Dear Miss Tarbell,

I can't resist the temptation to congratulate your college, through you, on having secured you for the course in writing biography. What fortunate students! If only you were giving such a course in New York I am sure you'd have the entire membership of the Pen and Brush clamoring for entrance to the classroom, and I know I'd be in the front line.

And congratulations, too - very personal ones - on the promised Autobiography. Along with a hundred thousand others I'm looking forward to it with the keenest anticipation and I've already put my order in for a copy.

Many happy days to you, and much affection from
