My dear Miss Tarbell:

The "one or two points" are perhaps a little more important than they sound. It's your comment on the Hoover Dam that worries me. If we publish it as it is, we'll get hundreds of letters from California. We'll probably have to run an article giving California's point of view and I can't imagine anything more tiresome than a long controversy on this subject. We're not a political magazine.

So I wonder if you could cut this material down to a paragraph or two, simply stating Arizona's point of view.

The rest of the article is grand and what I wanted - colorful and interesting.

I'm getting a little lukewarm, too on the prohibition article. Do you think there is anything new or important to be said? You have two or three other ideas, you wrote Miss Carroll, and let's discuss these some time soon.

Very sincerely,
