Allegheny Headlines

August
Led by professor of Art, Amara Geffen, what once was a storage lot has been transformed into an art gallery. Using recycled road signs, and a great deal of hard work, two unique installations of public art were created at the intersection of Routes 322 and 102.

Power grids all over the Northeast and Midwest failed and caused a massive blackout affecting not only Allegheny, but New York City, Detroit, and countless other cities.

Heavy rain in Meadville created a crater just above Allegheny Street, completely shutting down Park Ave. above that point until November.

September
Allegheny College hosted its first local foods dinner, featuring food from more than a half-dozen local producers and individual farmers who have never before provided food to an institution. "It's exciting to see that this event is stirring student and community interest in global problems that are associated with modern food distribution systems," Environmental Science professor Jennifer DeHart said. "We hope that this meal is a first step in establishing a program in which at least a portion of Allegheny's food can come from local providers on a regular basis."

October
Roald Hoffmann, Nobel Prize-winning Cornell University chemist, poet, playwright, author, and Polish Holocaust survivor, spoke about art and science in the annual Lord Lecture on October. 20.

November
The Allegheny College Dance Program offered two performances of "Cookies & Milk," a holiday program for families on December 14. As in years past, between the dance performances children and adults alike enjoyed listening to stories and songs served with cookies and milk in Brooks Blue Lounge

December
In the spirit of the season, students enrolled in Ceramics II and III classes created beautiful handmade bowls to be sold to raise money and awareness for the Meadville Soup Kitchen. The seven students enrolled in these classes spent roughly one hundred hours each making bowls for the project. All the proceeds were donated to the Meadville Soup Kitchen to combat hunger in the community.

January
Everyone returned from winter break and began classes among snow drifts and icicles. No real change from typical Meadville Januarys.

The newly renovated Henderson Campus Center opened, with new spaces for McKinley's, the Bookstore, The Campus, Diversity Affairs, Grounds for Change, the Post Office Student Activities, and WARC as well as new meeting spaces and a building-wide wireless network.

February
WARC FM, Allegheny's student-run radio station, kicked off a 40-hour birthday party starting at noon on Friday, February 20. The station marked both its 40th year on the air and its relocation in the newly renovated Henderson Campus Center. WARC is now located next to Shafer Auditorium and across from McKinley's Food Court.

Celebrating the power to create change through democratic processes, students hosted a full slate of activities in conjunction with the national Raise Your Voice campaign. Raise Your Voice activities on tap at Allegheny were designed to encourage civic responsibility, seeking to make a difference with a wide range of student-selected issues including, political participation, international trade, poverty, social justice, and foreign policy.

March
Allegheny's website developer Mike Richwalsky oversaw the creation of 3,300 new pages for the Allegheny website, stemming from an entire year of work on the project before it was launched.

Fifty Allegheny students traveled to the nation's capital with faculty of the political science department, chaired by Professor Robert Seddig, on March 25-26 for an inside look at a wide range of careers in politics.

For the third straight year, diplomacy know-how and determination netted Allegheny's Model NATO team first-place honors. Allegheny students represented France this year and won the prestigious Best Delegation title at the annual conference. The 19th Annual National Model North Atlantic Treaty Organization Conference was held at Howard University, Washington, D.C., February 25-28. The annual competition simulates the proceedings of NATO and provides a unique opportunity for university and college students to study its role, structure, and activities.

April
The annual conference of the Western Pennsylvania Undergraduate Psychology Conference (WPUPC) was held at Allegheny on April 24. The WPUPC has provided an opportunity for undergraduate psychology students to present their research since 1972, when six organizations, under the sponsorship of the Northwestern Pennsylvania Psychological Association (NWPPA) presented the first conference at Alliance College.

May
The Council of Independent Colleges (CIC) announced that two independent colleges and universities were selected to receive the Council's fourth annual Heuer Awards for Outstanding Achievement in Undergraduate Science Education. Allegheny and Columbia College Chicago IL were chosen out of 38 nominations for demonstrating noteworthy recent achievement in undergraduate science education.

In Allegheny's 189th year, President Richard J. Cook addressed a graduating class of 453 and their families during Commencement, held Sunday, May 9 in the Wise Center. Communication Arts chairperson, Michael Keeley, presented Benjamin Burtt, class of 1970, for the degree of Doctor of Arts, honoris causa. In the introduction to Burtt's Commencement address, Keeley described Burtt as "the physics major from Allegheny College who managed to convince millions of movie-goers that sound actually does exist in space." Although he observed that many were wearing "funny hats," Burtt said he saw a crowd of potential heroes in front of him, and he called on the Class of 2004 to put others' needs ahead of their own, to be encouraging, to take the trouble to know their neighbors and co-workers, to serve with dedication. "Be a hero in real life and then, maybe, true heroes will return to the movies," he said.

Student Life

Senior Dave Devenney accepted two awards at the annual Leadership Awards Banquet on April 21, 2004. For his efforts and involvement in the college community, he was awarded the Brian Grogan Helping Hand Award as well as the Dean's Award.

A group of freshmen stop on North Main to pose on the Allegheny sign during Orientation. A scavenger hunt was one of their activities and a picture on the welcome marker to campus was on their list of things to get.

Collegiate Leadership Conference

August 9-14, 2003

Joisanne Rodgers and Kaitlin McCormick work during one of the break away group sessions at 2003's CLC. Since both were RDs this year, attending CLC before Res Life training helped to prepare them for what was ahead.

Michelle Manni, Ellen Kauffmann, Stacy Monarko, Arwen Lavengood, Jen Foxman, and Laura Tereshko all pose for a CLC/Theta picture.

Amy Weisgerberger, Kate O'Donnell, and Lauren Croker all stop rowing long enough for a picture to be snapped of them on the canoe trip.

Mary Zoller and Arwen Lavengood opt out of canoes and instead use a paddleboat to take a break from leadership workshops.

Taking a few minutes ouf ot their busy schedules during the conference, everyone squishes together to snap a group picture.

Liz Gilliland strikes a pose as Mary Catherine Gallagher during the talent show portion of CLC.

Tony Cuneo, Annie Flick and Mary Shreve

CLC is an intensive five-day leadership and personal development experience that takes place each August.

Stacy Monarko and Matt McKinsey

Activities and discussions are based on the themes of self, community, and impact.

Tony Borres and Andrea McMillen

Topics of discussion include self-awareness and values clarification, civility, globalization issues, and impacting the Allegheny and surrounding communities.

Tony Borres, Joe DiChristina, and Tony Paravatti

Students do not need to hold a leadership position in order to apply - the conference focuses on developing student's leadership interests.

Orientation

August 24 - August 27, 2003

While it was just a banner hanging from Cochran Hall, it summed up the Orientation program's goal: welcoming the class of 2007 to Allegheny's campus.

Instead of continuing with the Orientation scavenger hunt, this group of freshmen decide to take a break and lie down on the Brooks lawn with their brand new Insta-Gator cards.

Orientation Is geared to completely immerse incoming students to the Allegheny community.

Doug McGill

Matriculation happens during freshmen's first mornings at Allegheny and is where they are formally accepted as students as well as where they pledge to adhere to the Honor Code.

President Cook speaking during Matriculation

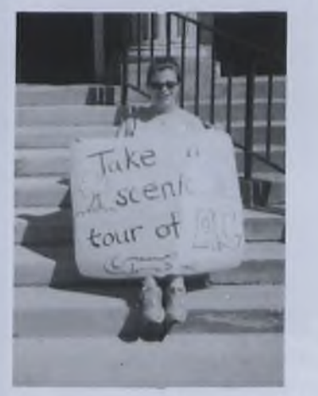
Orientation was full of activities that ranged from educational programs, ice-breakers, a scavenger hunt, an all-campus movie, and a class picnic at the Diamond.

Dave DeVenney

Upperclass students who went through training, served as Orientation Leaders to guide freshmen through different activities and act as a resource for them during their first few days on campus.

This group of freshmen and their Orientation Leaders pose for a picture on their way back from the class of 2007 picnic at Diamond Park.

Maria Vietta shows off the sign she made in Student Activities advertising that she was available to parents and students for help. Orientation Leaders stood on street corners during move-in to direct families and answer questions.



Orientation Leader Erin Brady sits on the steps of Cochran and advertises a scenic tour of Meadville for parents and freshmen.

Michelle Manni and Tom Ess help freshmen move into Brooks on Sunday August 24. Moving freshmen in was a kick off to Orientation activities and one of the more strenuous tasks for OLs.

Wingfest

September 13, 2003

While most of this group of students is content to pose, there's one photographer who decides he'd rather be taking a picture than posing for one.

Becky Watts, Jessie Gallek, and Katie Wheeler grab a spot in the shade for lunch and a place to watch the band perform.

The sign says it all, "Best Wings in the USA" from Quaker Steak and Lube. Allegheny students may disagree, but they don't turn down a free lunch.

Homecoming

October 4, 2003 Allegheny Under Construction

The banner says it all, welcome to Homecoming 2003. The theme commemorated all the new construction on Allegheny's historic campus.

The brothers of Phi Kappa Psi gather around and cheer for the crowd gathered on Brooks balcony and lawn.

Sisters of Alpha Delta Pi smush together for one of their cheers and perform for the homecoming crowds.

Each year, a selection committee chooses ten seniors who will leave a lasting impression on Allegheny's campus. It is their legacies that help to shape future classes and endeavors of other gators.

2003 Cornerstone Award Winners: Aaron Polack, Riley Neugbauer, Megan Romano, Lauren Wagner, Stacy Monarko, Andrew Bennett, Erin Brady, Dave DeVenney, Kristen Cheman, and Arthur Craig

The Phi Delta Thetas and Alpha Chi Omegas built a staricase in their each of their colors to carry on the theme of "Allegheny Under Construction."

Kappa Kappa Gamma, Delta Tau Delta, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon worked together to build their rendition of a bulldozer.

Diversity Affairs sponsored a float championing unity, signified through the rainbow arch of balloons.

Entrants to the Homecoming Parade were judged on creativity, following the theme, and overall enthusiasm.

ASG representatives

There were twenty-four floats and vehicles in the parade led by Grand Marshall, President Cook. The parade was finished out with a PennDot dump truck, further carrying the theme of "Allegheny Under Construction."

Make a Difference Day

October 18, 2003

Andrew Hazi and other brothers of Sigma Alpha Epsilon pitch in and help a Meadville community member on Make a Difference Day.

Valerie Wolenter, Julie Skivers, Sarah Bauer, Ted Smith, Dave McLaughlin, and Kaitlin McCormick gather in a nearby back yard for a break from their Make a Difference Day project.

Tersea Cashman, Jen Hrobak, Shannon Palmer, and two Meadville residents pose for a picture after completing the work that needed finished.

Drew Denton

Make a Difference Day is a nationwide event that takes place every third Saturday in October.

Jeff Wentz

Allegheny students have participated in Make a Difference Day since 1996.

Katilin McCormick, Julie Skivers, and Jeff Weimer

Make a Difference Day was created by USA Weekend magazine with one goal in mind: Put your own cares on hold for one day to care for someone else.

Leadership

Emerging Leaders Retreat & Leadership Awards Banquet

Representatives from the Diversity Affairs organizations, A5, ABC, UL, AGP, and International Club pose for a picture with awards and certificates for their leadership over the past year.

Nate Haines and Jordan Hamill demonstrate how to handle controversy with civility as part of the social change model of leadership through a role-playing skit.

Andy DeVencentis, ASG President

Leadership conferences offer students the opportunity to meet each other and form bonds based on mutual interests and goals.

Chris Stetson and Gretchen Sandy

Started in 1999, the EL retreat topics of discussion include exploring sense of self, introduction to leadership theories including the Servant Leadership and Social Change models of leadership, and skills development programs.

Dave Podboy, WARC General Manager and President Cook

Guests to the Leadership Awards Banquet are nominated by their peers and other members of their community to attend and must fill out applications to be considered for the awards given.

Kit Tuttle and Cristin Reeder pose for a picture at the Leadership Awards Banquet after each receiving awards. Kit accepted an award on behalf of the Pep Band and Cristin accepted the Commitment to Service Award.

Campus Center Renovation

Grounds for Change, which had been on the third floor of the old Campus Center and then temporarily housed in Caflisch lounge, moved into its new second floor home in January 2004 with new equipment and style.

Renovations saw the old middle staircase taken out creating a balcony that went all the way around the second floor.

The official Campus Center opening was for Grounds for Change, WARC celebrating its 40th anniversary at 90.3 fm, the Cultural Center opening, as well as other student organizations helping to christen the new space.

Main Street is now home to the Post Office, the Bookstore, the Game Room, and Grounds for Change while the third floor is now home to Student Activities, Diversity Affairs, GAP, ASG, The Campus, Cultural Center, and meetings rooms.

Below left: With the Post Office's move, students had to abandon their old mailboxes in Cochran Hall and learn new locations and combinations. Many times, new combinations were easier said than done.

During the Campus Center grand opening ceremony, confetti was released from the second floor balcony onto the first floor to mark the beginning of WARC's 40th anniversary 40 hours straight broadcast.

A hero is someone who is humble. This quality is nearly absent from today's popular leading characters. Humility is that quality of putting others above you, of serving behind the scenes. Doing good when no one is looking. -Benjamin Burtt '70

The 2004 Kaldron could not have been completed without the help of many resources on campus. The Student Activities Office provided a home, countless pictures, and most importantly, two fabulous advisors in Ellen Kauffmann and Tricha Gregor. Diversity Affairs, ACCEL, Athletics, and Public Affairs provided answers to question as well as great pictures used throughout this book. Another thank you goes out to ASG for funding this year's Kaldron. Hope all who see it enjoy it.
