In Memoriam

In the death of Dr. Camden M. Cobern, Allegheny College has lost one of her most faithful teachers, and the student body one of its most sympathetic friends. Although he was a man of wide experience and diversified interests, yet, even with the world as his field, he was happiest when here at Allegheny, among those whom he considered his closest friends. He was loved by all who knew him, and in his death we have suffered a loss in which our only consolation is, that his life sets us an example that is worthy to be followed.

president's zeal for expansion has not been lessened, and by the end of the year, Allegheny can boast of a new and modern gymnasium, and a fine new addition to Hulings Hall.

Among the greatest and most notable achievements of President Crawford's quarter-century at Allegheny, may be placed the raising of the Half-Million Dollar Endowment Fund on April 12, 1912. At times during this campaign, the outlook was most discouraging, and even at those times when others doubted and hesitated, he threw his inexhaustible energy into the fight, and pressed on with the confidence that won out and brought the campaign to a successful conclusion.

It was mainly through his untiring efforts that a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa was installed at Allegheny in 1901. And it is the common opinion that President Crawford is as proud of this achievement as of any other single feature of his presidency. The establishment—under his auspices—of Founders' Day in 1908, showed that in the midst of success, he was not at all unmindful of the great work of our noble founder, who laid the corner-stone and the foundation of the new Allegheny of to-day. In this way has our college grown and prospered. What a notable achievement for one lifetime!

It was with this same spirit of self-sacrifice which has always characterized his presidency, that he tendered his resignation to the Board of Trustees this last January, feeling that the interests of the college could be served as well by others, and being unwilling to permit his resignation at a future date to interfere with the new five-year program of the Trustees.

It is our earnest desire to express here on the pages of the "Kaldron", the deep and sincere appreciation of the students of the college for his untiring and unselfish efforts in their behalf. His life here has been one of service—a life of service to others, and to him,—our esteemed president—who has always had the interests of the college at heart, goes the credit for making Allegheny what she is to-day.

Class History

Dear Class! Our dear old Senior Class!
Four years have now gone by
Since we all came to Alleghe
So fresh and new from High.
It's rather hard to leave you now,
And of our name and of our fame
There's many a tale to tell.

Our Freshman year, we'd like to say,
Was one quite full of thrills.
(We found our love and loyalty
Cure for our infant ills).
Our football work was wonderful,
Four letter men, you see;
Shaner and "Sniv" in basketball
Both made the Varsity.

And so we grew. As Sophomores
Our numbers grew much less;
Our men thought they'd best straighten out
The international mess.
With visions clear of battlefields,
The girls learned how to nurse,
And for the men's sakes we are glad,
That matters got no worse.

Fall came and we were Juniors then,
S. A. T. C. was here!
Traditions old! Oh, may we weep
Awhile upon your bier.
But somehow we survived it all,
Watched the old order pass
By mid-term. Prex vowed all the crimes
Sprang from the Junior Class.

As mighty Seniors we have ruled
The college for a year.
And of the things that we have done,
'Twould take an age to hear.
But we're so modest that we trust
Our fame will spread around
Without our having to proclaim,
Or make a single sound.

Dear Class! Dear Nineteen-twenty Class!
Our college life is done.
But we'll re-une and—remenisce—
In nineteen-twenty-one.
So here's a toast to Alleghe.
To every student true,
And Senior Class, to you.

Glee Club, 1, 2, 3, 4; (Leader, 4); Le Petit Salon, 4; Cecelia Club, 3, 4; (Secretary, 4); M. N. S., 4.

Ella is the leader of the song birds of the school. But the Glee Club has not taken nearly all of her time. She has spent innumerable hours at the "fussing" game, sometimes concentrating, but often escaping her "traces" and frequenting the movies in other company.

LEO ARNOLD ARMAGOST, B. S.

'Music—O! how faint, how weak,
Language fades before thy spell."—Moore.

Leo is the concocter of any tuneful melodies with his Stradivarius, from the high-brow sonata to the latest jazz. At the first note, the old story of the Pied Piper is repeated, for how can you account otherwise for his ability as a Romeo? His ambitions are many and varied, but he is the kind of a chap that will make them come true. He contemplates teaching, but we cannot visualize him as a staid professor.

If you ever want to know the very latest news about anything, ask Maud. In some way she manages to find out about everything that goes on, and is an authority of this type of an information bureau. But if she doesn't want to tell you, you may as well resign yourself to remain ignorant, for when she has made up her mind, she is a rock for firmness.

Entered the school with the class of 1918, but two delays have held him up till the class of '20. He is one of these men who go in for a liberal education, being a familiar figure in any department of the school which one might name. He seems to have missed the one course in which he might have starred particularly, Astronomy, for he is much more of an authority on what happens after midnight in the Phi Psi House than on what happens in the daytime.

Farber did his first year's work at Mount Union, then finished up here in two, including a half year that he spent wearing the golden bars in the army. He was surely a hound when it came to hard work, and we are sorry that he went to Pitt Med School this year instead of sticking around. We are sure that Farber will be successful in applying the "Baum" to suffering humanity as a M. D.

If Beatty had majored in English, we might have expected him to be a novelist, for his training in this line was not lacking. He boasted of the fact that he read an average of one book for every day of his college career. He worked one year for Uncle Sam in the Ordnance Dep't, and got back, in time to come to summer school last summer. We are mighty glad that he is going to return to graduate with us this spring.

If you see a blond young man with a serious countenance breezing along at about 60 miles per, his coat tails flying—that's "Bennie." Coming from the Empire State his Freshman year, everyone thought Bennie a modest, retiring young chap, but he soon displayed that ceaseless activity that has characterized him ever since—oratory, debating, or chaperoning the basketball team on their occasional trips. Also at home in the role of a reckless Romeo.

Giles is the living example of the old expression "Its sure your brains will find you out". Coming to Allegheny in '16 he lived the ordinary life of a freshman with the exception that he worked occasionally. Advancing higher every year, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in the fall of '19. He seems to have the faculty of getting A upon A, A upon A, here an A and there an A, but its all in the family. With the book store and the Chem Lab, he is a busy man.

To say that Booth was a "Fehr" sort of a chap does not do him justice, although that adjective describes his complexion and his dealings with others as well as his tastes where women are concerned. As his name indicates, he was a prince, and we hail him as such. His freely expressed opinions often gave others the desire to "crown him", but he escaped unscathed, at least physically. Mentally, we are not so sure, for he finished his work in summer school and went to Boston Theological Seminary.

"Bos" has been away from Allegheny for three years, but the old longing must still be there, for he is coming back to graduate with us this year, even though he almost has his M. D. degree already. He was a shining literary light while here, as evidenced by the fact that he was Editor of both the Campus and the Kaldron. He was a firm believer in intensified rushing while he sojourned here, and in accordance to all the reports that come from Buffalo, he has not changed his policy.

"The starving chemist in his golden views Supremely blest."—Pope.

On a pleasant afternoon in September, 1918, one J. Warren Brock burst from the wilds of Greene County and landed in the midst of Allegheny's unsuspecting student body. However, we found him quite civilized, as he had attended the well known Waynesburg College for two years. Brock is one of the mainstays of Dr. Lee's "staff of chemists", and upholds his chosen departent in argument against the arts. He argues thus—Chemistry is the fundamental science, it needs no defense.

This young Chesterfield hails from Wheeling, the city of Stogies. He has a record all his own of being just four minutes late to class. A master exponent of the social graces as well as Hulings propaganda. Judging from his altruistic motives, we expect he will soon forsake his religious education for the matrimonial agency, but he will have to think a long time before he decides.

Nicknamed "bellowing" Brownell his freshman year on account of the mildness and gentleness of his voice. He attracted much attention one Sunday evening in church by standing at attention while a patriotic song was being sung. For three years he trod the great "white" way to Hulings Hall, but changed his affection his senior year, devoting most of his attention to W. C. T. U. watch meetings.

Campbell has finished his college course at last very creditably, although some of those who know him least seemed to think occasionally that "Loud" might blow up at almost any time. His nearly red hair does not denote such an explosive nature, so the class is still unshattered. He has made many close friends, but his most recently acquired and closest one seems to be "Bugs"—the dog—not Krueger. "Loud" will not be forgetten after he leaves, for he leaves both Louden and Lee here in the freshman class.

Kacey is a very versatile person who does anything from writing poems around the margins of her class books to keeping posted on the very latest in movie heroes and heroines. Great authors, we understand, always write their books right out of their heads on a typewriter, so that is probably the reason Kacey is attending business college this semester.

When it comes to fussing, we've got to hand it to Clothier. When a man can go out for a dozen nights in succession and entertain a different lady each night—he is some man. Hats off to Silver Creek. He is a very handy man around the house. Every one who was at the class sewing bee last year remembers how niftily he steered the sewing machines around the room. Reverdy expects to be a scientific farmer.

Tom Colley is one of those three year wonders whom we occasionally find in our midst. He came to us in 1917, when his red hair and his English brogue first attracted our attention, and the merry twinkle in his eye captivated our friendship. Tom is a straight "A" man, and a philosopher of no mean ability. He has successfully handled a Methodist charge, and supported a wife and child in addition to his regular college course.

Dutton Society of Applied Science, 4.

Collins obeyed the orders, "Go west, my son", and "went west", at the end of his sophomore year. After a year at the University of Washington, Alton again felt the "call of the wild" and returned to Allegheny. It couldn't have been the call of wild women, for he never goes out with any but Hulings girls, and those times are as far between as the two schools he has attended. "Laffey" rightly describes Alton's disposition, for he is "smiles" all the time.

When Harry came to Allegheny back in 1914, and unsuspectingly told people that he came from Mars, the crowd marveled and would fain ask him many questions concerning that much discussed planet, until some one from Butler came forward and announced that Mars was somewhere in the pastoral, I mean the pasture-al districts of Penna. He enlisted in 1917 to get out of final exams, but the war lasted longer than he expected. An optimist, a hustler, and a man every inch of him.

Class Treasurer, 3; Twentieth Century Club, 4; M. N. S., 3, 4.

Helen has given up all hopes of finding her "Prince Charming". She calls herself the old maid, and was instrumental in organizing the old maid's society in Hulings Hall. She declares that teaching is her chosen profession, but she will soon get over that. Unlike most Seniors, she is always present to help the Freshmen wash the dishes after a spread.

HAROLD WESTLAKE DICKEY, A. B.

Oil City, Pa.

Oil City High School.

"Now shall be my song,
It shall be witty and it shan't be long."
—Earl of Chesterfield.

Glee Club, 1, 2, 3, 4; Le Petit Salon, 4; Dutton Society of Applied Science, 4.

Dickey hails from the town down the Franklin Branch where they grow crude oil, crude hills, and a few other crude proteges for Allegheny. He has been with the class of '20 through a rather checkered career save for the time last year when he wore "them funny pants" in the navy, which experience probably accounts for his being such a seaworthy craft. In surveying, his transit swings mechanically toward Hulings Hall, and Dick is good at waving signals.

FLORRENCE MARGUERITE DIEFENDERFER, A. B.

"As dainty as a woodland flower."—Wordsworth.

Girls' Glee Club, 3; Le Petit Salon, 3, 4; Klee-O-Kleet, 3, 4; (President, 4); M. N. S., 4.

Behold the length of the name as compared with the size of the child. Marguerite with her "tordie" this and her "tordie" that will probably never grow up, but why bother when she is so adorable as she is. She is fond of a great many things, particularly "plums". Always interested in things worth while, Marguerite has made her influence felt in college affairs.

Do not be mistaken—this is not the David that heaved the brick at Goliath. Even if he had, he would surely have escaped, for he hasn't raced up the hill to 8:10s for four years just to see if it could be done. Davy has been very active since he came to Alleghe, not even being passive when it comes to the "fair ones". Allegheny was good enough for "dad", so Ralph came all the way from Nebraska to be one of our classmates. He doesn't like the conventialities of the East, but a good many of those rough spots have been knocked off in absorbing some of the fine traditions of Allegheny. We are glad to see the smiling face of our embryo lawyer after two years absence, and we feel confident that he will be a success as a man among men.

When "Nort" first struck Allegheny, he was a devout follower of Horace and Juvenal, but soon evoluted into an Overland salesman with all the accessories. A versatile young man, schooled alike in the business and social worlds. Believing in intensive agriculture, he attempted to raise a crop of cilia on his upper lip that bids fair to rival Charlie Chaplin's famous hirsute adornment.

The essence of helpfulness is Florence. She would be willing to make any sacrifice herself, if thereby she might benefit someone. We have not seen so much of her, but that is our loss, for the things with which she is associated are certainly benefited. They say she is going West to teach, but East or West, she'll make her job "go".

When in doubt concerning political parties or platforms, consult Parrish. The "Senator" started in his Freshman year arguing on every subject that men differ on or from each other. He received valuable training under Dr. Leake on the relative merits of Roosevelt and Hearst. His political prognostications are remarkable, always favoring the G. O. P. Pierson was never much of a speaker until the Senior-Sophomore Banquet, when he upheld Dr. Henke's "Recency of Stimulation" theory in a remarkable manner, and as a result he is to say "Farewell to the Chapel" from which he has had his nine cuts. "Peg's" initiative and ability prophecy much for his future.

A true supporter of the old town; he never was ashamed of the fact that he comes from Johnstown. If one doesn't know him any other way, he is marked from the common rabble by a rarely loud voice and smile that agitates his anatomy from the toes of his shoes to the top of his head. We fear for his health, for he has two maladies of more or less serious nature; "ukulele", and another which comes heaviest in the springtime.

Class History

If you don't believe that history grows.
Just ask the "Kaldron", for "Kaldron" knows.
The history we had a year ago
Has grown by a hundred lines or so.
Since ink is dear and paper more
We'll have to "cut" what's gone before.
If of our past there's any doubt,
Chase up the "Kaldron" and hunt it out.

As Juniors, then, our tale will start,
Of this year's doings tell a part.
Last of September, our work begun.
We look about to see the fun;
For from the heights of upper class,
We design to watch the Freshmen pass.
Now work must take the place of play—
We hold a meeting right away;
Hartman, McClune, Peters and Gold
Replace the officers of old.
No time to waste, small chance to shirk,
New faculty members make us work:
History readings and Poly Sci
Keep piling up some volumes high.
But with it all, our share we do
To put the football season through.
And good sports, too, are the Junior Class,
When the "Y" reception comes to pass.
Then Prex gets up with his jaw set grim
And begs us all to back the gym.
And we agree with heart and will;
Have been working long, and are working still.
Basketball comes, and with usual pep,
We turn out strong and get in step
To show our men the Junior spirit,
To tell the world and all "We're in it".
Thirteenth of January, Nineteen-twenty,
Schemes and plots and plans a plenty!
Seniors and Sophs try to give us the slip
And run off slyly on their little trip.
But Oil City's not far away
And the Juniors follow without delay.
And for their fun the Seniors pay—
(They bribe the police to keep away).

ALLEGHENY COLLEGE LIBRARY

Exams are through, we always pass;
No one is dropped from the Junior Class.
On March the sixth a party we give.
A mighty good time, as sure as you live.
The thing is purely a class affair
With leap year dates, and all are there.
And so the time speeds quickly on;
Our Junior year is almost gone.
A few more days, Commencement passed.
Dignified Seniors, then, at last.

Class History

I went to find a medium to tap the mystic fount
And seek the proper savor of historical account.
But when I called for heaven I learned with rising hair
In the history of Heaven there's been no historian there.
So if it seems to you at times I strain a point or two.
Remember that is only what historians often do.

We came to Allegheny quite resolved to end the war,,
And took our sundry places in the Student Training Corps.
Those gallant, gallant fighting men of whom 'tis truly stated,
That when the Kaiser heard of them he promptly abdicated.
And in filling up its files 'twas our class that bore the brunt, ,
In its serpentining columns or its wavering com'ny front.
And then alas, as I have said, the kaiser's lords lost heart,
'Fore we had time to bring to life a single Bonaparte.
And when the war was over and we turned to pursuits new,
Bill Jordan was our president, and Bill, he steered us through.
We used our martial fever as a challenge to the Sophs,
Who bowed to the necessity and humbly bore our scoffs.
We posted up our placards to the city's startled view.
They hid their in their abject fear of us of Twenty-two.
And at the Birthday Banquet, surely Hiawatha's shade,
Would have grunted at the splendor that the least of us displayed.

Then when the summer ended and we came again to school,
Resolved that every freshman here we'd ruin or we'd rule.
We licked them in the poster scrap before the week had flown
And the poor dear dimpled darlings couldn't call their hair their own.

And when the Banquet time came round—the Senior-Soph affair—
The freshmen trotted after (just to steal the silver ware).
We elected various members to officiate this time,
John Mumaw president and—Oh see above, their names don't rhyme.
There seemed to be a jinx on them, for one by one they left
And now, except Miss Coulter we're of every one bereft.
Altho it hardly matters since the time is drawing near
When we'll have a new assortment for our coming Junior year.
Now with half an education, we pursue its lazy lure
With a glorious past behind us and a glorious future sure.

Class History

My loved, my honored, much respected friend,
No mercenary bard his homage pays,
With honest pride I scorn each selfish end,
My dearest wish—the Frosh's love and praise.
To you I sing in blank, ignoble lays
The life, which we as Freshmen, have needs led.
My heart o'erflows, when on the scene I look,
I beg you friend, judge not by me this book.

'Twas on a fair September day,
We climbed the hill to Alleghe;
To college we had come at last,
Fulfilled our dreams of ten years past.
With October first came the Freshmen rules,
Which made us look the part of fools:
The men with a pin-head upon each bean,
The girls with their arm-bands of glorious green.
'Twas not long e'er the Freshie men
Had found their way to "Hulings pen".
While the sweet Frosh girls a conquest made
Of the upper-classmen so sober and staid.
In dates and dances we didn't fall behind—
Ah! If 'leven o'clock rules were but more kind!
Mid-term exams rolled slowly 'round,
But still we're walking above the ground.
But we passed them—as students, we're not so punk.
They made 'em stiff—they thought we'de flunk,
Full many a gallon of mid-night oil
We burned as we studied—Boys! How we did toil!
Then came the birthday of old George Wash—
We didn't have a banquet—Just the usual hash.
Off came our Frosh caps as the sun went down,
Once more we sport a broad-rimmed crown.
The rules are off—we're as good as good as the rest,
We can carry a cane and wear a white vest.
As orators we've made a name,
As actors we'll soon win some fame.
The clubs of Glee now have many a Frosh,
We're a popular class. Aren't we, by Gosh?

The story which the class of twenty-three,
One of the noblest of old Alleghe,
Told by a scribe whose words are but too few,
To give old twenty-three its honest due,
Oh reader, now believe!

Resume of the Football Season of 1919

In so far as the number of games won or lost is concerned, the 1919 football season has not been a very successful one for Allegheny. One victory, three defeats, and a tie game tell a none too cheerful story to the students and loyal supporters of the Gold and Blue who pinned their hopes on the abilities of their gridiron representatives.

The prospects for a successful season at the beginning of the year were excellent; thirteen letter men were back in school, five of whom were ex-service men who had made their "A" before entering the service. Professor C. E. Hammett was back from over-seas service with the Y. M. C. A., to pilot the team through his seventh year of work in the capacity of coach. With these facts in view, the prophecies for a record-breaking season were not unfounded.

And although they did not bring home as many victories as could be desired, this fact does not detract anything from the credit which is due to the team and to the coach for the manner in which they conducted themselves, both at home and abroad. No one can say that they were ever outfought, and in only one game was there displayed any semblance of football superiority by the opposing team. Further, in reviewing these facts, some cognizance must be taken of the fact that the backfield was seriously handicapped during the entire season because of injuries suffered by men whose best work was needed at all times.

Too much credit cannot be given to the second team men under the leadership of Assistant Coach Gerald A. Barnes, not only for their large part in making a strong and well balanced varsity possible, but also for the victory which they won for their Alma Mater in their only game with an outside team.

Taking all-in-all, Allegheny has oncce more shown her excellent ability in football, and none of her 1919 opponents—all old rivals—can well lower their opinion of Allegheny's athletic skill and prowess.

The St. Bonaventure Game at Meadville, Oct. 18, 1919

Allegheny 20—St. Bonaventure 0.

After a month of steady practice, the coming of the St. Bonaventure eleven was an event looked upon with favor by the men on the team, and by the school supporters, all of whom were anxious to see the results of Coach Hammett's work. As might be expected, considerable fumbling was done in the first half of the game. Twice during this period, the ball was taken to the visitor's one-yard line, but both times, the Allgheny halves were unable to cross the line. In the second half, the home team put their open work into play, with the result that after two successful forward passes, Kinnear was able to skirt the opposing line for a touchdown. In the last quarter, Scannell and Baldwin, the Allegheny ends, both completed forward passes over the goal line, bringing the score up to 20-0, in favor of the Blue and Gold.

The Grove City Game at Grove City, Oct. 25, 1919

The Allegheny eleven lost to Grove City by a 13-0 score in one of the best exhibitions of football skill and ability seen in any game of the season. The whole team worked in perfect unison, every man fighting clean and hard. Despite the fact that they were greatly outweighed, the Blue and Gold team displayed its superiority over the opposing team in the amount of ground gained. The star feature of the game was the work of Jones, whose wonderful running and line plunging ability made possible the victory for Grove City. The game was the cleanest and best game played between Allegheny and her old rival for many years, and speaks well for the efforts put into the game by the home team.

The Carnegie Tech Game at Pittsburgh, Nov. 1, 1919

Allegheny 0—Carnegie Tech 9.

The game between Allegheny and Carnegie Tech on the latter's field is most effectively described by names given it in the various newspapers; as, "water polo," an "aquatic meet", etc. As the field was covered with several inches of water, it is hard to judge the relative qualities of the two teams. It is enough to say that great credit is due team for the low score to which they held the Plaid machine. Marshall took the ball over the line in the second quarter on a fake lateral pass. Fletcher kicked the goal, adding another point. In the last quarter, the Pittsburgh team scored two more points on a touch-back, making the final score 9-0. Kerr's punting ability was brought into the limelight as well as his ability as a ground gainer. Baldwin was Allegheny's star on the defence.

The Geneva Game at Meadville, Nov. 8, 1919

The Blue and Gold warriors suffered the third and last of a series of defeats for the season when fortune untimely smiled on the Geneva team. Thomas, of Geneva, made the only score of the game by placing a drop-kick squarely between the goal posts during the third quarter. The two teams were very evenly matched; very few first downs were made and both teams were forced to punt out of danger time after time. Kerr and Plumb were consistent ground gainers in the backfield, and Baldwin and Harbaugh played stellar line games, both on the defense and on the offense. During the last quarter, every man on the Allegheny team put all the fight he had into the game, determined to overcome the slight handicap, but the final whistle found the score still 3-0 in the Covenanter's favor.

The Westminster Game at New Wilmington, Nov. 15, 1919

The Westminster Presbyterians held Allegheny through four quarters to a scoreless tie in the last game of the season for the Gold and Blue team. Due to the muddy condition of the field, many fumbles were made. The slippery condition of the ball and poor footing made any open work impossible and took much of the effectiveness from the line plunges and end runs with the result that neither eleven made any satisfactory gains. Six varsity seniors, Kerr, Harbaugh, Trace, Coulsan, Kinnear and Scannell played their last football game for old Allegheny.

Allegheny Scrubs vs. Thiel

Second Team, 8—Thiel Reserves, 6.

Under the leadership of Captain Barcus the Allegheny Scrubs defeated the Thiel College Reserves on Montgomery Field, Saturday, November 22, by a score of 8 to 6. After the somewhat unfavorable season for the varsity this was a fitting close for the Gold and Blue schedule. The Reserves started out with a rush which resulted in a touchdown after eight minutes of play. But the Scrubs soon got their second wind and were able to keep the ball out of danger the rest of the game. In the second quarter the home team advanced the ball within three yards of the goal line but could not take it over. Thiel recovered on a fumble and on the second down were forced back over their own line, scoring two points for Allegheny. The Scrubs took the lead in the fourth quarter when Gordon, with but a few minutes to play, intercepted a forward pass on the Thiel 20-yard line and made a sensational 80-yard run through the opposing team. Mansfield starred for Allegheny throughout the game by his long runs.

Basketball

Resume of the Season

In looking back over the past season's work we find Allegheny with a nearly even break. True, six games won to eight lost is anything but a good showing, but before passing judgement the conditions under which the team labored should be considered. The lack of a college gymnasium resulted in a late start for basketball and Library Hall, as a substitute was a considerable drawback throughout the season. But even so, Allegheny was outscored by only four field goals during the inter-collegiate season. The games lost on fouls were due to no fault of our foul shooter, for Kofford out-scored his opponents by making good six per cent more of his attempts than did they.

It might well be said that the first and last games of the schedule were the best. For some unknown reason a let-down was evidenced in the middle of the season which resulted in the loss of games which should certainly have gone to our credit. Such playing as defeated West Virginia and the Alumni would have given us a championship team.

With Coach Hammett back at the head of the game, everything looked promising at the beginning of the season. Captain Kerr, Baldwin, Kofford and Parker, veterans of the 1919 varsity, were all experienced and strong players. Among the new material were Stephens and Dunbar who had each made good showings before giving up school for the service. With the guard positions well taken care of by Baldwin and Kofford and with Kerr covering one forward position, there remained the center and other forward to be picked from last year's second team men and from the new faces. Both positions were hotly contested for; the final choice was Stephens center and Dunbar forward. Due to injuries to Stephens Mountsier played the pivot position part of the season.

The most promising men on the bench as forwards were Parent, '22, and Miller, '23, both of whom got into one game or more and showed up well. Wise, '22, substituted for Mountsier several times and by his work showed that there was little difference between the two. Parker, '22, Graham, '23, Preston, '20, and Pringle, '23, completed the squad.

ALLEGHENY, 29; UNIVERSITY OF DETROIT, 22

The varsity opened the 1920 basketball season with an extra period game with the University of Detroit, defeating them by a score of 29-22. After the fast visitors had succeeded in tying the score at the end of the regulation period, the home team came back in the extra period with seven points to none by their opponents. The playing was fast throughout the game and the team work of both teams was fine, considering that it was their first game. Mountsier played well in his first appearance as a representative of the Gold and Blue. Kerr and Baldwin each caged three baskets. Kofford displayed his old-time ability by out-scoring his opponent in foul shooting and deserves great credit for his work as over half the points of the game were made by fouls.

ALLEGHENY, 26; UNIVERSITY OF WEST VIRGINIA, 25

Old Library Hall was the scene of one of the most thrilling and nerve-racking games ever staged within its tottering walls when Allegheny defeated the University of West Virginia by a 26-25 score. Never in the school history was more "fight" put into the game, which was, at times, so fast that the referee could not see the plays (or player). Allegheny displayed wonderfully fighting spirit and, with perfect teamwork, they worked Coach Hammett's five man defence without a hitch. But the Mountainers were fast and, not until the last few minutes, was the home team able to gain a lead. Then, with the spectators of their feet, the varsity forged ahead by a brilliant display of team work and shooting which gave them a one point lead when the whistle blew.

ALLEGHENY, 24; UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH, 39

Allegheny suffered her first defeat of the season at the hands of her ancient rival, the University of Pittsburgh. The lack of previous experience on a big floor had a lot to do with the lacing but never-the-less Coach Flint's men were easily superior. Wonderful teamwork, good shooting, and formidable attack characterized Pitts team which is one of their greatest productions. Captain Kerr played the stellar game for Allegheny. Besides scoring four baskets, he kept the fighting spirit in the rest of the team by his tireless floor work. At the beginning of the second half Allegheny broke loose and threatened to tie the score but Pitt soon pulled out of danger. The game ended with the score 39-24, Pitt.

ALLEGHENY, 23; CARNEGIE TECH, 21

Running true to form, Allegheny defeated Carnegie Tech on their own floor by a 23-21 score. The quality of the teamwork and the individual playing showed a marked improvement over that displayed in Trees Gymnasium the previous evening. Captain Carey of the Plaid squad did his share towards winning for the Gold and Blue by tossing a field goal into the wrong basket. Allegheny started off with a rush which gave them a good lead during the first period. During the second half Tech kept close beind but were unable to break even. Every man did credit to his position. Mountsier led for Allegheny with three baskets.

ALLEGHENY, 44; CARNEGIE TECH, 27

Coach Bert Bianchi's team from Carnegie Tech was an easy mark for Allegheny on the Meadville floor. The game was fast and clean throughout but Coach Hammett's men easily had the advantage, being ten to fifteen points ahead all during the second half. Dunbar ran wild, breaking all previous records for the season by caging seven baskets. Although there was little question as to the winner, the interest in the game never lagged, due to the high calibre of the playing. The Tartans played a good game but the best they could do was to score 27 to 44 by Allegheny.

ALLEGHENY, 48; GROVE CITY, 57

After losing to Carnegie Tech, Grove City sprung a surprise on Allegheny by defeating the twice-victors over the Tartans by a score of 57-48. Both teams displayed good basketball form and the game was hard fought throughout. The opponents had a wonderful shooting combination in Smith and Stephanian, each of whom dropped in eight field goals, most of which were from the center of the floor. Bladwin brought himself into the limelight by eluding his man for six baskets. Kofford found the basket for five more fouls than his opponent. Kerr and Dunbar played a good floor game, the latter adding five goals to his season's work.

ALLEGHENY, 38; WESTMINSTER, 29

Allegheny defeated Westminster by a 38-29 score in the slowest and poorest played game of the season. Poor shooting and teamwork were the outstanding features. If Westminster had played a fair game they could have taken the game on a silver platter, but their playing was even worse than that of the home team's. In the second half both Dunbar and Kerr came to long enough to drop in enough baskets to give Allegheny a safe lead. Dunbar tied his former record of seven baskets and Kerr came second with five.

ALLEGHENY, 23; GENEVA, 34

Coach Hammett's quintette came out of the wrong end of the horn in a 23-34 score. After doubling the score on the visitors in the first period of the game, the home team preceeded to go to pieces with the result that Captain Harr's squad came from behind to a rather easy victory. Six minutes after the second half had stated the coach began to substitute, taking out everyone but Captain Kerr. This was the only game in which there was any wholesale substitutions. Although unable to turn the tide the "Subs" held their opponents down to a comparatively low score.

ALLEGHENY, 21; WESTMINSTER, 33

The Blue and Gold lost their fourth game of the season at the hands of Westminster in the return game at New Castle by a 33-21 score. The game was close throughout and not until the final whistle blew were the Presbyterians safe. The main feature of the game was the exceptional foul shooting of Fawcett, the star Westminster forward. Allegheny's men put up a fine game, but, as evidenced in several games of the schedule, hard luck struck the team just at the times when baskets meant the most.

ALLEGHENY COLLEGE LIBRARY

ALLEGHENY, 26; GENEVA, 30

The score 30-26 in favor of Geneva was the best that Allegheny was able to bring home from Beaver Falls in the second game with Geneva. Despite the fact that the Gold and Blue scored twice as many field goals as their opponents they were unable to break even, due to the exceptional foul shooting of Houston, and the fact that Kofford had an off night for fouls. Kerr kept going for five baskets which was as many as the whole Geneva team scored. The men displayed a decided improvement over the work of the last few games; their teamwork, shooting, and guarding showed the results of the coach's work. Much dissatisfaction has been shown, both during the game and afterwards, of the refereeing of Dan Dougherty who called nearly twice as many fouls on Allegheny as on Geneva.

ALLEGHENY, 29; GROVE CITY, 33

Allegheny put up a much better showing with Grove City in the return game on the opponents floor, holding Grove City's fast combination to a 33-29 score. Smith was again the main factor in the opponents offense, dropping in seven baskets. Dunbar scored three goals and Baldwin and Kofford each scored twice. The latter was shooting fouls to perfection, missing but four of nineteen chances. As the previous meeting with Allegheny's old rival, the game was fast and well played. The first half ended with nineteen points chalked up for both sides. The final whistle found Grove City with a four-point lead.

ALLEGHENY, 28; W. AND J., 36

Little Washington was the scene of Allegheny's last game of the season on foreign floors. In the presence of a large crowd, for it was also the last game on their schedule, the Presidents carried off the bacon to the tune of 36-28. Although Allegheny fought stubbornly from the start, they were never able to score enough to put their opponents in danger. During the first half it was Kofford's foul shooting which kept the team in the running as only two field goals were caged. The second period had a somewhat different story. The Gold and Blue outscored W. and J. by two points, but the margin in the first half was too big to overcome. The floor work of Henry was the feature of the President's playing.

ALLEGHENY, 23; W. AND J., 24

The second game with W. and J. proved to be one of the best exhibitions of basketball seen on the home floor this season. The visitors defeated the Allegheny five in their last inter-collegiate game of the season by a 24-23 score. The whole forty minutes were replete with thrills; wonderful defense, strong offensives, close guarding, dribbling, and some of the longest shots ever made in Library Hall, kept the crowd on its toes. W. and J. gained the lead in the first half but were hard pressed towards the end of the game when Allegheny held a one-point lead for a few minutes. There was little question but that Captain Kerr and his men outscored and outplayed their opponents from the field but the Presidents won out on fouls as Carroll had seven more chances than did Kofford.

ALLEGHENY, 33; ALUMNI, 30

The Alumni team, as they appeared against the varsity, represented an aggregation of some of the best basketball material which Allegheny has ever turned out. But they met their equals in Hammett's 1920 production. The varsity won after an extra period game by a 33-30 score. The former stars Cox and Dunbar, were the leading scorers and, together with Volk were the strength of the Alumnus offense. Only the close guarding of Baldwin kept "Junts" from running away with the game. Bianchi and Graham at guards held Dunbar and Kerr down to one goal apiece. "Baldy" dropped in a long basket just before the whistle and forced the game into an extra period during which time he helped give the varsity a safe lead by dropping in two more baskets. Kofford on the other guard position played his best floor game of the season as well as being high scorer.

Foul Goals for Kerr—11 out of 25.
Field Goals by Allegheny Subs—2.

NORWOOD W. KERR
Right Forward—Captain
"Riffer"

The same ability which secured him a berth on the team in his Sophomore year, and made him a worthy running mate of Volk's last year has enabled Kerr to crown his basketball career with glory, not only for himself but for his Alma Mater. One of his big assets in the game is his grin. With energy enough for three men, he puts a fight and determination into his game which has secured for him a hardy respect from his opponents on the floor. By his graduation Allegheny gains one more star for her alumni and loses one of the mainstays of the teams of the past several years.

MAURICE E. KOFFORD, '22
"Rink"

"Rink" has finished his second season as guard and foul shooter with able ability and efficiency. The favorable prophesies for a brilliant athletic career have been more than realized by his dependable work of the past season. As a guard, his floor work is beyond reproach; his team work and clever dribbling alone are enough to make him stand out as an artist at the game, and a glance at his record from the foul line places him high on the list of Allegheny's stars. Kofford is one of the few men who have been honored with a captaincy in their junior year; "Rink" has the best wishes of everyone for successful season next year.

GILBERT A. BENSON
Manager

Manager Benson deserves great credit for the manner in which he has filled his position at the business end of the game. Besides the regular managerial work he has had to contend with the added hardships which have attended the lack of the college gymnasium and hence proper equipment for the players as well as for the supporters. Working on a well grounded supposition that a league of the college and university teams of Western Pennsylvania was to be formed, he arranged games with all the schools included in the proposed plan. When this rumor failed to materialize he was left with a full schedule on his hands and hence was forced to turn down offers from several of the large schools of New York State and Ohio. Despite this fact the season has been a most attractive one, for which fact Benson is to be congratulated.

ROGER L. BALDWIN, '21
Left Guard
"Rog"

Baldwin won his position last year on Koegan's fast five in the face of strong competition. Since that time he has developed into one of the best and most dependable men on the squad. One has little grounds for doubting his ability when we consider the fact that he scored more points than his opponent this season. When we also consider that he did this while playing in the position of basket guard we find in him an example of that rare combination, a wonderful guard and a good shot. All indications point to the fact that Baldy will be one of the most formidable players on next year's team.

GEORGE F. DUNBAR, '21
"George"

Dunbar is high man with field goals this year. His baskets have been the means of pulling Allegheny out of many a tight hole. Besides out-scoring his man in nine out of fourteen games, he has added greatly to the strength of the varsity defense. He is a fast, brilliant player, especially dangerous under the basket. George will get another chance at the game next year and, judging from this year's record, he should be one of Allegheny's surest bets. But he certainly has his work cut out for him in filling the shoes left vacant by his running mate, Kerr.

DALLAS MALONE STEPHENS, '20
"Dal"

Stephens is the "gob" of this year's team; having echanged his navy uniform for the Gold and Blue togs. Before entering the service Dale made a good showing on the squad at center. At the beginning of the season his work placed him at the top of the list as possible candidate for the tip-off position. Due to a bad ankle, his appearance with the varsity has been somewhat irregular. But although thus seriously handicapped he has proved himself a hard, consistent player and a worthy opponent. He leaves Alleghe with the warmest regard and praise from every true college supporter.

S. RUSH MOUNTSIER, JR., '23
"Rush"

Once more a frosh has broken into the varsity line-up. Mountsier divided the honors of the pivot position this year with Stephens. Despite his inexperience with college basketball, the development shown during the season and his natural ability have marked him as a coming player of note. His playing, although not stellar, is hard and clean; as a first year man his shooting is very creditable. With an A to his credit and three years before him, "Rush" has every chance to attain the "hall of fame".

ALLEGHENY COLLEGE LIBRARY

Boxing and Wrestling

Under the direction of Assistant Coach Gerald Barnes the art of boxing and wrestling was introduced for the first time this year as a feature of athletic work and instruction. No inter-collegiate meets were scheduled for this season but it is expected that in the future Allegheny will follow the example of many of the big eastern schools in making this one of the major sports.

The interest shown by the student body was striking, so much so in fact that it had a marked effect in some cases. The market value of ocular coronations went down to rock bottom and even a broken nose failed to get more than a passing glance.

Classes of instruction were held in an improvised gymnasium in the basement of Bentley Hall. Although greatly handicapped for room the classes were well attended. A regular schedule was mapped out by the instructor whereby the men of the different weights could meet at regular hours several times a week.

After a series of elimination contests, during which time more interest was shown in attending Bentley than is usually the case, the finals in all the different classes were held in Library Hall, March 27. The fact that the men were out one hundred per cent is proof of the wide spread interest in the art of self-defence.

NEW GYMNASIUM

ALLEGHENY COLLEGE LIBRARY

Track Season

In the first meet of the season, and the only one at the present writing, Allegheny lost to Geneve College at Beaver Falls by the close score of 66-64. Considering the weather conditions and the lack of a gym for indoor work Captain Coulsan's men did exceedingly well, and, in fact, presented a much better balanced team than did their opponents on which team two or three men did most of the scoring.

T. E. and Captain Miller were the stars of the Geneva team, scoring forty-two points between them. Curry, with evelen points was the only other big scorer for the opponents. T. E. Miller sprang a surprise by winning all the middle and distance events.

For Allegheny Bittner ranks first with fifteen points. Captain Coulson, in two less events, was second with two less points. Miller came through in the pole vault with the best work he has done this year, and with Bittner carried off the high and broad jumps. Bender took a first and a second in the hurdles.

Until the relay Allegheny was leading by three points, but the loss of this, the last event, placed Geneva in the lead.

With three weeks between this and the next meet Coach Hammett will have an opportunity to repair the weak spots brought to light in the first meet. It is hoped that when we meet Carnegie Tech and W. and J. a different story may be told.

Tennis

Inconceivable as it may seem to the old-time tennis enthusiasts, the so-called lazy man's game has once more regained its foothold in Allegheny's list of sports, and has returned to the position it occupied when such men as Andrews, Brownell, Cox, and the Castle brothers swung their wicked sticks. These men are the ones who put Allegheny on the map in the tennis world, and it is our earnest desire to live up to the old reputation this year.

At the call for candidates, there were twenty-two men who expressed their desire to enter the eliminations. One or two of these, however, were compelled to withdraw their names on account of other activities. When the eliminations were actually started there were twenty men in the mixup. After the drawing, an elimination schedule was arranged by the manager, and the contests were run off without any serious hitches. Every loser took his defeat in a real sportsmanlike manner. All men labored under the same conditions, so it was a case of the survival of the fittest. The men who successfully survived the onslaught of their adversaries were Gordon, '20, Megahan, '20, Bittner, '22, Flint, '23, and Cochran, '23. Gordon and Megahan were members of last year's actionless team, so called because they met no opponents on the court. The other men are players who have had considerable experince, the last two having been batting partners on their high school team for three years. None of the men are sensational players, but they are all steady, consistent workers, who will offer any team an interesting scrimmage.

Megahan was appointed manager of the team by the Athletic Council, and immediately set to work to arrange an attractive schedule. Like all managers, he had his troubles, but finally his card was completed. The matches as arranged are: Geneva at home and abroad, Carnegie Tech at home and abroad, and Grove City abroad. The University of Pittsburgh was also on the schedule, but owing to a delinquency on the part of the Pitt manager, the match had to be called off.

As to the success of our team this year, we cannot forecast at this early date as the "Kaldron" goes to print. We are sure that every man on the team will do his best to bring home the bacon. Tennis is a thriving, progressive sport, and with a good start this year, it should arouse more interest each year until it comes once more to its previous status at Allegheny, when they all fell victims to our unsurpassed aggregations. All that will be needed from now on is enthusiastic contenders, support of the student body, and fair weather.

SEPTEMBER

22. Back to Allegheny. Looks like Spring on the Campus with the Seniors in full bloom, the flowering Juniors, the budding Sophs, and the verdant Freshmen.

23. Students enlist for another term. Lights are instituted in Hulings Hall.

24. —The time-honored poster-scrap. The Sophs clean up on the Frosh in a "no-slugging match".

25. Work begins—that is, classes start.

26. Open rushing in evidence among the men. The "knock 'em cold and pledge 'em" method is employed.

27. Y. W. C. A. Bacon bat in Park Ave. ravine. Ideal day.

28. Hulings Hall sails out on its first Sunday night date. The Freshmen girls looks out of the windows. Phi Beta Kappa holds its fall election, and Bollinger and Sue Jenkins are elected.

29. Nearly all the Freshmen get their hair cut. Barbers are busy.

30. Y. W. C. A. reception for Freshmen girls held in the girls' gym. Stunts, ice cream, cake, and dancing fill the evening.

OCTOBER

1. The Freshman "Bible" appears.

2. The gymnasium campaign successfully closed. The student pledges amount to $10381.315984.

3. The Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. hold their annual reception in the gym. As peppy as usual—as usual, get that?

4. Hello day on the Campus. Ain't that exciting?

6. Maria Conde attracts some of the students to Stone Church. "The Bride Shop" gets the rest. Sophomore girls have a spread while the Freshmen slumber peacefully on.

8. Vote on dancing taken in chapel. No need to mention the outcome. The terpsicorean art soon to be part of Allegheny's social education.

10. We stop a moment to begin to consider about starting to study. The Girls' Athletic Board is sat upon. They are not to be permitted to play basketball. However, they may indulge in hiking.

11. Freshmen men are getting the range, and are brought up before the Student Senate for firing missles through Cochran Hall windows.

15. Some Frosh in jail for hooking fire wood. Dean Ross makes a midnight call at the jail.

16. Booster Night on the Campus. The rain does not dampen the spirit of the gathering. Speeches, music, and a big bonfire followed by a parade down town constitute a most enjoyable evening.

17. Strickland W. Gillilan keeps the crowded chapel in a roar of laughter. However, we saw one professor who didn't laugh at some of the jokes.

A Leap Year Proposal

April 7, 1920.
14 Disappointed Street,
Brokenheartshire.

My dear and most respected Sir,
I send you this your love to stire,
'Tis you I've chosen first of all,
On whom to pay a Leap Year's call.
I give to you the foremost chance—
A home for you I would enhance.
Your heart and hand I ask—no jest,
And hope You'll grant my fond request.
And send me back without delay,
Your answer either yes or nay.
But if your hand does not incline
In wedlock clasp to join in mine,
Then you must Leap Year's law obey,
And down to me ten dollars pay.
Besides, kind Sir, a handsome dress,
I ask no more and take no less.
You may think that this is funny,
But I must have either man or money,
So send me back a quick reply,
Let me be your wife until you die.
Now if you think I am a dandy,
Send me back a box of candy.
If the writer's name you guess,
Send this back to my address.
If for me there is no hope,
Send me back six yards of rope.
With lots of love and lots of kisses,
From one who wants to be your missus.

—A Silent Admirer.

Editor's Note:—The men of our college should certainly be on their guard, lest they fall the victims of such outbursts of sentiment and emotion as the above. However, in some cases we recognize its legitimate use. The rosy-cheeked, waivy-haired Senior who was the recipient of this note, has fallen in turn for so many, and vise versa, that anything that would increase complications would be a relief.

Pslams xxiii

Give ear, oh ye people, to the law; incline your ears to the words of my mouth.

I will open my mouth in a parable; I will utter dark sayings of old.

Verily when a student sayeth unto thee, "I am busy and have exceeding much to do," believe him not, for it is bunk. He lieth by the clock, and his tongue uttereth nonsense. For his days are spent as in a rose garden, where he may pluck who will.

And when they say unto you, "Brother, Go to, for we will go to Hulings that we may seek solace from our troubles, and deliver ourselves of that which troubles us," believe them not, for they are of a generation which deceiveth, for the ways of woman can no man predict, and her counsels are as the wind that bloweth where it lists.

Verily ice cream is not eaten for a nickel, and he who would dance must line the pockets of certain of Delta Tau Delta. Thus was it in the days of our fathers, but do we not dance free, and is not the Ivy Club cast down from monopoly?

Behold our prexy, he taketh many pieces of silver and getteth more and addeth it unto them, Yea, the treasures he procureth are as the mountain peaks, and the depth and breadth thereof is as the sea. And nothing is removed there from save it be restored, yea nothing is taken away from them. And it is well, for many buildings do constitute a fine college, and a great endowment crieth out for many students.

My son, when thou hast a date with a Kappa, ask her many weeks in advance, yea, address thou thyself to her in ample time, for her ways are difficult to understand, and verily she may not prepare herself in a brief time. Verily she keepeth thee under scrutiny for many days.

And when thou goest to the bookstore, my son, gird up thy loins with meekness, and fill thy purse with a thousand pennies, yea go prepared to pay what is asked, neither say thou "It is too much."

For blessed are they that walk uprightly, straying not into Beatty & Balizet's, neither patronizing the P. H. C. They sing not, neither do they dance, and their delight is in the Y. W.-Y. M. C. A. social. Selah!

18. The Sophs again triumph in the Field Day events. The score is 10 0 Our football team starts the season right by riding over St. Bonaventure by the score of 20-0. The girls journey to the Inn for the Pan-Hellenic Dance.

20. The Freshmen extra fresh. The numerals '23 on the water tower causes several impromptu hair cuts.

21. Work begins on the new gym. Coach Hammett removes the first spoonfull of earth. Reception at the Grace Church.

22. "Bullets" make first appearance in "Campus" columns.

23. Freshman "'23" appears on Montgomery Field wall. A free-for-all in Main street before chapel is the result. Tonsorial methods again resorted to.

24. The Faculty decides the dancing question—by leaving it in the hands of the Social Functions Committee and the Student Senate.

25. Allegheny defeats Grove City in first downs and total yards gained, but loses out 13-0 in points.

27. Overseas men tendered a banquet by Prex.

29. It is announced in chapel that a certain professor will not be able to meet his classes for a week. Thereupon, the student body rises and sings lustily "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow".

31. Welsh Glee Quartette presents a very pleasing programme in the chapel.

NOVEMBER.

1. Carnegie Tech outsplashes Allegheny 9-0. The Blue and Gold team was never built to float. Girls' Bidding Day. Everybody happy? ——yes!

2. A day of rest, even for the Unofficial Calendar.

5. First union Y. M.-Y. W. C. A. meeting held in the chapel.

6. Hulings Hall cupalo starts to descend, so that ends midnight spreads there.

7. Freshmen caps appear. The cutest cap and megaphone—all for two dollars.

8. Allegheny falls before Geneva, 3-0.

11. Armistice Day observed—in chapel only.

14. Extemporaneous speaking contest held in chapel.

15. Allegheny and Westminster hold each other 0-0 in the season's finale.

17. Meadville pledges $10000 for the new gym.

19. Constance Cares makes thrilling appearance in the "Campus".

22. "Cork" Gordon so surprised that he ran eighty yards without being caught, and Allegheny seconds beat Thiel 8-6.

23. Hulings Hall raided. Revolver shots, 'n everything.

24. Dr. Hammerschlag lays the cornerstone for the new gym.

27. Thanksgiving Day—a holiday. So we're all thankful to eat turkey in piece.

29. Annual Hulings Hall party and all its glory. The redecorated hall was at its b st—so were its inmates.

30. Sunday—recuperation.

dear mister editor:—

as i take my pen in hand to rite my annuel letter to the kauldron i feel that noos is scarse and the year has been pritty unreventfull altho i here many roomers uv troubel to cum. from my humbel pozishun in the back seats uv allegheny collige class romes i still persue the even tener uv my dreems unmooved by the pollitical intreege and the riz and fall uv the modurn danse but when the facultee propoze to take the lower back rung out uv the chares in the afforsed class romes as i here they are going to do i intend to riz to protest.

noos it pritty scarse now with the trustes so busy finding a man who can grab off five (5) millyon bucks and teech the freshmen tabel mannars at the same time tho i do think they need it that is the tabel mannars. i wuz there one day and just as i cum in the dore sumbuddy hit me in the i with a chunk uv fiber that had been cut off a roll uv bolona and sed, to hel with retrenchmunts and i guess the girls feel like that to from what ive herd.

i laffer last nite at what i herd a mail voice say when i wuv cuming by the steps uv the librery that kissin a girl who you dont like is like scraching where it dont ich and then a girl sed wel if you feel like that about it and then he sed o when i see you i ich all over.

i also think awssi peniez as the french say that that old close ideaw came at a oppertune time as i had wore a hole in my last pare which nothin less than a flower sak wood cover and its hard to face in all direchuns at the same time. its going to be awfull tho for sum fellowes whose self rispict is inversly porproshunal as doc acres wood say to the creese in there trowsers. it dont make much diff to me as i figgur that close dont make the man and if they did id be a high preest or sumthing. i surpect that one will be over your head i dont ordinarely put that deep stuff in my liturashure but i wuz temptud on that one and fell.

i wuz setting in English class the other day thinking how much eazier i get along in scienze coarses tho scienze coarses arent any more poppular with me than alarm cloks when im in them and while i wuz setting there doc Shuttz asked me what the poitry uv Grey wuz noted for and i sed i supposed it wuz noted for its color but i didn't get a riz outa nobuddy i suppoze bekause all his classs are fed up on that kind uv stuff.

well anuther year has gone down the wrigging grooves uv time as the poit says and well soon be back in the masheen shops and corn feelds. speeking uv Time makes me think uv how the pore old fellow must be releeved when the Oratorracal seeson is over here and the elequint young oratoors get thru wurking him and his trusty sithe so hard on the chapel rostrom i wish i had a profetic i like them fellows i think it wood improove my liturarly stile.

Well i guess ill draw my annuel letter to a close having sed all i can think uv. weve dun pritty well this year tho its hard to make the dessert to rejoyse and blossum like the roze since the ateteenth conterdieshun uv the u. s. constitutichun spred the afforsed dessert over the entire nashum. i also here there is a womman candudate for president on the no terbacco tikket which will go hard with the phi psis. i suppoze all uv you will be cuming back who dont graduate tho im glad im thru now when they have razed the tooishon to 200 bucks a year. i dont beleeve all the edgejicashun i get here is wurth 200 bucks a year thi it may be o. k. for the preechers who we see going down to the stashun every Sat. afternoon with a bible in one hand a book uv sombuddys elses collecked sermans in the other who get there tooishon for it and there pay every year for the work they have dun the year before, well as noos is scarse i will close now as i have to write my senyor thezis yet tonite.

Some Social Functions

The Y. M.-Y. W. Reception

Our first college social function of the year was the Y. M.-Y. W. C. A. reception in October. On this memorable occasion, which every one attends of course, we first took a trip down the receiving line, until our right arms were numb. For entertainment and for further acquaintance, we were all given a triangular slip of paper consigning us to a family, such as the clock family, consisting of Big Clock, Little Clock, Cuckoo Clock, etc.

After everybody had gotten acquainted, a verse was composed and read by each family. The evening closed with the singing of Allegheny songs. The next day was delegated as "Hello Day" on the campus. After all this, the fellows and girls generally considered themselves as well acquainted.

Hulings Hall Party

After skipping two years, the girls of Hulings Hall once more gave the long-looked-for event, the Thanksgiving party. The gymnasium was transformed into a Japanese garden, with charming trees here and there, and an arbor in the centre, from which two little Japanese girls served punch. Some Punch! A splendid orchestra furnished dance music to a danceless party, for the would-be dance programs were merely conversation programs. The men attended in surprising numbers, considering their proclaimed horror of such occasions. We quote the "Campus" as saying that the "A" books give testimony of the number of victims who invaded the sacred precincts. Some of these victims, in ungarded moments, seemed to enjoy themselves, and some of them even hinted that they might do it again.

The Junior Party.

On March sixth, the Junior Class journeyed to Saegertown, where they held a dinner-dance. The evening's entertainment, aside from eating, consisted in dancing—even moonlights. An interesting anecdote is told of this occasion. One of the Junior girls, when asked why she had danced one of the moonlights with a certain man, replied that she believed in embracing every opportunity to be embraced. "Cheek-by-jowl" dancing was taboo. The ever-popular colored orchestra made the parting from Saegertown shortly after the dinner hour more cruel than ever.

DECEMBER.

4. Just three weeks until Christmas.

6. Prex entertains the football team at Cochran Hall.

11. Student Volunteer Band holds a pageant in chapel.

12. A busy day. One year ago today we escaped from the S. A. T. C. The football men are awarded their letters in chapel. It is moved and seconded that the athletic and oratorical fees be doubled to make Allegheny a better college. The motion carried. The girls' sororities hold their Christmas parties.

16. The combined Glee Clubs give a concert in chapel. The proceeds are to buy postage stamps for the gym campaign.

17. The Glee Club slid over to Conneaut Lake. Irish Carney amused the audience—both people laughed.

19. The Glee Club again leaves for a trip to Corry and Union City. Merry Christmas.

JANUARY.

5. The Ivy Club wishes us a Happy New Year.

6. The joyous days of vacation are over, and classes begin again.

10. The basketball season starts off with a rush, when the Gold and Blue slip one over on the University of Detroit by the score of 29-22. Allegheny showed some speed in that extra period.

13. The Seniors and Sophs make a clean get-away to Oil City, the scene of their annual banquet. The Juniors try to follow but get left in the oil town all night. The banquet was a brilliant affair, fairly overflowing with the true spirits of old Allegheny.

15. The trustees hold their semi-annual meeting. The news reaches us that the president handed in his resignation. Tuition raised to $200.

16. History certainly did a good job in repeating itself to-nite, when Allegheny—for the third successive time—nosed out West Virginia in the last minute of play. The tune was close—26-25. The W. Va. center, Kiger (the "K" ought to be a "T") added thrills to the evening's entertainment by a fistic exhibition, with the referee as the object of his wrath.

21. A union meeting of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. in the chapel gives many of us an opportunity to get out.

23. The first torpedo of the season hit our ship at Pitt, and out team came out of the storm hanging on to the small end of the 39-24 score.

24. We did better to-nite, by licking Carnegie Tech 23-21. The Tech captain aided materially in our victory.

27. Considering the efforts of our Dr. Crawford on the wicked and sinful student body as unavailing, a certain acrobatic preacher tries to convert the college out in Main street immediately following chapel. The collection amounted to fourteen cents. Prather was appointed treasurer.

28. The last day of classes. The day of reckoning has come. The Lord be with the students, especially those in the History and Poly Sigh Departments.

29. Exams begin—"Knock 'em cold" seems to be the Faculty's motto.

General Order No. 13486

On the Eve of the College Dance, April 24, 1920

The young ladies should not grab the man by the knap of the neck, because if they do, the young men feel obliged to do the rest, and, as they say, hug up the girl.

Please don't tell the young men that I am laughing at them. They meant well. But this is the suggestion that they brought to me: The music shall start as soon as we get there, and the dancing shall begin immediately. Then the music is to stop suddenly, and there will be a rat-i-tat-i-tat on the drum to attract the attention of the audience. Then a young man is to come forth and announce that all objectionable dancing is to be stopped, and stopped immediately.

Now, girls,, I don't want to laugh at them, so don't tell them that I laughed at them, but I told them that I didn't think that that was very good. All I could think of was a bunch of policemen, who said, "If you don't dance right, I'll pinch you".

Now I know, with the cooperation of the girls, I can do anything. And I, the one woman on the faculty, did not think that it would be too much for me to be responsible for all the girls. But the men on the faculty, great big, tall, strong, stalwart, strapping men said they could not be responsible for the behavior of the men. They would for some of them, but not for all of them. Now, girls, just imagine, I, one woman, being responsible for all the girls that go, and about fifteen men not being able to take care of the men of the party.

Now I know that everything is going to go alright, and that there is going to be no chance for criticism, and I do hope we will have a good time—in fact, I know we will.

Now the Social Functions Committee has drawn up this resolution for college dances: There shall be no dancing in dimly lighted rooms, nor to soft, low music, or to moonlight effects. You know, girls, you can have these moonlight effects, or moonlights, as they are called at any nickel dance. Secondly, there shall be no cheek-to-cheek dancing, or dancing that involves unseemly physical contortions. Now, girls, about that last, I am a bit puzzled—about the unseemly physical contortions—as to just what it meant.

Some of the men's names have come up for criticism for their dancing, and the other young men have said, "Why, Miss Spaulding, he can't dance". I do wish these people that can't dance without falling all over everybody and getting themselves in to such positions would take a few lessons.

I do not think that it looks well for a young lady to put her arm around the young man's waist, nor in the middle of his back because really, girls, in white against a black suit does look rather funny. And, girls, do remember this, that you are to love to dance, and not dance to love.

A Good Methodist Story

Two little boys, one the son of a minister and the other the son of a bishop, who were always arguing whose father was the greater man, came together one day, when the minister's little son exclaimed:

"You're father ain't no good. My father gave me a hen that lays an egg every week".

"That's nothing", quickly retorted the bishop's son, "My father lays a cornerstone every week."

A Girl's Essay on Boys

Boys are men that have not got as big as their papas, and girls are women that will be ladies some day by and by. Man was made before woman. When God looked at Adam, He said to Himself, 'Well, I think I can do better if I try again." And he made Eve. God liked Eve so much better than he liked Adam that there have been more women than men ever since.

Boys are a trouble. They wear out everything but soap. If I had my way, half the world would be girls and the other half dolls. My papa is so nice that I think he must have been a little girl when he was a little boy.

Man was made on the seventh day and he rested. Woman was then made and she has never rested since.

FEBRUARY.

6. Exams are over—the effects are not. However, the basketball team lets off the energy it has been storing up during exam week on Carnegie Tech, and runs away with a 44-27 victory.

7. We get a three-day vacation—Saturday, Sunday, and Monday.

10. Registration Day—Ready to begin all over again. The Seniors wonder how many diplomas they get for that $10.

11. We are sorry to state that classes begin again to-day. Grove City has their long range guns aimed to perfection and wins the day—57-48.

12. Most of the men of the college register at the Court House for the day—to observe the legal proceedings in a complicated criminal case.

13. Captain Kerr's cohorts have no trouble in taking over Westminster, 37-28.

14. The Thetas, Alpha Chis, and Alpha Gams lengthen their scrolls.

15. Sunday morning services in the chapel start to-day. However, Dr. Bell, the intended preacher, got snow-bound somewhere between here and Erie, but our own Dr. Henke had no trouble filling his shoes.

18. News Directory issue of the "Campus" makes its appearance. The students take delight in seeing their names in print.

20. Geneva is better than we thought, and wins the game 34-23.

21. As to-morrow is Sunday, George Washington's Birthday was celebrated to-day. As to-day is Saturday, we get a half-holiday—and no banquet. Westminster follows Geneva and comes out on top—33-21. We think George would not have been pleased. Kappa Kappa Gamma does what the others did a week ago.

23. Harriet Monroe reads us poetry in the chapel.

24. Harriet does it again. The Quill Club holds a tea in the afternoon—Rah! Rah! Boys!

26. Future orators strive for the Wakefield prize.

27. Inter-church World Team comes and abides with us for a few days. Note—This is not a basketball team.

28. Geneva repeats, 30-26.

29. The Seniors over-run the Library.

MARCH.

1. To-day is the last day for submitting Senior Theses.
4. Grove City licks us again. Tough luck.
5. Freshmen lick the Sophomores—in debate.
6. Juniors hold a party at the Inn. Strictly a Leap Year affair.
8. W. and J. wins on their own floor, 36-28.
10. Retrenchment begins.
12. College Sing in chapel.
13. W. and J. wins again, 42-23. However, they almost didn't win.

The Diary of Our Own Samuel Pepys

March 13th. Up early, and to my matutinal coffee and sweetbread in good spirit, for I do think with extreme satisfaction of the number 13, it being "lucky", as the vulgar would fain say. But, withal, the day did originate with ill omen, for my cooke, he of ebony hue, did poure a beaker of coffee down my necke, which did vex me exceedingly. To Bentley Hall, and I did begin to cognitate with much force as to the state of events,, for a small animal of the feline species did trip across my path. Howbeit, I do never believe in superstitious legends, this strange occurrence did vaguely trouble my pate, it still warm of coffee. I did observe a summons on the bulletin board on entering Bentley corridor, which did command my presence in the office of my Lord Ross in Downing Street. To his office, and he did inquire whether I had no need to attend the service at the Monastery, as I did have 15 absences, whereby it is decreed only 9 to every man. I did have no excuse, and my Lord did warn me with great earnestness that I go to the service or else to the Tower. To the class, where I did encounter that abominable torture which is commonly called a quiz", but my pate devoid of any knowledge, and to the House in much ill humour. I did speak most eloquently of the feline creature, for methinks it the cause of my ill fortune. As much as we would of a shoulder of lamb, it most succulent and tasty. To the city in my Brother's petrol wagon, it being a fliver, which did bounce me exceedingly, and I did expostulate with much vigor, but he saying I would fain become accustomed to this mode of travel. I had rather my trusty steed, Xenphon, than these horseless carriages, they being much travail to one afflicted with the gout.

At eve to Library Hall, wherein the Powers have decreed all games and jousting bouts shall be held, the Gymnasium not being ready by reason of repairs. They did assemble, many knights and faire ladies, the latter arrayed in all manner of brilliant colours and latest fashion, for sport doth delight the hearts of all, except an earnest knight who does seek with much diligence to wear upon his belt a golden trinket, which is called Fi Bata Rappa among the best rank and station. They did have long rows of benches, exceeding adamant, whereupon the multitude did recline. This being my initial privilege to see the sport which all London doth like with great abundance, I did inquire as to the method employed. A goodly youth did explain the tournament, for which I did give him six-pence. The game is called "Basket Ball", the reason, methinks, because of the basket-like appurtenance which General Hammett doth carry to and fro after each round, he carrying numerous plans of attack therein, the youth did inform me. Ten sturdy youths are wont to indulge in the sport, five on each side. The fundemental objective to which each team doth aspire consists in placing a leather sphere, wherein resides much compressed atmosphere obtained at the Varsity Debate tryouts, into small ferrous hoops, as great a number of times as the gods permit. The team gaining the most attempts which are successful doth receive a concrete sphere, which is more to be desired than one of leather. The multitude assembled, the sport did begin to commence to start activities. First, a knight clothed in white raiment did appear, and did call the cognomens of each contestant, then to the center of the enclosure, and did blow a shrill whistle. The opposing teams did assemble in various places, and at the sound of a second whistle, the white knight did toss the sphere into the air between two of the tallest contestants, they being called the nucleus players. They did leap high into the air, striving to grasp the sphere, but one youth did strike it a might blow to the far end of the enclosure. Events did transpire with such great swiftness I could not comprehend all, for they did throw the leather sphere one to the other, and would fain deposit it within the ferrous hoop, but usually did calculate in error, it striking the wall and rebounding to the enclosure again. The youth did inform me that it was forbidden to flee with the sphere unless the player did bounce it upon the floor, also it is prohibited that one player strike another upon the pate or any portion of his anatomy. This action committed, they do call it a foule, and the white knight doth blow his whistle, and the team of the injured contestant doth have an opportunity to deposit the sphere within the hoop, it counting one point. A sallow youth who did contend for the Jefferson and Washington realm, did place his psuedopodia before the path of Sir Kerr, a sprightly lad who doth play exceeding well for Allegheny, and did cause him to recline upon the floor with much gusto. This vexed the white knight much, and he did condemn it, and say it were a personal foule, for the man did cause the person of Sir Kerr, whom they do call "Snivy" in playful mood, to loose his accustomed equilibrium. At length, the players absent of breath, they did constitute a temporary cessation of hostilities, and the contenders did retire to lower regions, to indulge in counsel and rest. General Hammett did retire thereto, grasping closely his basket-like appurtenance. A knight did whisper to me that perchance the good General did have refreshment therein, and I, being exceeding thirsty from much hearty advice to the players, did hasten after him. I did inquire whether he might have ale whereby a weary spirit could indulge, but he did advise me to consult Sir Kant's Categorical Imperative, which I know not.

To my bench again, dryer but much wiser. After some time, the contestants did appear, and engaged with one another for the sphere. Allegheny did deposit two times the sphere in the desired aperture, the knights proclaiming with great glee. I did become most vexed, when a corpulent knight who did recline on the bench above me, did push his knees with great insistence into my dorsal anatomy, compelling me to strike a faire lady below me on her honored pate. I did call loudly to the white knight, and hastened upon the enclosure, explaining to him that a foule had been committed upon my dorsal anatomy with malice afore thought. But, lo, he did shout at me in most unkindly manner he would commit me to the outside, and did call me harsh names. Several youths did give vent to most rude jests, they threatening to kick me in the slats, as though I were a couch. So to my bench again, but I do understand it not, for if a foule be a foule, why is it not a foule when done to an honorable gentlemen? Methinks I shall make notice of him to my Lord Crawford, withal a just and fair Lord. I did enjoy with satisfaction the march of sundry Frosh, who did appear when the players retired for counsel. They did march in a labyrinth to and fro, calling loudly "Alle ghee, Alle ghee," which did synchronize with the movements of their pedal extremities, and at length,, they did sing several ditties, withal well done. The distant contenders did finally gain more points, and the white knight did blow his whistle, it a sign, and the sport ceased. So to the highway, well pleased, and to the House, where I did hear the merits of the sport discussed. After much merriment, to my couch, and did commune with Morpheus most soundly. —F. M. P., 20.

Had Found the Method

A few days ago, a young man took his best girl a boquet of flowers. The young woman was so pleased that she threw her arms around the young man's neck and kissed him. He rose and started to go.

"I'm sorry I offended you," she said.

"Oh, I'm not offended", he replied, "I was just going back for more flowers."

Ain't It the Truth?

"What's this?" said the angry parent as the child handed her a familiar looking box.

"That's what you sent me to the store for, wasn't it?"

"I said cold cream, child."

"Well, that's the coldest I could get, mamma."

Just Like 'em

"Jubelirer," queried Dad Ling, one day in Physics class, "what is the difference between electricity and lightning?"

"You don't have to pay nothing for lightning," answered Juby.

Leap Year Results

Statistics gathered from many parts of the country indicate that women are taking advantage of the leap year privilege. The number of marriages shows a considerable increase over the total for the corresponding period of last year. In New York City the increase is 20 per cent while in Dallas, Texas, a still better showing is made. No statistics are available from the Hulings Hall precincts, but rumor has it that it is quite high; it has been reported that they are even willing to pay the license fee.

The Fussers Club at the University of Pittsburgh has drawn up a petition to be sent to Washington. It is a protest against the Daylight light Saving Plan. Shoving the clock up an hour may differ in its effects on the city worker and the tiller of the soil. We also know that it doesn't cut any ice with the night watchman—he can sleep under any circumstances—but !!!! it sure wrecks havoc with the Romeos. We're back of you Fussers!!!!

The Dansant

A One Act Drama.

Here is the setting. Girls more than plenty.
The Senior women of nineteen-twenty—
There's jazz in the vic, there's wax on the floor.
Wrist watches point to a quarter past four.
Action begins—"Be informal but nice"—
When Dougan appeared, slipped and broke the ice.
What a lovely crowd! (It is safe betting
A lot have come for what they're not getting).
(Now, um—Boys, we want these teas to be just as—um—informal as possible, yes, indeed. We don't want them to be at all—um—stiff).

"Chocolate or tea?" "Why a sandwich, please".
(Those china cups make them weak at the knees).
"When do we dance? Can I have one and two?"
"Wish he'd come and get it over, don't you?"
Our ante-climax;—"'E's 'ere, bless 'his 'eart!"
(Oh, !!!!, what a little joy killer thou art)
Behind the piano Dick hollers, "Fire! Fire!"
("It's just the principle of the thing. Everything agreed on and arranged, then one of those new rules made for the occasion. Wait 'til next week——")

At the piano, in notes true or false,
They're singing now, "Waltz that Naw-aw-ty Waltz".
Climax proper—"He's gone! Say, bo, quick,
Can the piano and start up the vic".
False alarm, here he is, back on the run,
But nobody's dancing—Didn't catch one.
Tragic Dénouement. Who's going to quit?
This be our motto—"Survive, all ye fit".
Lots of handshaking, the girls in a stew,
Pourers deserting, and sandwiches few.
("We've had such a lovely time—Delightful".—"Who is the president?"—"Well, I'm sorry Mr. Gordon is ill, but we really had a lovely time without him". "Charming hostesses". "Good-bye".)

Remains of the party—just a few more,—
Two groups divided by boku much floor.
Dinner bells ringing, a quarter past six;
Everyone wrathy; a terrible fix.
("So mortifying") "He's going again!"
Gentle suggestion, and exit our men.

Stage not deserted, a council of war;
There's jazz in the vic; there's wax on the floor.
Curtain falls loudly; a lack of applause:
Very mysterious. What is the cause?
Critical comment. We all must confess
As a tea, not a dance—an enormous success.

The Freshmen come so fat, so fat,
So round and plump, and heavy
They form a pretty picture at
Cochran Hall
Every fall.

The Freshmen leave so thin, so thin,
So wan and white and near all in
That one would wonder if there'd been
A famine there at Cochran Hall
Since fall.

Sweet life—that's the college student's,
How pleasant the path he strays.
Surely wisdom and virtue and prudence
Will follow him all of his days.

He works and has brain congestion
He labors and digs and crams
His life is a long drawn question
Between the monthly exams.

Glee Club Trip

Even old Jupe Pluvius stopped work to listen to twenty-six happy young Alleghenians as they sang the swan song to Meadville and left for a four concert trip to Pittsburgh, Tarentum, and Sharon. There was not a thing to mar the pleasure of the departure, except that Bates almost caused a jamb when he tried to put his person, suit case and bass viol on the train at once.

The switchmen were out on a strike, the brakemen and engineers were talking strike, so the club thought it appropriate to strike up a tune, so they went through Sharon singing "Nearer, My God, to Thee", Although the music was empyreal, the club manifested characteristics of perfectly material mortals when the grand ensemble chirped "When do we eat?" However, Manager Preston had his ears tuned for this strain, and satisfied the hungry mob by a special luncheon at the Youngstown "Y". Some of the men didn't get enough water at the table, so retired to the pool to finish up the job.

The mayor of Pittsburgh was out of town when the club arrived in the Smoky City, so he was not at the station to greet the Allegheny songsters, but Ford Miller was there waiting for us. The boys made a foolish move and sang "How dry I am". Jupe Pluvius thereupon decided to do something to stop the wailing, so sent down a drenching rain, and the club decided that "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" would be more appropriate.

At 8:15 P. M., about four hundred residents of the North Side had the pleasure of seeing twenty-five men and Jubelirer walk out onto the platform and breathe such rapturous sounds as would lift a sad mortal spirit from this mundane sphere, in words that would kill almost anyone in range.

"Heavenly", said the proud mother of one of the performers. "Yes", said her neighbor, "I agree that it is unearthly". Meredith read "Sam Magee" by request. The concert surely was a howling success.

At noon on the next day, the club assembled in the Louis XIV private dining room at McCreery's, and dined like the directors of the Standard Oil Company. After dinner, a short time was spent in showing Carlson and Fleming the skyscrapers and the sights of a big city. Then to the Davis. A young actress breezed out before the footlights and started to sing—"I want someone to play with me". This was too much for Davie Dunn, and he jumped up and yelled, "I'm with you". Needless to remark, the other members of the club used their influence to prevent his arrest.

On the way to Tarentum, that evening, the men witnessed a real blaze, when the powers of the Inferno broke loose at the Transcontinental Oil Works, and sent supernumary drums of gasoline into the atmos. Bates suggested that we get a few drums for the orchestra. (The doctor said he would probably recover). Tarentum went into hysterics over the concert—most anyone would, especially when Meredith read "Sam Magee" by request. The club sojourned to Hudepohl's, where hot coffee and sandwiches brought them back to normal.

Before the concert in Emory Church in Pittsburgh, the men spent some valueless time in erasing the unsightless spots from their stiff fronts, and tried to bolster up the "soup and fish" outfit for another evening. That concert was one to remember—an audience of twelve hundred sat with mouths open (probably to relieve the pressure on their ears), as our sons of Pan filled the big auditorium with sounds such as would make Siren blush with envy. Meredith read "Sam Magee" by request. Following the concert, the club adjourned to the Rittenhouse and tripped the light fantastic to the syncopated harmony of a jazzy orchestra. Bates and Fleming, rather than dance, walked the streets of the East End until 2 A. M. At that, they beat the other members of the club to bed by several hours.

Well, just one more concert, so all boarded the P. & L. E. and headed for Sharon. Leader Miller had made a mistake in making out the budget of the quantity of music needed for the trip, so part of the excess was dispersed between Pittsburgh and Sharon, much to the annoyance of several fellow-passengers who wanted to sleep, not appreciative of the fact that music of "75 cents a seat" calibre was being handed out gratis.

At Sharon, the pianistic art of McCafferty brought forth much comment. They evidently liked his execution, as several said they were in favor of it. Meredith read "Sam Magee" by request.

The birds were chirping "Home, Sweet Home", and old Sol was peeking over the horizon as the club slowly climbed up Park Avenue and hit for the hay. Thus another memorable event passed, but it still remains indelible in the minds of the members of the Glee Club, except Bates, and he is handicapped in that respect.

ADVERTISING

¶ In soliciting advertisements for this book we have found the general sentiment to be that the merchants buy space from motives of charity. They consider it a duty to support college publications, but place very little confidence in the practical value of the advertising. For this reason they deserve our patronage and our thanks. ¶ But this is not an ideal state of affairs. It is our duty to the college to make merchants realize that this advertising has a practical value. There is only one way to do this:—Patronize advertisers in College Publications and tell them why you are doing it.

Here's to Love

The Only Fire Against Which There is No Insurance

Here's to those who love us
And here's to those who don't,
A smile for those who are willing to
And a tear for those who won't.

Here's to the lassies we've loved, my lad
Here's to the lips we've pressed;
For kisses and lassies, like liquor in glasses,
The last is always the best.

Here's to the chaperone
May she learn from Cupid
Just enough blindness
To be sweetly stupid.

Here's to one and only one,
And may that one be he
Who loves but one and only one,
And may that one be me.

A book of verses underneath the bough,
A jug of wine, a loaf of bread and thou,
Beside me singing in the wilderness,
Oh, wilderness were paradise now.

They say there's microbes in a kiss
The rumor is most rife;
Come lady dear, and make of me, and invalid for life.

Entering the World Electrical

THE graduate of today enters a world electrical.

Gathered from the distant waterfalls or generated by the steam turbine, electric power is transmitted to the busiest city or the smallest country place.

Through the co-ordination of inventive genius with engineering and manufacturing resources, the General Electric Company has fostered and developed to a high state of perfection these and numerous other applications.

And so electricity, scarcely older than the graduate of today, appears in a practical, well developed service on every hand.

Recognize its power, study its applications to your life's work, and utilize it to the utmost for the benefit of all mankind.

Some Peachy Party

Oh, the Seniors had a party,
(A peachy, peachy party),
And they had it over in old Hulings Hall;
Everybody was so hearty,
The music was so tarty,
And it wasn't like the "good old days" at all.

All the girls wore party dresses,
(Such peachy party dresses),
And the men came out in evening dress the same;
And everyone was happy,
And everyone was snappy,
And every senior there was in the game.

There was lots of party dancing,
(Such peachy party dancing),
And they had one blessed chaperon, you know;
And there were no hawk-eyes glancing,
To see improper dancing,
So of course there wasn't any there, quite so!

We like that kind of party,
(A peachy, peachy party);
Like the one the Seniors had in Hulings Hall,
Where the folks are all so hearty,
The music strong and tarty,
It was better than the "good old days". That's all.

Allegheny College

Founded in 1815

A high grade college devoted to the arts and sciences. Adequate equipment in buildings, libraries and laboratories. Allegheny was founded over a century ago. It has the advantages of the small college; attention to the individual, close personal relation of student and teacher, helpful student friendships. The situation is healthful and attractive, on a hillside overlooking a wide sweep of charming valley in the foothills of the Alleghenies. The campus has remarkable natural beauty.

The college is aggressive and thoroughly modern in its organization. Over fifty elective courses are offered. The college has good traditions and an unsurpassed location. It has a strong faculty, and the expenses are reasonable.

A Few From the History Room

It is always a sign of spring when the Christmas jewelry begins to turn green.

The pope was the only person whose feet all princes kissed—and that was all—people didn't have such a strict attitude toward hygiene then.

When Charles the Bald ascended the throne, it was a case of falling heir (hair).

Now, when Henry the Fifth and Mary the Four-fifths ascended the throne——.

The jury was out and could not reach a decision. Supper time came, and the foreman of the jury sent out the following order: "Bring in eleven suppers and one bale of hay. We have evelen men and one jack-ass in here".

Senior (strolling over the campus)—"Gee, this is a sloppy morning".

Blushing coed—"I like slush,—ur—uh—underfoot."

Ting—"Can you tell me the kind of illumination they had on the ark?"
Ling—"Ark lights."

May we have those in our arms that we love in our hearts.

The College Dance

Exposition Park

April 24, 1920

While the rest of the faculty were minding their affairs in Meadville, the most of them with a huge throng of Alleghenians started for Conneaut Lake. It was the night of April twenty-fourth. It was not a bathing party, that is, not an aquatic one, although they did bathe neck high (or neck low) in the chaperones' limpid glares. Verily, all the exponents of the terpsiochorean art were in attendance.

After traveling for two hours and a half on a half hour trip, the destination was reached. The party was in high spirits, but when it reached the dance hall, it received a sudden setback. The refrigeration was excellent, and the warm blood as it raced through the veins of the trippers of the light fantastic cooled rapidly; why even the chaperones acquired an I see stare.

Suffice it to say that before going to the dance, all the fair maidens from the hall (which is symbolic of that which pertains to the sanctity and uprightness of maidenhood) were subjected to a grueling discourse on proper and improper gyrations, and warned to "break" when the referee gave the signal; clinching was taboo; neither could there be any soft low music, for the minds of the children, so considered, are not able to restrain their desires to acquire the blues and seek solace when a melancholy strain slides from the fingers of of the dusky followers of Pan. MOONLIGHT DANCES, did you say? Well, I hope to die! Do you suppose any God fearing faculty chaperones would permit a full moon to look down upon the young women of a Methodist school, located as it were, in this dry and arid country. Besides, Dad Ling wasn't there with his X-ray. But, oh, if he could have seen his understudies strolling 'neath the moon (it was only half-tanked), listening to the soft lilt of the waves and the whispering winds in the evergreens which merged into harmony subtly sweet. Convulsions!!!!!

The chaperones took a few hot slants at the orchestra, and thus warmed them up sufficiently to start the big "wrastle". Immediately began the taking of the census. The instructor at the head of the Bugs Department, the one who parts his head in the middle, together with the the worthy gentleman who derives the formula for determining the number of feet in a two-step, and the velocity of a fox trot, and the Dean of Women's Ward, put their heads together and drew up ream after ream of paper, upon which, as prosecuting attorneys, they were to bring forth the indictments. When the gong sounded at the end of three minutes (or so), they went to their corners and waited the second round when they mixed furiously in the center of the ring. The Dean was so enraged that she attached her binoculars then and there; nor did she unfasten them till the last shoe string was shaken.

The dance went well, except where one encountered one of the maids subject to the omnipotent empress; these insisted upon the fourteen inch interval, reminder of army regulations, entirely oblivious of the fact that between a dancing couple there usually are four feet. The ladies also obeyed the dictum of the power that is, and rested all their weight on the man's arm, but after three of four of them he didn't mind, because his arm became numb. And so many were reported for moving their feet in funny ways that, were their names read aloud, one would think that some fraternities were calling the roll.

The wintry atmosphere so overpowered the chaps that shortly after the arrival they began to discuss plans for leaving. The party must break up early for the young people were having too good a time (some were even smoking cigarettes). Enjoyment was not to be considered. The question arose as to whether they should close at 10:30 or 10:25. The minority won, and the home waltz was played shortly after the first dance was over.

Everyone hurried to the cars so that the last car should leave the park not later than 10:45. Those arriving too late for seats parked themselves in the aisles. Then back to imprisonment for the young women. The men had their young hearts gladdened somewhat by having milady tell them that she had a perfectly wonderful time. Later they collected in groups here and there and cussed and discussed the powers that be. The men finished the evening's entertainment at the nickel hop.

The whole affair was a laudable project, and the committee, composed of Barcus, Carlson, Coulsan, Dickey, Gordon, McMurren, and Preston as chairman, should be commended for their efforts. It was the first college dance accessible to any college student. Let's have them oftener in the future.

They Were Seven

Prex met a little college boy,
A little saint, 'tis said,
His heart was pure and white. He wore
A halo 'round his head.

Said Prex, "You've been a naughty boy!
Your sin has found you out!"
(We refer to the little brown book,
For anyone in doubt).

"Your comrades in this deed", quoth he,
"How many may you be?"
"How many? Seven in all", he said,
"Who wants to disagree?"

"And where are they? I pray you tell."
He answered, "Prexy dear,
One of us lives up there, you know,
And six of us right here".

"You say that one of you lives there,
Six here—and with two others
That I know of. — Why where's the Math
Of you and your six brothers?"

"You're kidding me, my little man,
And though it all sounds fine,
If two live in another place,
Then surely ye are nine."

"Nay, Prexy", spoke the youth once more,
"We have a proof for you.
Come, we will slide the window up,
There were no other two!"

"Oh, yes there were! There surely were,
As I may hope in heaven!"
'Twas throwing words away, for still
The little man would have his will
And vouched, "Nay, we were seven".
