Dear Miss Tarbell,

The flowers reached me yesterday - our Beloved Abraham Lincoln's birthday - and my living room, dining room, and bed room are so dressed up that it seems as if it must be April or May. It was very lovely of you to remember me thus and I am truly appreciative.

Since your departure at three on Monday last I have mentally checked off, at fifteen-minute intervals, the features in my collection which you should have seen, and didn't. Isn't it too bad that "Hurry" has become the ruler of our time. But then we have Uncle Sam's mail system always at hand and anything you care to ask about or wish to see I can find a way to help you out.

I must tell you again how happy your visit has made all of us and we all join in asking you to come again.

With sincerest regards and fondest remembrance, I am

Your Admirer,
Myra Hawk Rudolph.
