Vermontville, Mich.

Miss Tarbell:-

In The American, Item "Homeless Daughter" I read one feature with the accompaniment of a good hearty laugh, as it recalled a family experience. Mrs. Martin, now gone to her final rest - was a graduate of Oberlin College, a long later teaching experience with a wonderful success with our youngsters in their childhood years. But Never realize that children grow to men and women. Our youngest daughter after High School days, was for four years in college, graduating with high honors at Ann Arbor, and since makes success as a teacher in college experience and subsequent teaching attained or developed a self reliance and unusual executive ability entirely competttent to care for herself, and Mother with her, yet Mrs. M. exhorted counseled and attempted the same control as when Edith was but ten. And was at times brought to tears at the girls going her own way. In our case was no irritation or unpleasant after math. And was at each vacation a breezy experience. Pardon the intrusion, but your mention of such conditions revived humorous memories.

Very respectfully

H. J. Martin.
Vermontville, Michigan.

Digital Image 2009 The Ida M. Tarbell Collection, 1890-1944, Allegheny College Pelletier Library