My dear Miss Tarbell

I wanted to write you before this, but too many events crowded into my life — with my large family and many interests and duties. — I have been so very much interested in your articles in the new American Magazine that I want to send you just a word and tell you how very much I appreciate them. Love pondering where in your busy life in office and at the desk you found opportunity to make such true observations of life.

I am also wondering how much of it the average woman understands about much that you say. — I am sure many must feel a note of response in their heart & mind and ^{it will} make them think. The woman's problems in our generation is great, but women can solve it each individually if they want to. There is opportunity for all if they only know how. — I am looking for your next articles with much expectation & am with high regard very sincerely yours, Bertha T. Phelps
