WE hope that indulgent friends will not criticise, too severely, this number of THE CAMPUS. It was not finally decided who should assume editorial control until Tuesday of Commencement week—too late to effect any organization of the board. This will be done promptly at the beginning of the next college year, and we hope by that time to have everything in running order.

THE Commencement of '87, with all its heat and hurry and bustle, has glided into the past. To those who will be among us as students no more it must bring mingled feelings—feelings of sadness at leaving the old college which a residence of four or five years has made dear, mingled with those of pride in the present, and bright hope for the future. May the members of the class of '87 ever love their alma mater, and look back upon the years spent here as the brightest, the happiest, and the most profitable of their lives.

IN many respects the year just ended has been one of the most successful in the history of Allegheny. The catalogue shows an actual enrollment of 304 students, not including eight in the newly erected Post-Graduate Department, nor 144 in the Conservatory of Music. Last year the total in all departments was 264. This increase of students shows a healthy and vigorous growth. We congratulate the faculty and the friends of the college. But we are yet in need of many things. At least two new buildings, new books for the library, a larger endowment of the present chairs, as well as new ones, are among the things which the college wants, and must have, if she would broaden and strengthen her usefulness and power. The world is moving, and so must the college if it keeps up with the times.

OF the many successful events of Commencement week perhaps none, all things considered, was more so than Field Day. It was the first time in years that an attempt at one had been made. Many beautiful and valuable prizes were given by the business men of the town, and most of them were warmly competed for. Some of the records made were excellent. The different contests were watched by a large crowd of interested spectators, who heartily applauded every good effort. All this portends a real and permanent advance in athletics at Allegheny. Field Day will certainly be made a permanent feature of Commencement. It is to be earnestly hoped that athletics will take their rightful place here, and that the College may turn out men of sturdy bone and muscle no less than those of strong and manly intellects and hearts.

DIVINE GUIDANCE OF LIFE.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON BY PRESIDENT DAVID H. WHEELER, LL. D.

II Samuel, v. 23. And let it be when thou hearest the sound of a going in the tops of the mulberry trees, that then thou shalt bestir thyself.

I assume that this incident is such a one as might have happened when General Grant encamped under the oaks of Vicksburg. Both David and Grant had tasks assigned them by Providence. To both God revealed his will, having established a concert between his mind and theirs and using nature to signal the hour of successful battle. Both generals watched the sky, and the wind, and the oak leaf and the mulberry leaf alike, served in fit time and place to play the first note of battle hymns.

Respecting miracle in the Bible two extreme opinions warn us to avoid them. One finds miracle everywhere, even in the most orderly movement of history. The other finds no miracle anywhere, not even in the Gospels. The first error is the vice of superstition ; the second is the vice of unbelief.

* * The doctrine of religion teaches always—no matter what the religion be called—that God guides, rescues, comforts good men through the order of nature employed as a revealing medium and made spiritually significant by the communion of the good man with his Heavenly Father. To the man in sympathy with the spiritual life, natural events reveal the ever blessed will and infinitely gracious purpose of God the Father Almighty. The leaf, the brook, the bush, the cloud, the star, may become for any man, in any age, a signal to march or to retreat, a call to prayer or a summons to victory.

* * There is no biblical code of signals. Each man's inmost life is a solitude into which God alone can pierce ; and each such life is distinctly different from every other. And the divine ordering of individual life is effected in this secret cell of the human spirit, in this desert solitude of the personal soul. The doctrine of divine communion with human souls rests upon revelation supported by the experience of good men. Neither the Book nor the men can be expected to prove it to the satisfaction of a skeptic. God speaks for Himself out of the solitude of His eternity ; the good man speaks for himself out of his personality.

* * The truth is that a good man's eyes see in the natural order the handwriting of the divine will. The murmur in the tops of the mulberry trees is significant. The burning bush is significant. The studious and devout soul may find significance in any ordinary phenomenon of nature. Indeed it is only in the regulated and constant elments of life and nature that meanings may appear and speak to the mind and the heart. The inconstant and the occasional in miracle only challenge us to reason up a wider law and to trust in sublimer truth. For our daily life, the way must be blazed on common trees and lighted by familiar stars.

* * Our lives are too short to accumulate adequate supplies of experience. Our powers are too feeble to read the world through to all its meanings and issue, and life is new for each one of us and for every day of it. We strike our tents each morning to set out into an unknown world—to penetrate a desert we have never seen. What hope is there for any one of us if no pillar of cloud careening over the sands may point out our line of march? But we are exploring a world which God knows. Every inch of it is to Him familiar ground. What simpler or more reasonable creed was ever believed than that the Father guides His child along this painful and mysterious march.

Depend upon it your religion is vain unless it teaches you to expect the guiding cloud as well as the storm cloud, as well as to sail your ship by the constant stars and the faithful sun —nay, to draw closer in faith to your Father, who is above the stars as you remember that they keep their stations forever on the blue fields of eternity.

* * There are in the world no eyes like those of the good man. Ancient phrase glorifies them by calling them "single." And Christ crowns them with honor when he says: "If thine eye be single thy whole body shall be full of light." The two eyes are one in this vision. All the seeing converges on one point. These eyes see but one thing—the way of duty. They look straight on. This singleness concentrates and intensifies the vision. Any man can see the path of duty when he wants to see that and that alone. Any man can know what God wants him to do when he seeks to know that and that alone. Even the low murmur of a mulberry leaf may tell him when to march to his triumph. Our trouble is that we desire to see everything else but duty. We long to behold our victory, to snatch our laurels, to sit upon thrones, to judge angels. We leap and fly in aspiration for things we may own and keep. "What therefore shall we have?" this despicable humanity of ours cries out even in the hours of its most sturdy self-abnegations. And the victory, the laurels, the throne, the judgment bench—they all elude our straining and divided vision.

Let us consider these statements for a moment. Your "own thinking," what is it under the dome of the heavens? Shall man hope to measure the infinite spaces or penetrate the infinitesimal depths? Combined human intellect can work wonders, but even it staggers when it would lift an atom, and grow faint when it would reach the farthest star. But how petty is any one of us in comparison with this combined intellect! Your own thinking? Why this thinking of yours was done for you before you were born. The whole race has been thinking it out for you and delivering it over to you ready made. What do you dare to think on any subject of human concernment without some impulse of another soul.

I think this truth is the more earnestly to be pressed because, in our day, there is a fashion and a passion for stripping nature to bare poles, so to say, and for divorcing religion from life by first divorcing nature from God. We are in the world. We are making a pilgrimage through it. The youngest of us knows it is not our home. The prime question for us is: Shall we die in the desert, or march safely through to our Canaan. The Joshuas bring us goodly and fragrant grapes from a promised land. Moses climbs to the top of Nebo and beholds the blessed valleys which we seek. Experience in other souls confirms the tale. The best of earth alleges that heaven is over yonder with its blessed streams and, glowing walls and eternal joy. If some of the good doubt, if all the bad sneer, we shall still trust this old and ever new experience and this eternal hope of the best souls, the clearest minds, the richest lives. But our trust must have its logic and its order of ideas. A first fact is that this is God's world, impresenced by Him and ruled by Him. A second fact is that He has sent us forth on this pilgrimage, and appointed for us a safe and prosperous journey. A third fact is that along the route besetting every day's march there are invisible dangers, bewildering lights,and deadly shadows. Alas! alas! men fail and perish on every hand. Consider the lost in your streets, your prisons, your hospitals, your cemeteries. Look at the dreadful procession of vice and crime. Oh, God, these are our fellow men, of our blood and spirit! What an awful march this of ours must be when every step is over graves, and every camp pitched in the valley and shadow of death.

Only one assurance can give us peace and confidence. It is the perfect trust that God guides the good man through this pilgrimage. We cannot find the safe way, but He knows it and will reveal it to righteous souls.

These are not outworn beliefs. They are fresh forever. We have not learned anything about nature which should divorce nature from nature's God. Old religion under the mulberry grove is as true to our knowledge as any religion can be. It does not, in that ancient camp, make God only a wind any more than it did in General Grant's camp under the oaks before Vicksburg. David and Grant both watched the swaying trees and caught the wisdom of action from the sky and the wind. Perhaps both were alike led to victory, though only one of them has told us how the leaves sounded the bugle notes of his advance. Every one of us has like experiences. The distinct advantage of the believer is that his communion with God makes the sight clear and the ear keen to catch the Divine command. If any of us cannot find God, it is our fault and our peril. He is still everywhere present and everywhere supreme. To recognize him and listen for His voice and to do His bidding—alike in small things and great things—is the one inestimable and immeasurable privilege of the good man's life.

Y. M. C. A. ADDRESS.

Sunday evening, June 27, Bishop John F. Hurst delivered the annual address to the Y. M. C. A. A large audience filled the Stone Church and heard the Bishop deliver a powerful sermon, brief extracts of which we give below :

"In our common-place life there is nothing really small and insignificant. The deed depends on what the doer is. The plaything of a king's child has a meaning. It is a prince's hand which trundles the hoop and throws the ball. * * What is this life ? Is it more than time ? Niagara flows and falls from century to century, and yet with all its pomp in summer and splendid robes in winter, it is not a living thing. The merest butterfly which flits into its spray and wanders back again to its field is more than all the waterfalls on the planet. * * Man is always man, wherever you find him ; but then he is largely the creature of the times which give him birth and home. As you see in a little child's dancing eyes the swaying limbs and birds and laughing flowers and singing streams of the surrounding landscapes, so can you see in the brain of the average man the play of the great forces of the times to which he belongs. * * The age brings its duties with it and he has to bear them. When Lincoln was President, and the rebellion burst like a consuming flame upon the land, he could not say that he belonged to the times of Carolinus or of Cromwell or of Washington, but to his own generation and his own hour. The moment was upon him. We are to look around and see what the world needs and then strive to meet this want. Each profession has its opportunity. * * We are ever applying our measuring-line to character, and if we see that one has chosen the pure and the good rather than the pleasant and the comfortable, we place him where he belongs—among the pure workers for the world's improvement. Like Garibaldi, when he thundered at the gates of Rome, which had been closed to liberty for one thousand years, every man who fights for a purpose must succeed. * * Napoleon never won his battles with great multitudes of soldiers, or the great amassing of troops. His work began far earlier. It was his wont to walk out by night, and to examine the kind of food which his army ate ; to keep due note of the muster-roll of each regiment, and to forget nothing that entered into the morale or material of warfare ; to watch the threads out of which he twisted victory on a hundred battlefields. * * When we are faithful to ourselves, we are most faithful to God. There is no final oblivion for our work here. The hour of revelation must come. At the most our life consists of the common-place and the obscure. We are often weighed down by its terrible drudgery. As we look ahead it seems like one long pair of ruts, and the dust flies up as we move along ; it seems a weary road indeed. * * It is given only to one now and then of the great surging multitude to do a deed or say a word which will reach out beyond the century. Hence we should faithfully perform every duty assigned us, bearing every burden which is placed upon us, and going into the field in which Providence places us for work through the three score and ten, with the serene and happy mind that envieth not another his genius, his palace or his crown, but smiles happily beneath the sweat of his brow as he struggles on. This is the triumph of the faithful servant, who is welcomed up to his coronation by the words, 'Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many.'"

FIELD DAY SPORTS.

The first attempt at athletic sports at Allegheny for many years, was held upon Diamond Park, on Monday afternoon, June 27, and was a complete success in every respect. The day was a delightful one, many townspeople being present to witness the sports. The prizes were presented by buriness men of the city, and were closely contested for, and, while no records were broken, still there were some very good amateur records made, considering the small amount of previous practice done.

The officers of the meet were: Judges, C. W. Fuller, Phil E. Laffer and H. H. Luccock; referee, J. Barlow Cullum, of the Lehigh University Athletic Association; starter and measurer, Leon N. Reefer, of the University of Pennsylvania Athletic Association.

The half-mile walk was omitted as there were no starters.

One Hundred Yard Dash—Starters, E. B. Bodley, N. A. Flood, E. N. Pond, J. Nash, W. P. Cary, and E. J. Sanderson. The event was won by E. B. Bodley in 11 seconds, with E. J. Sanderson second. The prize was a handsome silver cup.

Standing Broad Jump—Contested for by M. E. Blystone and N. A. Flood, and was won by the former, jumping 8 feet, 10½ inches. The prize a handsome copy of Shakspere.

Running Broad Jump—Won by E. B. Bodley, distance, 17 feet 5½ inches. The other entries were N. A. Flood and C. C. Laffer. Prize, a gold-headed cane.

Standing High Jump—Prize, silver cup, was won by E. J. Sanderson; height of jump, 4 feet 4½ inches. Other entries, E. B. Bodley and W. P. Cary.

Throwing the Hammer—The contests were F. C. Christy, E. N. Pond, and J. L. Porter. F. C. Christy won the event, throwing the eight pound hammer 62 feet and 9 inches; J. L. Porter second, distance 59 feet and 9½ inches.

Two Hundred Yard Dash—Entries, E. J. Sanderson, E. N. Pond, J. Nash and W. P. Cary. Won by E. J. Sanderson in 24½ seconds, Pond coming in second. Prize, two dollars.

Throwing the Base Ball—Entered for by H. M. Rauch, M. E. Blystone, and F. C. Christy, and won by the first, with F. C. Christy second.

High Pole Vault—Won by F. C. Christy, none of those who had entered being able to contest, E. J. Sanderson being the only competitor. The height of vault was 7 feet and 6 inches. A silver medal was the prize.

Half Mile Run—This event was a walkaway for W. P. Cary, he being the only contestant who finished the course. The other starters were Sanderson, Pond and W. A. Hubble. The prize was a handsome gold-headed cane.

High Standing Kick—Won by Robt. Porter, of this city, kicking the pan at 7 feet 2 inches from the ground. The prize was a silver cup.

Putting the Shot—Competed for by H. M. Rauch, F. C. Christy, J. L. Porter, and E. N. Pond; won by Rauch, hurling the 8-pound shot 35 feet 8 inches. The prize consisted of a gentleman's dressing case.

Hurdle Race—Entries, E. J. Sanderson, F. C. Christy, W. P. Cary, E. N. Pond and Ned Lashells. The race was won by Sanderson, leading Christy about two feet. The prize was a handsome silver-headed cane.

Running High Jump—This event was easily won by W. P. Cary, leaping over the string at 4 feet 6 inches from the ground, winning the solid gold-headed cane. The other competitors were E. N. Pond and J. S. Sanderson.

Sack Race—This was the amusing part of the exercises, the runners being tied in immense sacks and running as best they could 100 feet. W. A. Hubble and J. Miller were entered, the former winning easily.

The Hop Step and Jump—M. E. Blystone, F. A. Sayres, C. C. Laffer, N. A. Flood, and Ned Lashells entered and were very closely matched, Blystone finally winning, covering 35 feet, 3 inches of ground. This was the most closely contested event of the day.

Tug of War—The last thing on the program and the event which aroused the liveliest interest was the tug of war between teams selected from the Sophomore and Freshmen classes. The teams consisted of ten picked men and were as follows :

Sophomore—Levi Bird, Jack Nash, F. C. Christy, C. C. Laffer, F. A. Cattern, F. Askue, F. C. Howe, J. Lafferty and H. H. Luccock. Freshmen—G. H. Fuller, F. O. Newcomb, W. O. Varner, J. L. Porter, E. N. Pond, Heiser, Dean, J. S. Gibson, Smith and Booth.

The pull was made on the ground and lasted during the space of two minutes, the Sophomores during that time dragging the Freshmen team about twelve feet, and '89 scored another victory over the Freshmen.

Lawn Tennis—The game of lawn tennis to have been played for the championship of the college was postponed, owing to the lateness of the hour.

After the tug of war the succesful contestants were awarded their medals and prizes by the judges.

Taking them all in all, Allegheny has no reason to be ashamed of her first attempt in the direction of athletic sports, which success is due largely to the energetic and continued efforts of the officers of the Association. And now it only remains to set athletic sports upon a solid footing for some benevolent-minded person to build us a gymnasium, so that in the future Allegheny shall have a reputation for men of muscle as she has had in the past for men of brains.

CLASS DAY.

The annual class-day exercises were held in the Stone church Tuesday evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. The church was quite tastefully decorated with flowers, and and well filled with the students and friends of the College. The exercises were opened with music by the orchestra, and prayer by Rev. A. J. Merchant, after which Miss Ella Goff, the President of the class, delivered the salutatory address in a graceful manner and in language both beantiful and strong.

Mr. H. W. Smith, the Historian, then related the trials and difficulties encountered by his class during their four years' journey up the steep and rugged hill of knowledge. The road was particularly difficult at Mt. Calculus and Mt. Science, and at each of these points a number of the original company became weary and fell out by the wayside. Some of the adventures and exploits of individual members of the class were worked in with good effect. Mr. Smith's history was written on a new and original plan and was listened to with great interest.

Miss Mary E. Wilkenson was the Essayist, and took for her subject the "Story of Liberty." The production was somewhat lengthy, but in manner of reading and style of composition reflected great credit on the author.

One of the most entertaining productions of the evening was the "Prophecy" of Mr. David M. Wise. Mr. Wise represented himself as standing at a point 20 years after graduation, and gave a short history of each number in the class from 1887 to 1907. The Prophecy was delivered in a clear, strong voice and even a dull hearer could not fail to catch the force and meaning of every sentence. All of the class attained success, and in that respect the different parts of the Prophecy were but variations of one tune. Some of the personal hits were good, and although the production was very long it held the attention of the audience to the end.

The "Class Poem" by Mr. E. B. Bodley, was well written and delivered in a very impressive manner.

The "Ladder Orator," Mr. M. E. Blystone opened his performance with a beautiful comparison of College life to a ladder. He exhorted the Junior class to persevere unto the end, and closed his effort by presenting them a handsome ladder of flowers. In receiving the ladder the Replier, Mr. W. W. Ellsworth, of the Junior class alluded to the flowers and ladder as emblems of immortality and the College course as oniy a preparation for a higher and better life. He closed by thanking the Seniors for their words of encouragement and friendship, and exhorted them, as they were about to sever their connection with the old College, to preserve an affectionate remembrance of the alma mater and to so live as to do her honor.

The Orator of the evening, Mr. F. H. Shaw, gave a review of the arguments in favor of the study of the English Language and Literature, and those in favor of the study of the classics. His oration gave evidence of thought, and was quite favorably received.

The last speaker of the evening was Mr. Will Bignell, who delivered the Valedictory. Mr. Bignell's subject was "The 19th Century Heroism," and his production was thoughtful and very well written. He compared the ancient ideal of heroic manhood with that of the present, and pointed out wherein our heroism is made of difierent stuff than was that of the Greeks and Romans. The speaker closed his oration by bidding Allegheny, the scene of so many profitable and pleasant events, an affectionate and regretful farewell.

SOCIETY ANNIVERSARY.

Owing to the numerous other attractions, and to the oppressive state of the weather, but a small audience assembled, on Tuesday afternoon, to witness the Anniversary of the Literary Societies.

The church presented a beautiful appearance, having been decorated about the platform with ferns and flowers. After a selection of music by the orchestra, Mr. Bruce Davis, of the Athenian Literary Society,and presiding officer of the occasion, announced Mr. F. A. Sayers, representing the Athenian Society, as the first speaker, who took for the theme of his oration, "An Unhonored Hero," and the production, which was not a mere rehash of some biography upon the subject, but a careful and able eulogy upon "one of the grandest heroes America has ever produced," was delivered by the speaker from the platform with freedom and vigor. Mr. Sayers was followed by B. B. Bickett, Jr., representing Allegheny Literary Society, the subject of his oration being entitled "America and Labor." The subject is a popular one of the day, and received the closest attention of the audience. The oration was written in a clear and forcible style, and well delivered by the speaker.

Mr. T. B. Allison, of Philo-Franklin Society, was the next speaker announced, the subject of his oration being "Louis Agassiz." The production was a good one, portraying in well-chosen terms his life-long work for science, his character as a man and his devotion to his adopted country. Miss Gertrude Merchant, representing Ossoli Literary Society, was the last speaker on the program. She advanced upon the stage in a graceful manner, the subject being "Emerson." The essay was read in a clear and pleasing style, evincing considerable care in its preparation.

THE COMMENCEMENT CONCERT.

The concert given by the Philharmonic Society and others connected with the Conservatory, Wednesday evening, was a marked success. The Academy of Music was entirely filled with the most cultivated people of Meadville and with friends and visitors from abroad. It was the best musical entertainment, by home talent, that has been given in the city for a long time. Mrs. Hoynes and Messrs. Jenkins and Haywood of Cleveland, together with Mrs. Hull and Mrs. Montgomery and others formed a fine array of musical talent. The first half of the programme was made up of miscellaneous pieces and the last half consisted of Rossini's immortal work—"Stabat Mater."

Miss Doane acted as pianist. The work done was all of a very high order, and those connected with the Conservatory are to be congratulated upon their success. That branch of the College has come to stay, and those who missed the Commencement Concert let slip an opportunity of enjoying a rich musical treat.

Alumni.

ORANGE BLOSSOMS.

It has been the happy privilege of the CAMPUS to chronicle the marriages of a large number of the alumni during the past year. Again the pleasant duty is ours. On the evening of June 22d, at the residence of the bride's mother, Frank L. Wells, '86, was married to Miss Nellie A. Jordan. As both parties in this marriage were well and favorably known to most of our readers, an additional line will be of interest.

The wedding was not a large one, none but relations and intimate frends being present. The ceremony began promptly at 8:45, with the execution of Mendelsohn's Wedding March, on the piano in the reception hall; a moment later the bridal procession came down the stairway, the officiating clergyman, Rev. J. H. Conkle, taking the lead, then the groomsmen, Will H. Gallup, '85, and Willis Jordan, ex-'87, next the bridesmaids Miss Marion Jordan, '84, and Miss Mary McFarland, followed by the bride and groom. The party proceeded to the front parlor where the marriage was solemnized. The form of service employed was what is known as the "ring ceremony."

After the congratulations had been extended a bountiful collation was served. The presents were numerous and elegant. Our lady friends will want to know what the bride wore. The dress was a combination of brocaded silk satin and lace of rich dark cream color; the flowers worn were tea roses of the same shade as the dress. The toilet was completed by the bridal veil and conventional orange blossoms. Miss Jordan wore pink brocaded silk and white flowers, and Miss McFarland white gros grained silk and pale pink roses. After a two weeks' trip through the west, Mr. and Mrs. Wells will return to their home in New Lisbon. THE CAMPUS extends most hearty congratulations.

S. M. Gordon, '86, and Miss Minnie Espy, formerly a student at the Conservatory of Music, were united in marriage on Wednesday evening, June 22d. The ceremony was performed by the father of the bride, Rev. J. Boyd Espy, assisted by Drs. Wheeler of Greenville, and Scofield of Erie. This took place in the Simpson M. E. Church, where a fine floral decoration beautified the audience room. J. M. Dobson, '90, acted as groomsman, and Miss Emma, sister of the bride as bridesmaid. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon in College unite in extending best wishes and hearty congratulations.

J. D. Croasman, '85, was married June 12th to Miss Anna Coulter at Cairo, Ill.

One of our local papers announces that J. A. Guignon is visiting his "alum water."

J. J. Phare, a student of Allegheny in '75 and '76, is now editor of Progress at Holdrege, Neb.

Mr. Walter W. Case, '84, of Greenville, Pa., came up Thursday and took in the Commencement Hop.

Rev. E. S. White, '78, is an unusually successful and popular pastor of the M. E. Church, at Brallsville, Pa.

W. H. Hammon, '81, is taking a special course at Cornell University, where he is located in the U. S. Signal Service.

Rev. M. C. Bailey, '75, delivered a lecture June 14 on "America and her Future," in the chapel of the California, Pa., Normal School. He is located near Uniontown, Pa.

FRESHMAN PLAY.

The Freshman play at the Academy of Music Tuesday evening, June 28th, was a fitting culmination to the stirring and unprecedented events of the year.

The mystery which had enveloped the play only served to heighten the curiosity and interest of all, and excitement was running high as the crowded house waited for the curtain to rise. The play having for its plot the sensational visit of the so-called "Captain Dutton" to Meadville last winter, was unique, well written and very funny, and reflects credit to the five Freshmen who engaged in its authorship. The "Captain" was represented by F. C. Bray, who was from his first descent on the unsuspecting people of Meadville, till his final departure with Major Fuller's overcoat, the complete Dutton. The unsophisticated "Sincie Sawbuck," who enters College as a very verdant youth, was well impersonated by Williamson.

In the second act, Wakefield, as clerk of the Commercial Hotel, where "Captain Dutton" made his first appearance in Meadville, created a very favorable impression by his realistic acting. Barrett as bell boy was the funniest character in the play, and created no little merriment. The Sophomores and Seniors naturally came in for a share of ridicule, and several good hits were bestowed on members of those classes.

The Chapel exercises in Act. III allowed the members of the Faculty in the audience to see themselves as others see them. Ned. A. Flood as Dr. Wheeler showed much skill, and imitated the Doctor with great accuracy. He also assumed the role of "Harry Dick" in the last act, in a natural and effective manner. G. H. Fuller, as "Dr. Williams" was certainly not unlike the original. The Battalion act was the most laughable. McNair as "Major Fuller" was one of the prominent features of the play. The banquet of "Dutton" by "Major Fuller" in the last act brought out Dutton's strong points and big stories. A unique and pleasing tableau, "Dutton, in the Golden Realms," followed by a class song, fittingly closed the entertainment.

We congratulate the Freshmen on their success in producing a play so excellent, wholesome and enjoyable.

The Annual Love Feast of the College was held Sunday afternoon, June 26, in the Chapel. Dr. Hammett, as has been his custom, conducted the meeting, and the time was chiefly occupied with speeches from the Alumni present.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

The Commencement exercises at the Stone church on Thursday, ended the pleasant and eventful Commencement week of '87. The large auditorium was completely filled with proud and anxious fathers, mothers, sisters, relatives and friends of the graduating class. Above the platform, in the form of an arch, worked in roses was the class motto "Praesto, et Persto." The rostrum was decorated with plants and flowers, and presented a scene worthy the occasion. Dr. Wheeler presided, and Dr. A. J. Cowles opened the exercises with an appropriate prayer, after which the following programme was carried out:

Conferring Degrees.

Many of the orations and essays were very fine, and all were creditable. They were generally well delivered, and without exception gave evidence of culture and thought. Many of the presents of flowers and books were very handsome and valuable. All the members of the class were well remembered. After the speeches Dr. Wheeler made a short address and said:

"There remains for me, to-day, only to remind you that you are entering into a very honorable fraternity of more than seven hundred living men and women, who in every part of the world are doing work for God and man. The atmosphere of learning and righteousness pervades this world into which you are entering.

"I ask of you, I beg of you, I beseech you not to dishonor us and this noble body of men and women which you join.

"There are two ways in which you may dishonor us and them. One is by failure in righteousness, by yielding to temptations in the world around you, by being less true, less faithful to the lessons taught you.

"Another way in which you may dishoner the noble company you this day join is by failure to pursue that work of culture upon which you have entered. An ignorant graduate may do more harm to a college than any other kind of enemy.

"Try to remember the solemnities of this hour. Keep yourselves abreast with the world of thought in which you live. Keep up with the times; keep your eyes open and your hearts alive to the interests of the world in which you have entered.

"May God bless you everyone and keep you in all the days of your lives. Farewell."

Each graduate was at this point presented with a diploma, after which the names of all upon whom degrees were conferred were read.

Benediction, pronounced by Dr. Wheeler.

THE PRESIDENT'S LEVEE.

The President's Annual Reception, tendered on last Thursday evening in the parlors of Hulings Hall, to the Graduating Class of the College, was a most brilliant affair. Many invitations had been issued and a large number of students and friends of the College paid their respects to President and Mrs. Wheeler in the spacious parlors of the Hall. The Northwestern Orchestra discoursed sweet music from the college campus, which were brightly illuminated with natural gas. The parlors and dining hall were tastily decorated for the occasion with mosses, ferns and flowers, and elegant refreshments were served during the evening in the dining hall.

Fraternity.

DELTA TAU DELTA RECEPTION.

On Thursday afternoon of Commencement week occurred the twenty-fourth annual reception given by the Alpha of Delta Tau Delta to her many friends. The elegant rooms of the chapter were appropriately decorated, and the Northwestern Orchestra furnished excellent music for the occasion. Refreshments were served during the afternoon, which proved quite palatable. The receptions of the Deltas are always enjoyed, and we hope to have the pleasure of being present again.

FRATERNITY BANQUETS.

The Fraternities held their Commencement banquets on Wednesday evening, June 29th. To the Greeks the Fraternity banquet is the grandest occasion of the College year. No other is looked forward to with greater anticipation or held in memory with deeper joy; they were made glorious this year especially to the older Fraternity Chapters by the large attendance of visiting Alumni members. ALL AROUND THE CAMPUS.

Are you coming back next year?

The Kalamathean Essay prize to be contested for by the members of the Freshman Class, was won by Mr. E. P. Couse.

Read The Campus, consult our Catalogue, come to Allegheny next year, and when you come take the advice of Dr. Luccock and bring somebody back with you.

All those who are indebted to The Campus will confer a great favor upon the management by sending their subscription to the Business Manager, Mr. C. C. Laffer, Meadville, Pa.

The College Glee Club, composed of Messrs. Porter, Smith, Rutter and Barrett, under the direction of E. E. Proper, took a trip to Saegertown, Friday evening last, and entertained the people there with some college songs and recitations.

Mr. J. A. Wakefield was the successful contestant for the Alumni Essay prize of Allegheny Literary Society. There were three who competed for the prize, the subject being: "America for Americans, or Laws Governing the Immigration and Naturalization of Foreigners.

In the Catalogue just issued for the College year '86-'87, we notice several important changes which have been made in the curriculum of study, the most important of which are in the Junior and Senior years of the Classical Course, and in the addition of another year of study to the Course of Civil Engineering.

On the night of June 23, some daring and adventurous members of the Sophomore Class raised a class flag upon the dome of Bentley Hall. The sight of the flag, which was made in distinctiue class colors, and across the face of which "'89" appeared in large characters, caused much wonderment to beholders on the following morning.

After about six weeks of agony the Campus difficulty was finally settled by arbitration on Tuesday morning of Commencement week. Judge White, Judge Church, and Hon. B. F. Martin acted as arbitrators, and, after hearing both sides of the case, unanimously decided that the two disputed shares of stock belonged to the holders of the original certificates. This decision meets the approval of all right-minded persons, and settles at last the tedious election.

The Triennial Reunion of Alumni was held on Wednesday afternoon, upon the campus and in the rooms of Bentley Hall. The building presented a very pleasing appearance, being filled with ferns and mosses, which were tastily arranged throughout the halls and recitation rooms. Many graduates were present, some of whom, for the first time in many years, visiting the familiar scenes of their college life, and recalling to mind the pleasant recollections of their youthful d By these the reunion was doubly appreciated. Elegant refreshments were served during the afternoon, by some of the ladies of the town, and in the evening an informal meeting was held in the Chapel.

Miss Helen Hays, '83, and Miss Edith Guignon, '83, of Union City, Pa., were registered at Hulings Hall, while attending the exercises.

Messrs. J. B. Cullum, class '90 Lehigh University, and Ern Merrick, '88, of Vanderbilt University, both of this city, returned home in time to take in the exercises of Commencement week.

Mr. F. H. Shaw, of the graduating class, was married, Thursday, June 23, to Miss Alice Page, at the home of the latter's uncle, in Mercer, Pa. THE CAMPUS extends most hearty congratulations.

The father of Mr. E. B. Bodley took in Allegheny during last week to see his son graduate. Rev. Dr. Smith, of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate spent Commencement here for the same reason.

Allegheny will be well represented at Harvard next year, as both Messrs. W. J. Whieldon and E. B. Bodley have signified their intention of going there, and J. B. Ford is at present in the law department.

INTER-SOCIETY CONTEST.

The most interesting part of the week's program, and the one which excited the most lively interest and speculation, was the Inter-Society Contest, which was held in the Academy of Music, Monday evening. An intelligent audience was present, composed of students and townspeople; and though the contest lasted until after eleven o'clock, the interest on the part of the hearers never flagged. The program was interspersed with choice selections of music by the orchestra. President Wheeler presided, and His Honor, Judge White, Hon. S. H. Miller, and Rev. R. B. Pope, D. D., acted in the capacity of judges. As the marks show, the contestants were more evenly matched than on the preceding year, and on this occasion Allegeny turned the tables upon Philo.

The first performer of the evening was Mr. C. L. Smith, representing Philo-Franklin Society. Mr. Smith read with great clearness of expression an essay entitled, "The Literature of America." The production was written in a good style and showed considerable thought. The representation of Allegheny Society, Mr. H. E. Smith, followed with an essay entitled, "The Development of a Native Literature." The production showed great depth of research and thought, and a wide knowledge of literature. It was written in a clear and vigorous style, and according to the gentleman's ideas, Emerson was the first truly distinctive American writer. None write as Hawthorne, none like Cable, and none like Bret Harte. In fact their writings could not have been produced in any other country than America.

The interest of the evening's program centered mainly in the Debate, the question of which was, "Resolved, That Home Rule should be granted to Ireland." Mr. W. C. Jason, of Allegheny, opened the debate. The gentleman's principal arguments for the affirmative of the question were those of the moral right of Ireland to govern herself, and the citation of previous historical cases of the success of Home Rule. His arguments were stated in a vigorous and convincing manner. Mr. E. B. Heckel, representing Philo-Franklin Society, followed in the negative. His arguments were strong and were written in a comprehensive and logical style, and would have appeared well in print; but the force of the gentleman's arguments were somewhat weakened by his evident embarrassment upon the stage.

Mr. Heckel was followed by Mr. D. W. Howell, the orator representing Philo-Franklin Society, who took for the theme of his oration, "The Ideal Republic," and pictured to his hearers the condition of primitive republics as compared to America of today; and in closing, eulogized the present condition of our own grand Republic as the ideal one. Mr. J. A. Wakefield, of Allegheny Society, followed, the subject of his oration being, "The Echo of Human Action." The speaker was thoroughly at home upon the stage, and delivered his production, which was full of metaphor and somewhat florid in character, evincing considerable labor, in an easy and natural manner, paying several fine tributes to the memory of John Wesley, Robert Burns, and others.

The oration was followed by the Declamation Class. Mr. E. B. Bodley gave a good declamation entitled, "shipwrecked." Mr. Bodley had perfect self-possession upon the platform, and a good delivery, speaking his selection in a voice which he knows how to use to good advantage, some portions of the piece being especially realistic in their portrayal by the speaker. Mr. F. M. Kerr was the declaimer from Philo-Franklin Society, and in his declamation entitled, "Connor," which was somewhat lengthy, he evidenced rare declamatory powers, holding the undivided attention of the audience to the end.

Following the declamation the decisions were handed in by the different Judges and were read by Doctor Wheeler from the stage, Allegheny winning essay, debate and declamation, while oration was awarded to Philo-Franklin. By marks the score stood six and one-half to three and one-half.

BASE BALL.

ALLEGHENY BROWNS VS. MEADVILLE GRAYS.

The last game of the series between the Allegheny Browns and Meadville Grays, was played on the college grounds Wednesday Afternoon, June 29, and was witnessed by an immense crowd of people.

The Browns played their usual good game and would probably have won, had it not been that two of the nine were absent and consequently they were weakened, while the Grays were stronger than usual. Brown and Kerr were the battery and did some good work. The game was the best played and was hotly contested throughout, the Grays finally winning by two runs, the score standing at the close, 15 to 13 in their favor.

INTER-SOCIETY GAMES.

The possession of the prize clock, for the ensuing year, was finally settled by the game of ball between nines picked from Allegheny and Athenian Societies.

The clock is a handsome one, being finished in ebony and gold, and was presented to the Societies as a standing prize, to be contested for on each succeeding year, by a series of games.

The first game scheduled was to take place between Allegheny and Philo, but on the day appointed, the nine from the latter society failed to show up, and the game was decided in favor of Allegheny. The second game between Athenian and Allegheny was also declared off at the end of the fifth inning. And so it happens that the clock will tick in the Hall of Allegheny during the year '87-88.

COMMENCEMENT HOP.

One of the most enjoyable social events of the week, was the Commencement Hop, which was given in honor of the Senior Class. The company was a very select one, and quite a number were present from a distance, about twenty couple participating.

The Northwestern Orchestra furnished delightful music, and about midnight all partook of elegant refreshments, consisting of all the delicacies of the season, which were served below. About three o'clock the company broke up, all going away well satisfied with the evening's enjoyment.
