Dear Mr. Epstein:

Can you, or perhaps I should say will you, for of course you can knowing all about old age as you do - will you then give me as briefly as possible the legal obligations of children towards the support of parents? Do all the States have laws touching on this matter? I take it there is no Federal law on the subject. If anything has been published by your organization covering the point I should be glad of a copy.

And one of these days I want to have a talk with you - not this week, but possibly next or the week after. I would like to find out your notion of the proposed Government's social security program.

Very sincerely yours
