My dear Miss Tarbell:-

The letters came, on June 27th I think. There was a letter to Sam, which I did not see, which made him feel very sad. He said me answer it, as if I had read it, and I do not think there will be another. There was a day or two of intense excitement and fatigue, followed by rest and cheerful relief. I am very thankful that it is all done now, and finished, and nothing left to live in the future. The suspense and anxiety is all gone now, and Sam has nothing to do but recover. He has doubtless a great deal still to go through with in his own mind. Please do not write me in answer to the letter I wrote you a few days ago, or mention this matter of the letters to Mr P. now that it is happily settled. I shall cable you July 5, as I said I would. I am very glad and thankful that the letters came. Sam has every thing to be thankful for.

I am sending you a little book of Pastor Stockmayer's which I had at Dust-minster, and which instructed and helped me wonderfully. I want you to see it. I have met him in Morges, where he was preaching in French, and he gives me a great uplift. Sam is going to see him in September. He is now in the U.S. preaching at Peekskill from June 27th to July 5th. I marked the book in many places, and it is more but you will excuse it. There are many profound words in it, and they came home to me, every one. So did all he said when I saw him. He is German, and has been famous all over Europe for thirty years. He was in New York last winter, and there I heard of him.

I hope you are enjoying your cottage and your drives in the mountains and are well and strong.

I am ever yours affectionately,
Harriet H. McClure.
