Dear Mrs. Judd:

I have read your Coolidge piece - admirable. I do not see how it could be better and I should say that the Congressional Memorial service would be enriched by including it. As to helping you [illegible] place for it on the program I haven't the remotest notion how to help. In whose hands is the memorial? There must be a committee. If you know who the Chairman is or can find out I'll gladly write him, though I have an idea that as in all the Congressional Memorials that I know anything about the speeches are made by Congressmen and they are rather jealous of the privilege. But find the Chairman and late as it is I shall write him about this piece which I am convinced is far and away better than any Congressman will offer.

Faithfully yours
