Lane are forwards, while the latter pair are guards. Besides these men there are a number of members of the Freshman class who are being highly touted as basketball players. Most of these men are members of the football team and, as yet, have had no opportunity to display their ability.

Basketball practice will commence in earnest after the Thanksgiving holidays and it is expected that Coach Baker will have a large squad on hand at that time. Last year the team lost only four games, twice to Westminster, once to West Virginia, and once to Bethany. Two of the defeats were by a one-point margin. With an experienced team this season, bolstered by the new material, even better results than last year are expected.

This and That

SATURDAY'S GAME

"A practice game for Pitt" is the way a great many people are regarding the game scheduled for this Saturday. And yet there is no reason why Pitt should find Allegheny too easy a mark. Coach Crum's men have a lot of fight and a versatile system of attack. They showed that they could gain ground consistently against Dartmouth. There is no reason why they connot do the same thing against the Panthers. A little confidence on Saturday would help the team a good deal—the Panthers are likely to have too much of it. Go get 'em, Allegheny! We can't hope for a victory, but we do hope for a low score.

DEFEATED

After holding the Tri-State title for two consecutive years and keeping their record spotless during that time, the Allegheny cross country team was finally defeated last Saturday morning, the harriers from the University of Pittsburgh turning the trick. The defeat came as no surprise, however, for it was known that the Panthers had a strong team, while the Allegheny outfit is considerably below par this year. Only one runner from the championship outfit remains on the team. He is Paul Dreibelbis, winner of the race at Pittsburgh Saturday. Paul deserves a lot of credit for his consistent efforts and conscientious training. His splendid race Saturday certainly showed the result of hard work. Congratulations, Paul.

There were two Allegheny rooters at the cross country meet Saturday morning. One of them was an Allegheny student who happened to be home for the weekend. The other was Tom Gill, former Allegheny harrier, who is now attending Oberlin College. Tom showed his interest in his former team-mates by "bumming" all the way from Oberlin to witness the race. Gill, because of the transfer rule, is ineligible to do any running at the Ohio institution, but he reports that he likes the school a great deal.

GROVE CITY

Several auto loads of Allegheny students and Meadville business men made the trip to New Wilmington Saturday to witness the Westminster-Grove City battle. The event marked the annual home-coming day for Westminster. During the first half, the Blue and White held the Crimson scoreless while they were registering one touchdown. The second half, however, was a different story, the Grovers coming back to outplay their opponents and win the game by a score of 19-6. Since Westminster has already defeated Allegheny, comparative scores would seem to indicate that there is not much chance of the Blue and Gold winning the Grove City battle, but then one can never tell what will happen when Allegheny and Grove City meet. For four straight years now, the Blue and Gold has bowed to the Crimson. Let's break the streak this year.

Mrs. A. H. McGavack Pleases Students At Chapel on Wednesday

Allegheny College was highly honored at the chapel exercises Wednesday, October 16, having as its guest the concert singer, Mrs. Anne Hill McGavack, soprano.

Mrs. McGavack is the great granddaughter of Rev Lucius Bugbee, former President of Allegheny College and is the cousin of Robert, Lucius, and Warren Bugbee, now at Allegheny. She delighted her audience with the following numbers:

"Pale Moon" ..... Logan
"Hills of Home" ..... Fox
"Goin' Home," Movements from New World Symphony ..... Anton Dvorak
"Standin' in the Need of Prayer" ..... Redding
"The House By the Side of the Road" ..... Gutesian
"I Love to Hear You Singing" ..... Wood
"Kiss Me Again" ..... Herbert
"Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" ..... Foster

Mrs. McGavack, a resident of New York City, has studied under Bardtschmidt of Cincinnati and Capanari of New York City. Before her marriage to Dr. John McGavack, a research chemist for the United States Rubber Company, she was accepted by the Metropolitan Opera Company. Mrs. McGavack came to Meadville for a short visit with her grand-mother, Mrs. H. W. Hughes of Grove Street, directly from Atlantic City, where she sang at a meeting of the American Chemical Association.

ALLEGHENY-PITT

Tea Room, Wirt's, and Ballinger's. All seats are reserved, the price being $1.00 per seat. There are available a few reserved seats which sell for $1.50. Allegheny rooters have been assigned sections 4, 5, 6, and 7, the better seats being found in sections five and six.

Coach Crum's men, although they are facing almost certain defeat, are determined that they will do all in their power to hold the Golden Panthers to a low score. In facing the Pitt line, they are opposing one of the hardest charging lines in the whole country, while included in the Pitt backfield are one or two men who may gain All-American standing, Uansa, in particular, being mentioned frequently as a candidate for the mythical eleven.

The Pitt team will leave Pittsburgh early Friday morning and will make their headquarters in the Lawrence Hotel. The Allegheny team will not leave Meadville until Saturday morning.

Three years ago Allegheny astonished the entire football world by holding Pitt to a 9-7 score. The following year they were overwhelmed by a 51-0 count. Last year the Blue and Gold held the Panthers to a single touchdown in the last half, the first period margin making the score 29-0. A chance for fame is facing the Allegheny team if they can succeed in holding the Panthers to a reasonable score in their battle Saturday.

PHI GAMMA DELTA PARTY

A "Hobo Party" was held by the Phi Gamma Deltas in their chapter house on Saturday evening, October 19, 1929. Hobo decorations contributed much to the success of the affair. Mr. Richardson of the Pitt Chapter, Bill Scarlet, Bill ale, Clyde Pratt, and Virginia Flickinger were guests at the party. The prize for the best dressed couple was won by Sara Dixon and Ken Showers. Coach and Mrs. Hammett were chaperones. Kress' Orchestra entertained.

STUDENTS ATTENTION

For self-supporting students desiring fascinating, remunerative work either temporary or permanent, may I suggest that many students of both sexes have earned scholarships and cash sufficient to defray all college expenses, representing national magazine publishers. MEANT TO BE HELPFUL

Now if you've been to Allegheny
A year or two before,
And if you're getting old and grey,
And everything's a bore,
Then I've a bit of news for you
That's just 'tween you and me;
I think you'll find it helpful, too,
As is a scratching flea.

Now listen; please don't talk,
Give ear unto my invitation—
You're asked to take a walk;
The Library's your destination.
Just tip-toe in and take a pew
That's right close to the desk,
And honest-true, I'm telling you
Freshmen will do the rest.

See that poor boy just over there?
His brow is cold with sweat;
See how he weeps and tears his hair?
hair?
He's in an awful fret.
Professors young and old—Alas!
Professors fat and lean—
Have set this boy an awful task,
Oh! they've been mighty mean.

They've sent him here to see just how
The Library is used;
That's why you see him ranting now
While upper-classmen snooze.
He seeks the atlas, gazetteer,
And even dictionary;
He does not know that in near years
Of these he will be wary.

No wonder this place makes one roar,
When Frosh are still young,
To put the atlas on the floor
To use to stand upon.
Encyclopedias by others
Are stood on to reach hats;
Freshmen read inside the covers
To look up this or that.

Let's hope that this petite allusion
To some Freshman's slight confusion,
Upon the proper use of atlases and such,
Will guard the rest from threatening ills
Of studying too much

FOR PRACTICE TEACHERS ONLY

The greater portion of the female element in school, and some of the males, aim at teaching school. In fact day after day a certain number of them trot religiously to the high school to experiment upon the student populace of Meadville High School. It is to be hoped that these ambitious pedagogues-to be did not attend Will Durant's lecture, which was attended by the Northwestern Teachers' Convention in a body. Here they would have seen the grouping together of the rut-riders from eighteen-eighty on. It might have been disturbing to their prophetic imagination and foresight. There can't be anything worse than a teachers' convention, unless it is a college home-coming day. A whole force of traffic cops could not keep Miss Emma Emmett, class of 19—, West City, teacher of political and domestic science, from talking chalk and erasers with her old friend, Miss Anna Andrews, class of 19—, Groveminster, although she thereby blocked all pedestrian traffic in front of the Park Theatre.

The behavior of the teachers during the address of Mr. Durant was, on the whole, commendable. Doubtless long association with classroom discipline has taught them patience. For the most part they did not even squirm, or effect expression of outraged boredom as many of their college superiors did. One young lady teacher was much more interested in seeing that her stocking did not run than hearing that Calvin Coolidge did not choose to. Several young men teachers managed to pass the hour and one half by crumpling candy papers and shoving them down the necks of the young ladies sitting in front of them. How many times they have dismissed students from high school assemblies for doing the same thing!

One teacher enjoyed the lecture whole-heartedly. She spent all of the time either vociferously applauding the mention of Herbert Hoover's name, or sitting in breathless, almost wheezing, expectation of it.

In looking down upon the assemblage from the balcony one was struck by the prominence of bald heads among the men; the ladies had hats on. It seems to be almost an axiomatic truth that all men who teach high school sooner or later get bald headed. The only reasonable explanation of it is that laboring as hard as they do, the sweat of their brow gradually washes away the softened hairs and even floods out the roots. By chance I suppose you have noticed that shiny heads are not very conspicuous on the college faculty.

Glasses, too, appeared in great numbers aiding the faded eyes to continue their monotonous observation of the life about them. Horn-rimmed glasses, although this particular kind has long been out of style, were most prevalent. A few of the younger teachers wore white-gold rimmed spectacles, and two or three of the men had on the very latest in rimless glasses. These were probably men who were merely temporary teachers, who had stopped off at the teacher's desk before going on to the bar. At any rate the future teacher can guard with compunction her eyesight. No doubt the strain of correcting papers and looking for the pay-envelope do tire out the best of visions.

All these idiosyncrasies of a teachers' convention have been explained. But one can not conjure any reasonable excuse for the perfume so freely swabbed on the ladies' coat collars. When they grouped themselves obstructingly in the lobby of the theatre one's nostrils could pick up any odor from jasmine to black-eyed Susan. Maybe at breakfast time, when the sensible teachers had gone to the nearby drug store for an ice cream soda, they had discovered free samples of perfume or it might be that, somehow or other, they had chanced on the co-ed's secret way of hiding and disguising the smell of cigarette smoke.

At the end of the lecture one left them there, in front of the Park Theatre. They were crowded six and seven deep on the sidewalks, all talking at once and on the same subject—where to eat? By dextrous squirming one managed to get free of them and dolorously crept up the hill to work on a lesson for next week's practice teaching.

THE HIKERS

Tramp, tramp, tramp, the girls are marching, truly marching. Where? We do not know, but at any hour of the day we see countless numbers starting on the cross-country course. Some start before lunch and hike while the rest of the student body sings hymns in chapel. Others hike after lunch and cut 1:45 classes. Some take that course in mesophytes and combination misfits (the latter referring to the knickers they hike in) and hike for credit. It's a credit to the girls and they're a credit to the course. (Ah-ha, Mr. Stinebower, ain't that a fair exchange?) Some get up with the sun and get frost bitten noses and tootsies, but nevertheless they hike. Some go from one end of the campus to the other and vice versa. (These girls are either campussed or they're with a Sig on a Sunday night date.) Maybe we should say they stroll? Hiking is a harsh term here.

In every conceivable costume and direction they hike. But on returning, they sign a little paper in the gym: Gertrude Dormitory, so many miles. The number of miles is calculated by multiplying the actual distance hiked by four and adding two. This is correct to four places. After so many signatures on the dotted line followed by a certain number of arithmetic problems, the co-ed is awarded the hand-turned cough-drop, uplift style.

Moral: Hike!! Lose pounds, gain points!

Richard W. Ellsworth, '24, wishes to announce that he has opened his office for the practise of dentistry in the New First National Bank Building, Meadville.

GOLD STRIPE STOCKINGS
MONOGRAMMED
Initialed stockings will end confusion at last. Sister or roommate can't possibly mistake your Gold Stripes for their own, when your initials are in plain sight.
We will stamp individual initials on every Gold Stripe Silk Stocking purchased, without extra charge. Especially on gift stockings this will lend a smart personal touch. Stamping is done while you wait!
