Letter: Albert A. Boyden to Ida M. Tarbell

Boyden, Albert A.

http://hdl.handle.net/10456/18797

This item is in the public domain.

All materials in the Allegheny College DSpace Repository are subject to college policies and Title 17 of the U.S. Code.
Dear Sillman,

you are characteristic.

Not what I had in that line.

I'm not sure I learn to be a shrewd one never - you - that.

on thing I'm going to write

what you will

may not be as certain.

in. My, how much we think

but about the Prussianism

all of us that we've got to fight.

Prussianism isUBLAMEE z-2 pq-9 nez ms-2 awecuam Plat

and
Injustice, I fear, plain injustice. Vitriol and a purpose. What bitterness—what bitterness!—what bitterness I bear inward and outward. Deceit, deceit, deceit, and the brotherhood in one, in the other. Guilt, one of the few people I know who have always fought for the right side—and I want you to know that if I were on anything in the right side, I would be to blame! There's nothing in the gears but revenge anyway. I wish they were.
The text is largely illegible due to the handwriting style. It seems to be a letter or a note, but the content is not discernible.