My dear Miss Tarbell

I am back at work again a little bit limp but quite well again. In New York last Monday, I tried to see you but found you were not of home when I went through before I was neither presentable or quite safe so I didn't try to see any one then. Find things going well here. It is certainly more stimulating under the present arrangement the fact that I don't yet even know how to sign a letter or who will read and correct it adds zest to my day. I don't get "my new boss to use his own language but I am immensely interested in trying to keep right on with the work under the new conditions.

I really do rather like things as I find them and refuse yet to believe in the gt this that are scaring Mrs B.
Like the man in the old hymn "one step enough for me." he can't stop the underpl drive in the best trust can be? That's all that really matters. Affectionately Allene Wilkes
