August 30,1933

My dear Miss Ida:

You spoke at our first Herald Tribune Conference on World Problems. The movement has grown enormously since that time. Under separate cover I am sending you a printed report of last year's conference which was opened by Mr. Owen D. Young.

This year the discussions will be opened by Walter Lippmann in a key-note speech. It has to do with "This Crisis in History", with special emphasis on the revolution in education and the machinery for peace. The meetings will be held at the Waldorf on October 11th and 12th, and more than 1000 organizations will be represented.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid join me in asking you to speak at one of these sessions. You know how proud and happy I shall be to have you in this distinguished group adding, as you always do, your own great distinction.

With every good wish.

Your sincere friend,

Mrs. William Brown Meloney
