Dear Miss Giles:

Thank you for the trouble you've taken to give me information on the local angle of the Public Health Service, I suppose we might call it that. They sent me from the Library Department of Health a copy of this excellent pamphlet of yours, "The Public Health Nurse," also a book published in 1909, "Visiting Nurses in the United States." Is there no later account of the spread of the work. What I want, of course, is the spread in Connecticut as this is a special short article.

There are many interesting phases about the work. It's really an extraordinary development for seventy-five years of life.

I'll be grateful for any information you can give.

You understand, do you not, that I am confining my story to our Easton Service which I take it is typical of what is doing in other localities where there is real interest and faith in the undertaking.

With renewed thanks,

Very sincerely yours,

P. S. I am returning your copy of The Public Health Nurse and holding that from the Library.
