My dear Mrs. Weston:

I have just received a letter from Mr. George D. Carrington, Jr. of Buffalo, N.Y., telling me that when you were a little girl you had an interesting adventure with Mr. Lincoln. As Mr. Carrington tells me the story, it was at some public meeting, where you were acting as a flower girl.

Was it in the Lincoln and Douglas Debates or the Presidential Campaign of 1860? I am wondering if you would not give me your version of the story? For many years I have collected Lincoln anecdotes, and I am particularly fond of those in which children figure. I am enclosing a stamped envelope.

Thanking you in advance for your reply, believe me,

Very sincerely yours,
