Allegheny Players Excel In Shakespeare Production

Capacity Audiences Fill Playshop Both Performances.

Before appreciative and enthusiastic audiences on last Saturday and Monday evenings, the Allegheny Playshop presented William Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night".

The most difficult and pretentious production since the opening of the Playshop, "Twelfth Night" again proved the skill and ability of the Allegheny Players, under the direction of Miss Alice H. Spalding and Mr. John Hulburt.

"Twelfth Night" is a very entertaining play, and most adaptable to audiences of today, even though written more than three hundred years ago. The plot deals in the main with the love of the Duke Orsino of Illyria for the Countess Olivia, who refuses him. As the story progresses, we are introduced to Sebastian and Viola, twins separated by shipwreck, each of whom believes the other dead. Viola takes service, disguised as a page, under the Duke; and immediately falls in love with him. To make matters more complicated, Olivia has to fall in love with the disguised Viola. However, everything turns out all right in the end: Sebastian appears, falls in love at first sight with Olivia, and immediately marries her. Then the Duke Orsino perceives the true worth of his page, whom he has greatly admired, and the two are married. All through the play runs the comedy strain with Sir Toby Belch, Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Maria, a servant woman, and the Fool affording amusement to all with their joviality and their propensity to play pranks on the sedate and puritanical stewart, Malvolio.

All the actors presented their characterizations in an excellent manner. The action moved fast, and the uproarious comedy kept the audience in uncontrolable laughter. Difficult as Shakespeare is, the Players performed in a manner most worthy for college students.

Scenery and costumes will prove most valuable in future productions, as all were made by students in the Drama Department, and are the property of the Playshop.

Physical Education Dep't To Institute New Winter Program

A new winter sports program will be instituted by the Physical Education Department, immediately after semesters.

Depending on the length of winter, the program will offer as electives, ice skating, coasting, skiing, and bob sledding. This will give many of the students an introduction to the various winter sports, and should prove to be one of the most popular parts of the departments yearly undertakings.

In connection with this program, the College will sponsor several winter sports parties. The skating and coasting parties will be held at the Bousson Farm where there are two skating ponds and an abundance of hills. The skiing parties will be held on some of the nearby hills. The exact place has not yet been decided upon. There will be big bonfires, and coffee will be served so that all will be well taken care of.

Juniors To Hold Dinner.

The members of the Junior class will hold a class banquet in Cochran Hall, Thursday evening, January 17.

After the banquet an informal entertainment will be featured. The banquet is being held in an effort to bring the next edition of solemn Seniors in closer contact.

The program for the affair is being carefully worked out under the direction of Amy Bishop and Arthur Vangeli. The holding of the banquet is being made possible through the cooperation of the fraternities on the hill, and the aid of Miss Gregory, the college dietician.

Women Resolve To Reduce Avoirdupois And Financial Costs

The return of the more important division of our college (referring, of course, to the women), was heralded with a flourish of new clothes, noble resolves, high aspirations (and reinforced "gifts of gab").

It was indeed a pretty sight to look upon. Never before has there been such a marked change in a group of young women (not since last year at this time, anyway).

A surprising amount of superflous avoirdupois is to slip lightly away unnoticed (it seems that the folks at home didn't appreciate the proverbial addition of twenty odd pounds). Resolutions? Plenty!! No more candy, cookies, or peanuts BETWEEN meals, no potatoes AT meals, and no hot chocolates ON dates. In fact, nothing on dates but coca colas (do we hear applause?)

Probably the most important of the resolutions is that dates absolutely will not interfere with studying. And incidentally, when and if there is time for dates, they shall not be kept waiting (longer than twenty minutes).

Furthermore, there shall be no making of "undue noise in the halls at a late hour." There will be no tacking of slips on the walls (we have no room for pictures).

The most noble resolution of all is not to fight with the "boy friend" anymore. It has definitely been decided that after all's said and done, the male is always right (and nothing can be done about it).

Also, it has been resolved not to borrow cigarettes, clothes, or money (except the roommate's), and not to waste perfectly good time which should be spent in study or catching up on sleep (lost over the Holidays); in "bull sessions" or other types of "gabbing".

Well, anyway — the intentions are good.

Women Debaters Win Grove City Tourney With Perfect Score

The Allegheny women debaters gained a perfect score in a debate tourney held at Grove City last Saturday afternoon.

Winning all of their four debates, the Allegheny representatives took top honors in a round robin debate among Grove City, Westminster, and Allegheny colleges.

Each of the participating colleges entered a negative and affirmative team to discuss the question: "Resolved, That the international sale of arms and munitions should be prohibited by international agreement".

The Allegheny affirmative was composed of Aileen Rockenbach and Betty Elliott; and the negative team was composed of Betty Bright and Betty Douglas.

Both the affirmative and the negative Allegheny teams defeated their Westminster and Grove City opponents. The Westminster orators defeated Grove City making the final rating: Allegheny 4, Westminster 2, Grove City 0.

Mr. Haberman, Mr. Boroughs, and Mr. Penner, the debate coaches of the respective teams, acted as judges of the tourney.

Famous English Actor Is Feature Of Second Lecture Course Event

Richard Kean, noted English actor who appeared here last Friday evening as the second feature of the College-Community Lecture Concert Course, was so delighted with the Playshop Theatre in Arter Hall that he insisted on giving his performance there, rather than in Ford Chapel, as scheduled.

Mr. Kean spent most of Friday afternoon in visiting the Playshop and observing the activities preparatory to the production of "Twelfth Night". He expressed great interest in the activities and was pleased by the facilities available in the Little Theatre. When it was explained that the seating capacity was not sufficiently large to accomodate all the ticket holders, Mr. Kean offered to make two appearances.

The first part of the program consisted of four characters from Shakespeare. These readings, which were in costume, were Hamlet's soliloquy at the close of Act II, the part of Gloucester from the opening scene of "Richard III", Cardinal Woolsey's speech to Cromwell from "Henry VIII", and a speech by Shylock from Act III of "The Merchant of Venice".

The second part of Mr. Kean's program consisted of several characterizations. In this part he made his changes of costume and of make-up on the stage in the view of the audience. The impersonations included "The Old Bachelor", Dickens' Uriah Heep and Alfred Jingle, Svengali, and an original characterization, "Peter, the Old Miser".

Faculty Definitely Decides On Unlimited Cut System

Fifty-Four Members Now Compose Allegheny Singers In New Selection

Prior to the Christmas vacation, Professor Morton J. Luvaas announced the personnel of his 1934-35 Allegheny Singers.

The "A Cappella" choir will include 54 students, 27 men and 27 women. Those selected to membership in this select body on the Campus are.

First bass—John Kemp, Robert Byers, Duane Good, Gene Wasson, John Yeany, William Hershelman, Robert Lyons.

Second bass—Armour Hillstrom, Alfred VanAndel, Robert Ralston, Leon Gregg, John Loescher, Richard Bail, Archie Tate, Robert Edwards.

First tenor—Everett Hendricks, Milton Maloney, Richard Horn, Raymond Robertson, Robert Sowers, Robert Dunkle.

Second tenor—Max LaBorde, David Martin, Ernest McKay, Keith Hutchison, Fred Neiman, Philip Jacobus.

First soprano—Emma Robertson, Martha Shreiner, Dorothy Philips, Lynette Rupert, Lois Richards, Mary Calvin, Rachel Miller.

Second soprano—Ruth Crawford, Sarah Anne Davis, Virginia Kane, Mildred Jane Anderson, Mary Lou Waha, Winifred Strick.

First alto — Margaret VanAken, Louise Gardner, Annabelle Broomall, Clarissa Duff, Mary Lee Knapp, Betty Seibert, Betty Meier.

Second alto—Eleanor Ruth, Julia Ferguson, Ruth Myers, Elvira Peffer, Marian Gray, Lillian Peebles.

Always forced to turn away nearly 100 applicants for the Allegheny Singers, Professor Luvaas solved the problem by organizing a second choir this fall. The new group, which is composed largely of freshmen, has been drilled with the same care that has made the Allegheny Singers famous, and the supplementary choir has furnished music for the chapel programs for the past three months.

Commemorate Stephen Foster Day In Chapel Program Mon., Jan. 14

An interesting chapel program given by Prof. Morten J. Luvaas and Mrs. Ethel Moore Miller featured Monday's chapel.

A short summary of the life of America's greatest composer, Stephen Foster, was given by Mr. Luvaas. The disadvantages which Stephen Foster overcame were given special attention. Mrs. Miller then sang several of his compositions, among them were: "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair", "Beautiful Dreamer", "My Old Kentucky Home", and "Massa in the Cold Cold Ground". Students were invited to join her in the chorus of the last two compositions.

Vacation Closing Dates Also Changed.

The unrestricted cut-system which the faculty proposed before the Christmas holidays was approved by that group on Friday, with the provision that one hour's credit will be forfeited for the taking of one or more cuts on either the day before or the day after vacation periods.

Students of the upper level, that is, juniors and seniors, and lower level students on "A" averages will be permitted an unlimited amount of cuts beginning next term. Freshmen and sophomores not having "A" averages will be governed by the cut-system now in effect; and upperclassmen who are on probation will work out their schedule of allowed cuts with Deans Evelyn Miller and J. R. Schultz.

A professor is allowed to exercise individual judgment in regulating the permissable cuts for any student in his course, but so far as the registrar's office is concerned the number of absences granted seniors, juniors, and "A" students in the lower level is indefinite.

By placing the responsibility for class attendance upon the student, the faculty expects to have fewer absences than under the present system. The new method is gradually finding favor with colleges and universities all over the United States. President William P. Tolley is scheduled to explain the new plan in chapel on Monday.

Penalize Prolonged Vacations.

Though the main outline of the new cut-system was approved by the faculty during the second week in December, it was not adopted in final form until last Friday because a satisfactory method of preventing students with unlimited cuts from extending their holiday periods had not been agreed upon.

Discarding the suggestion of a five dollar fine for each class cut on the day before or after the Thanksgiving Christmas, or Easter recess, the faculty decided to penalize this offense with the loss of an hour's credit. However, a student is allowed absences

Caflischites Agree To Pay Heavily For Broken Resolutions

The inception of a New Year at Caflisch Hall—stamping ground of intellectual behemoths—was the occasion for an expression of noble resolves and purposeful expectations on the part of many erring inmates.

Motivated by a subtly ulterior purpose, a group of contrite Freshmen residing in one of the dormitory sections, solemnly agreed to the following covenant, effective during the month of January:

We, the undersigned, agree, without any reservations whatsoever, to abide by these regulations, namely;

That for any infraction of rules listed herein, a fine, as indicated below, shall be paid in negotiable coin to the treasurer of the resolution committee.

(1) For each word of vividly expressive profanity, a charge of one cent will be made.

(2) Salacious stories will require five cents to placate the committeemen.

(3) The breaking of the peace during study hours shall be atoned for by a ten cent fine.

Notice: An arbitrary fine shall be inexorably imposed upon anyone who by his injudicious actions, induces another to resort to villification, calumniation, or any other like offense.

(4) Disturbing another while in a dormant state of repose—i. e. sleeping—will result in the assessment of a five cent fine against the miscreant.

(5) The funds accruing from these punitive regulations shall be used to finance a party upon the termination of exams.

Such is the spirit of 1935!

By capitalizing on the natural tendencies and proclivities of mankind, a source of revenue, which may run into millions, has been derived.

And so it is that the stalwart Freshmen, hitherto regarded as impeccable, have succumbed to a corrupting mercenary lure.

All of which is indicative of one thing or another, probably both.

Time To Take Inventory.

At this time of the year, every merchant is desirous of learning just where he stands in relation to his business and he sets aside a certain time to find out by carefully calculating what his gains have been in the past year and how much exchangeable material he has on hand. He takes little for granted and rather assumes that his business needs a thorough overhauling.

College, to a certain extent, is our business for four years, or for the length of time we devote to it. We lay aside a certain part of our lives in preparation for the rest of it, and it is only in justice to ourselves, as well as to those who are responsible for our welfare, that we make the best profit out of that business. And so, the first weeks of school in the New Year is, perhaps, the best time to "take stock" and make our plans for the remainder of the school year; to see whether we have done our share in the college world or whether the debit side of the ledger does not over-balance the credit side.

If college is the place where we only prepare for actual living, our college record should show a sufficient amount on the credit side to overbalance the debit side. And since we can only take out of a thing in proportion to what we put into it, we can benefit ourselves as well as the college, by lending our best efforts to make 1935 Allegheny's banner year.

Secretarial Courses Praised.

The administration must be congratulated upon its liberal resolve to add secretarial courses to the curriculum next fall. This is a sane attempt to solve the problem the college graduate finds after leaving school, which problem is greatly increased by present business conditions. Those who are preparing for professional work, or who have work assured to them upon graduation, perhaps will have no immediate need for such courses. But those who have attended Allegheny for the primary purpose of this liberal arts college, the acquiring of culture, will appreciate this aid toward developing their business ability.

Mr. C. O. Strahley, of the personnel department of the Texas Company, who interviews hundreds of applicants for jobs every year, expressed great approbation for this step. In discussing the ability of the average college graduate to step into the business world, Mr. Strahley denied the advantage of such a person in the obtaining of a job over a high school graduate who has had four years experience. How can business firms, especially in times such as these, take on inexperienced men, who know nothing at all of office work, when all they need to do is to call on their high school graduates, who have been working their way up from office boy and have become acquainted with the work? The true value of the college graduate must appear later; but at the start he is decidedly handicapped.

Mr. Strahley suggested that every college student, who at any time will want to enter business, study and become proficient in shorthand, typewriting, and accounting. Business firms want college men, but for the most part they cannot afford to train them for work and put up with their deficiencies.

There was one other point Mr. Strahley mentioned that might prove of value to those who will be forced in the future to look for work. He said that he wished every college could have some kind of inspection bureau, which would see that their men were well groomed, attractively dressed, with hair brushed, pants pressed, and shoes shined, and that they carried themselves with good posture and bearing. The habit formed in school would not be lost. Then, accustomed to presenting a good appearance, they would have nothing to worry about on that score when being interviewed for a job. From this remark it may be gathered that any applicants for office work do not look as well as they might when they try to find a job, and that personal appearance has much weight in the balance of whether one gets a position or not. It would seem that the combination of personality and appearance as developed and habituated in college and trained secretarial ability is a hard one to beat.

Under instruction from the Board of Trustees, no student who has not fulfilled all obligations to the College will be permitted to enter examinations. This rule covers all bills owed to the Treasurer's Office, the Book Store, the Library, etc.

The Registrar's Office requests that all work cards for second semester be deposited in the office by January 26. Signatures must be secured for elective courses not taken the first semester; for any change made in section; advisers approval for all schedules totaling more than 16 hours.

The German Club, which does not meet this month, will have its first meeting of next semester on Thursday, February 7. All members are requested to attend, and those who have not paid their dues are urged to do so at that time.

Radio Highlights

The editor will take over this column, for this week only, to relay some of the experiences encountered during the numerous wanderings in little old New York . . . Broadway was at its best. The gay lights along Tin Pan Alley, Syncopation Ave., Melody Lane, The Boulevard of Broken Dreams, or the Old Ox Road, or whatever you wish to call it, had plenty of reason to flicker during the last part of the '34 season.

Had the pleasure of meeting and hearing the charming Loretta Lee, CBS vocalist de-luxe, who occupied so much space in this paper at the first of the school year. Advance notices fail to adequately describe this petite songstress. (If the whole Chi Rho chapter had migrated to New York to hear her, instead of only two, the Taft Hotel would have probably become the resident chapter house.) Popular because of her magnetic voice, Loretta possesses an even more magnetic personality. 'Tis no wonder she has scaled the heights . . . Though she was supposed to be "off duty" after her afternoon broadcast, she was gracious enough to render a request number for two roving (now raving) Alleghenians . . . During the conversation that ensued, we learned that this song-stylist, possessor of dark titan tresses, has had but five days of vacationing in two years . . . She keeps a scrap book in which reposes the clipping which appeared in "The Campus". (Ginny Moore can now appreciate the fact that radio celebreties have read her column) . . . Best described by the tune "You're All That I Want You to Be", Loretta, the main reason for the success and popularity of George Hall's orchestra, pleases equally well with sweet, tearful, or "hot" tunes.

Witnessed as novel a program imaginable, when Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians were heard "going to town" in all sorts of ways. Here is music for collegians, by collegians, in a real collegiate manner. From clowning and cutting up with Dinah, to a serious presentation of Revell's "Bolero", they are unsurpassable. With the tricky trumpeter Johnny Davis, the daffy drummer Poley McClintock, the singing smoothies, Babs, Priscilla, and Rosemary, they are the topnotchers of musical entertainment . . . By the way, have you read Fred's arrangement of "Parked on Observatory Hill"?

Also attended the Phi Sigma dance. Cab Calloway, Mal Hallett, Paul Sabin, and George Hall battled it out for supremacy. After howling himself hoarse the Cab proved to be rather a disappointment. George Hall and Mal Hallett easily stole the show, with the same old Loretta Lee, again snaring her share of the spotlight.

Ushered in the New Year with Glen Grey and his Casa-Lomas. The best in orchestral entertainment. Glen, by the way, was the first band to broadcast over the CBS for 1935. This was the second year in a row that this honor went to the Maestro.

"Twelfth Night"

Following as it does closely upon the inordinate repetition of "The Fan" and several other presentations, the choice of "Twelfth Night" for production was a fortunate selection. This play is one of Shakespeare's most pleasing and delightful comedies, embracing as it does, both the humorous possibilities of entangled situations and the comedy of character at which he is most expert.

Here is Shakespeare in a good humor, laughing at mankind, not malignantly or bitterly, but with the genuine pleasure that one might get from seeing that all men are more or less demented, he no more nor less than they. The aim of the play is to make us laugh both at the theme of love and at the follies of humanity, not as a critic, but as a participant who enjoys life as it is.

Necessarily, in our time, the burden of acceptability of a Shakespearean production lies with the actors. Have they in interpretation, successfully followed and presented the spirit and intent of the author? Have they extracted within reasonable limits. the fullness and richness from the parts which they play, and do they without completely submerging their own personalities enter sufficiently into character?

It afforded much pleasure and no small degree of relief to find upon viewing "Twelfth Night" that this criticism, would namely consist of commendation. Within our range of experience and associations with the playshop activities it is difficult to recall any presentation which has been more eminently satisfactory.

In the character of Viola, Shakespeare gives us a woman who combines the perfection of "self-sacrificing love" with the almost elfish enjoyment of unusual predicaments. A mad-cap and sprightly adventuress.

This, Laura Beebe as Viola, achieves in a most convincing and intelligent manner. While her words may smack of sentimentality yet she leaves the impression that, after all, she is only a girl out on a lark and enjoying it immensely, but never allowing us to forget that she is the only person involved who is really in love. Miss Beebe excellently retained the sweetness and delicacy of the most appealing character in the play.

In contrast to the patient, resigned love of Viola, is the aristocratic and impetuous affection of Olivia. Kathryn Miller gave a finely finished portrait of this basically insincere woman, and excellently interpreted the fundamental implication of the character of Olivia that a woman's affections, however strong, are sentiments when they run smooth and become passions only when they are opposed.

The definite comedy characters, Sir Toby Belch and Sir Andrew Aguecheek, were played with gusto and enthusiasm that was most invigorating. Mr. Macedo as Sir Toby was satisfactory, yet at times also appeared to suffer from straining after the part.

Mr. Murray as Sir Andrew evidently played with much pleasure and appreciation the character of a simple old goof. Sir Andrew stood out at times as a character being played to the full. Mr. Murray's entire appearance was as expressive of the character as were his words.

There existed in the attitude taken toward Malvolio the basis for the only real criticism of the play, and this is perhaps dependent upon an opinion of his position. If Malvolio is to serve merely as a comparison and as a butt of buffonery then the production was justified in exalting the comical aspect of his bloated egotism and self-regard. This is evidently the view that was assumed. The character as a result was compressed below its natural value. His good manners, evident intelligence and efficiency were submerged beneath the emphasis placed on his conceit. Mr. Gilmore, however, must be complimented on the effectiveness with which this part was delivered.

Indeed, the entire cast presented the play in a most effective manner, apparently never forgetting that the whole affair was a matter of fun and that a little laughing up the sleeve was not amiss.

Frosh Basketeers Drop Another Close Game Before Oil City

Keeping up their tradition the Frosh again lost by a one point margin. Falling before a spirited Oil City High School attack the yearlings were defeated 26-25 last Tuesday evening.

Had it not been for a brilliant attack in the second half they would have been badly snowed under. Outscored 14-7 in the first half, they came back to score 18 points. Meyers, led the scoring with 10 points. He was given good support by the other four men and they came very close to pulling the game out of the fire.

Varsity Quintet To Engage Thiel Tomorrow Evening

The 'Gator court squad will travel this week to meet the strong Thiel club on Saturday at Greenville. Thiel will present the same team that defeated Allegheny twice last year.

To date the Lutherans have won four games in as many starts. They have defeated Youngstown, the Alumni, Fenn, and Slippery Rock, and should give the Blue and Gold a busy evening.

Eddie Snyder, football luminary, is carrying on with his laurels on the court, being responsible for the victory over Slippery Rock.

Allegheny will present the same starting lineup that they have used all season, but there are several Freshmen who are quite sure to see service in the game..

The game will be the last this semester. The team does not play again until after exams when they meet Fenn and Oberlin away. During the period of examinations the team will practice either in the High School gym or the gym at the Bethesda Home.

The Freshmen meet Erie East in a return engagement on January 31. This should prove to be a good game as the Frosh were defeated by the Erie outfit earlier by but one point. Since then the Frosh have been showing marked improvement and stand in a position to pull a surprise on the High School club.

Swimmers Open New Pool Season Friday At Case

Friday the newly instituted Allegheny sport, swimming, will have its debut. The 'Gator mermen travel to Cleveland to meet the Case team in a dual meet. This will be a tough assignment for the first meet as Case has not lost a meet in the past two years.

The team was largely picked from the participants in the intra-mural swimming meet held before the holidays. Of the 18 men who will participate in the meet, 11 will be taking part in their first intercollegiate competition.

The students must not expect a championship team this year as it takes time to build up such a team. However, all the meets will be interesting in that the competition will be of the best. Coach Arthur Daniels has been pushing his group to the limit during the past week and expects to present a strong group of pool splashers.

The schedule:
Jan. 18—Case, away.
Feb. 19—Slippery Rock, away..
Feb. 22—Oberlin, home.

Yearling Cagers Dogged By Hoodoo Of One Point Loss

Nominated for the unfortunates of the Allegheny sportworld—the freshman basketball team.

To date the yearling basketeers have engaged in four contests and have dropped every contest by the smallest of margins. Three contests have gone against them by the slim difference of one point. Opening their season against Erie East, one of the best high school representatives of Western Pa., the frosh battled bravely only to lose out in the last minute of play by one point. Franklin High then caused the Frosh to suffer their second one point defeat after the plebes had held the upper hand until the last few minutes. Meadville's Bulldogs then eked out a 3 point decision. But the one point jinx was not broken. Oil City's champions managed to plant the third loss by that margin on to the freshmen, after they had rallied during the second half to make a desperate attempt to smash their hoodo.

Coach Tippin's yearlings have been practicing hard since the start of the New Year to produce more power to break into the win column.

Hard luck really seems to be dogging their heels, as they have a great deal of ability. Tippin has compounded a fast, smooth working "first" five and has capable reserves, but to date, though they have produced several thrillers, they have not clicked long enough to cop a win.

They feel confident that they will soon hit their stride, and once they do they will be hard to stop. Cappe and Pardee are proving themselves excellent varsity material, while McFarland, Dennison, Shafer, and Myers add to a strong lineup.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the College basketball team, I would like to enlighten the student body as to the "under-emphasis" of athletics here on the Campus. In short, the matter I refer to is that of the team not returning to school early for practice.

While not caring to make excuses for any losses in the future, it is hardly fair to ask us to be in condition and in mid-season form to combat teams who play over the holidays and to start on a fourteen game grind. Surely basketball earns enough, through playing more away games than those at home, to pay for a week or ten days board for ten players. Then again it is unfair to have to push ourselves to the limit physically to get in condition twice while trying to do our school work creditably. Now the faculty, students, and alumni of Allegheny pride themselves in intelligent reflection and good sportsmanship. But why the inconsistency in this matter?

Penn State and Grove City, two non-subsidation schools had their teams playing during the vacation. They followed us in non-emphasis but not in "under-emphasis". Cannot we follow two perfectly good schools in their solution of their situation; that of having a trip during vacation that we take at a later date, or by playing scheduled games on our own floor.

Sincerely,
Willard Berger.

Theta's Win Volleyball.

To Kappa Alpha Theta went the title of volleyball champions after they defeated the Alpha Gamma Deltas 55-32 in the finals.

Winning from the Alpha Chis, 69-10, the Alpha Gams merited the finalists ranking with the Thetas who had downed the Kappas.

Shuffle board and ping pong will be the next competitive inter-sorority sports, which will start this week.

Thus far tournaments have been completed in tennis, archery, deck tennis, and volley ball. Standings will be announced in a later issue of this paper.

Intramural Hoopsters Vie For Basket-Ball Championship Title

Interfraternity basketball got under way with a flying start last week with three contests being played over the week-end.

The Phi Delts and Delts showed the most power in games to date. The Phi Delts bombarded the B. K.'s to the tune of a 25-10 score with Ray Robertson doing the heavy gunning for the Phi Delts, chalking up 11 points. The Delts showed a fast working five when they ran amuck over a helpless Chi Rho five that could not click, 36-4, Jacobus netting eight points.

The Sigs nosed out the Independents 19-15, in the closest game of the tourney thus far. Ervin and Dunkle scored most of the Sig points, while Smith and Acker registered the major nonfra points.

Soccer Team Will Play Seven Games In 1935 Schedule

The Allegheny 1935 soccer team will engage in seven contests according to the schedule released this week by Coach Paul Way.

The schedule includes three new teams on the schedule, Thiel, Geneva, and Oberlin being the new comers. One team, Dickinson, has been dropped.

The students will have more of an opportunity to see the team in action next season as they will play four games on the home field.

The schedule:
Oct. 18—Slippery Rock, home.
Oct. 22—Thiel, home.
Oct. 25—Grove City, away.
Oct. 30—Geneva, home.
Nov. 5—Thiel, away.
Nov. 8—Grove City, home.
Nov. 15—Oberlin, away.

The 1935 season should be one of great interest to the student body. Being instituted last year for the first time, the season's results netted only one win. But with a year of experience behind them, and the loss of only one letterman, the soccerites should be primed for a successful year.

Frosh women at Adelphai College must have a bald spot shaved on the top of their heads, which must be covered with a hat and three feet of purple ribbon.

Alpha Chi Rho Fall Formal.

Alpha Chi Rho entertained at a dinner dance held at the Oakland Beach Hotel on Thursday evening, December twentieth, from seven until twelve-thirty o'clock. About twenty-five couples danced to the music of Gayle Browne and his orchestra from Erie. Dr. and Mrs. Scott Hall chaperoned the party, which was in charge Robert Salmon and Don Digel.

Delta Tau Delta Fall Party.

The Delta Tau Delta fraternity held its Fall Formal on Thursday evening, December twentieth, at the Delta Tau Delta house.

About thirty couples danced to the music of Billy Blank and his orchestra, from eight until twelve o'clock. The party was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Cox and Mr. and Mrs. Tippin. Refreshments were served at intermission.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fall Party.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon held its annual Fall Formal at the chapter house, Thursday night, December twentieth. Barney Knapp and his Melody Weavers furnished the music for the occasion. The chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. Hurst Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Seely. The committee in charge was headed by Warner Peterson. Guests present were: Mel Meadowcort, Gilbert Shaw, James Ruffner, Charles Mills, and Richard Porter.

Phi Kappa Psi Fall Formal.

Phi Kappa Psi held its Fall Formal in the chapter house, Saturday evening, January twelfth. Dinner was served at the chapter house at 6:30, after which about forty couples danced to the music of Bob Hugham and his orchestra from eight-thirty till twelve-thirty. The dance was chaperoned by Prof. and Mrs. B. R. Beisel and Mr. and Mrs. K. K. Smock. Guests included Mr. Freed and Mr. Wm. Carlson. The chairman of the committee in charge was Jacque Du Mares.

Alpha Gamma Delta.

Alpha Gamma Delta held its Fall Formal at the Phi Delta Theta House, Saturday evening, January twelfth. Ted Rosenberg and his orchestra played from nine until twelve o'clock. About fifty couples attended the party, which was chaperoned by Dr. and Mrs. Scott Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Seely. Helen Miller was chairman of the committee in charge of the dance. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. John Tintsman, Jane Wright. Margaritha Nicol, Carol Tiffany, Betty Ferris, Blanche Allshouse, Betty Beach, Esther Dawson, Meribah Gleason, and Ada Sherwin.

Present "Twelfth Night".

Over 115 students were engaged in this production of "Twelfth Night". Fifty-two of them were back stage at the time of the performances, assisting in the smooth running of the play. These performances proved well worth, however, the great amount of time and energy devoted to the production.

The cast of characters in the play are as follows:

Orsino, Duke of Illyria ..... Eugene Wasson
Sebastian, Viola's twin brother ..... Saturday .....Elliot Jones Monday .....Fred Neiman
Antonio, a sea captain ..... Charles Kearney
A Sea Captain, friend to Viola ..... Joseph Phillipbar
Valentine, Curio, Gentlemen ..... Seymour Smith, Dale Beatty
Sir Toby Belch, Olivia's uncle ..... Joseph Macedo
Sir Andrew Aguecheek ..... Donald Murray
Malvolio, Olivia's Steward ..... Paul Gilmore
Fabian, Clown, Servants to Olivia ..... Robert Crabbs, Everett Hendricks
Sailors....Tom Else, William DunLany
Priest .....John Bitt.er
Officers .....Stuart Smith, John Bittler
Musicians, attending Duke ..... James Douglas, Arthur Cobb, Bernard Halperin
Singers—D. Armour Hilstrom, David Martin, Max LaBorde, Lois Richards, Emma Robertson, Mary Lou Waha, Eleanor Ruth
Olivia, a Rich Countess ..... Katheryn Miller
Viola, Sebastian's Sister..Laura Beebe
Maria, Olivia's Woman.....Amy Bishop
Attendants on Olivia ..... Romayne Lawrie, Cordelia Taft

At Stanford the co-eds must pass a physical examination before they are allowed to stay out on week days till 12 or 1:30 Saturdays.

Dancing Around

The chief events of the mid-Winter season undoubtedly are the Fall Parties. It seems a shame that in the social columns they have been mentioned heretofore only with regards to the names of the orchestras, guests, chaperones, and location; but the really important, interesting, and conversational points of them have been completely omitted. And so we have hit upon the bright idea of relating entertaining bits of these delightful dances.

We regret, that since we did not start our column sooner, we will be unable to comment on the Fall Parties that were held at the beginning of the season; but will have to suffice with the opes of more recent date . . .

A certain Chi Rho without a date swung a mean baton at his Fall Party . . . such wim and wigor! . . . the unexpected "hanging" at the Sig party . . . a very smooth Phi Psi dinner—flowers to "Cora, the Maid" . . . but what happened to one chicken? . . . Frau? . . . we have our doubts . . . two bouquets for Sig decorations . . . "little man in tails", nice work! . . . Delt programs hang well on the O.A.O.'s dressers . . . Ingersoll Yankee Official Time Clocks to the Alpha Gams who didn't realize that the orchestra had gone . . . blonde Freshman at Phi Psi party looked stunning in white . . . also liked the quaint pink affair worn by a blonde at the Alpha Gam formal . . . What! no hypnotism at Delt party! thought it was a custom . . . Chi Rhos and Phi Psis very generous . . . elegant bracelets . . . elegant orchestras too . . . red jackets very cunning . . . imports? . . . decreasing . . . Booooo, you nasty Phi Gams . . . A very tall Chi Rho dances most superbly . . . Christmas wreath from Hulings most becoming on Sig door—light fingered gentlemen! . . . The three Phi Psi "tails" . . . Kappa and Phi Delt parties coming up.

A Colgate professor of Psychology required his students to sleep in the class room so that he could determine the most effective pitch for an alarm clock.

HANGOVERS

Well, the dog days are all over now and everyone (or nearly everyone) has succeeded in throwing off the Xmas stupor, and are now biding time until the head lopping of next week . . . Concerning exams . . . It will be of interest to many of our more or less pedautic minds to find out, that, after much diligent investigation, a certain professor has discovered that students make better grades on exams when they have the questions previous to the finals. We never would have guessed that another demonstration of the value of research . . . From the Xmas holidays comes a report of great interest. It seems that one of Allegheny's most ardent prohibitionist profs. (we do have them) received a bottle of champagne from a genial St. Nickolas who didn't even sign his name. If the recipient is still puzzled over its disposal we might suggest that if it were mailed to this department, we would see that its contents were emptied at once, without fuss or bother . . . To those who have stated on these library inquiry farce slips that the service is poor—the answer is that you have to be a faculty member, and only particular ones at that, especially those whose units amuse the "peepers of the stacks" . . . Answers on the questionnaire: "Why did you come . . . ?" "To get a date" "Did you get what you wanted?" "No!" (no, a thousand times no). Answers such as these lead us to suspect that the library is NOT rendering service that may be desired . . . We think it would be an excellent idea if the library plan were followed and incorporated into the women's rules. You know, you can take them out at ten if you get them back by nine the next morning. The pages of the Reserve BOOKS are often too much thumbed. There would be too much printing on reserve though . . . College revenue here would pick up. Many of us would be willing to pay a forty-five cent fine and stay out till noon . . . We can tell the rather interesting tale of the young gentleman who called up a certain young co-ed and asked for a date. This careful little girl said that she would wait until she had seen him. Several days later the fellowed returned to the quest and phoned her, quaintly asking "Have you seen me yet?" Whereupon the pursued replied just as quaintly "Yes! . . " and retired . . . From the same vicinity comes a report of the girl who goes thru the Hall making queer noises, and then tells on herself in order to get campussed . . . Third floor breaks the conservative era by their entertaining of one of their swains while waiting for a date. We must report, however, that the chaperonage was excellent . . . To the person who handed this note to the "Campus" office. "Please tell Joe P— to include this in "Hangovers". Since when does he write a good column? . . . Word arrives that if the Cwens are allowed to carry out their present plans, they will go down in history. So, we're all waiting for the C.C.C. announcement . . . The officiency of the modern feminine wardrobe was demonstrated most effectively the other day, when a couple of our co-eds wore their pajama tops to class. Try the whole outfit sometime, but be careful what prof. is chosen, or we'd have another case something like Dr. Henke's near sightedness . . . Surveys of magazine sales in one of the Education courses reveal that "Whiz Bang" leads such well knowns as "Harpers", "Red Book" and "Colliers" . . . Just a note to one of the overseers who likes to have her girls remain quiet and serene. Get a silent doorbell installed or use a key that will work at 2 a. m. . . . To whom was this query directed, "Do you play tennis? Then you must be light on your feet—do you dance?" . . . Two Chi Rhos stole a march on their erstwhile Brudder Digel by getting to see his secret passion, Loretta Lee, before he did . . . One of the college wits remarked, "She was only a cowpuncher's daughter, but she couldn't keep her calves together". If the author or authoress wants credit for this her name can be inserted next time . . . And here's to what's ahead of us—here's a little prayer offered for our benefit.

Now I sit me down to cram,
I pray I'll pass this darned exam,
But if I fail to get this junk,
I pray the Lord I will not flunk.

Fraternity Formals Bring Down Curtain On Social Activities

With the last of the Fall formals being held Saturday, January 19, the eventful first semester social season will come to a close.

The social whirl will be speedily resumed, however, immediately after examinations, with the Junior Prom tentatively scheduled for February 23. Following that date other college social functions are scheduled as follows: The Pan-Hellenic Ball on March 23, and the Interfraternity Ball on April 11.

New Cut System.

on one of the six days which border the three vacation periods without loss of credit.

No more than one hour's credit can be lost on any one of these six days, no matter how many classes are missed on that day; but the missing of even one class on any of those six days brings the hour's credit loss. For instance, a student who arrives too late for his eight o'clock on the morning after the Christmas holidays loses an hour's credit, no more, no less; and whether he goes to his 9, 10, etc., on that day neither removes the penalty nor increases it.

It is possible for a student to lose as high as five hours credit were he to cut on all of the days when the penalties are effective.

Christmas and Easter vacations will henceforth begin with the close of classes on Thursday afternoons and resume with Monday 8 o'clocks instead of, as in the case of the past Christmas vacation, beginning at Friday noon and resuming on Tuesday morning. This avoids splitting a full day, and enables students to use Sunday, the most convenient day for traveling, for their return trip.
