

What I find in Work

January 11, 1936

Dear Miss Whiting:

Thank you for writing me so appreciatively about my little article "What I find in Work." It pleases me to be told that the staff likes it.

Now as to the point that one of your number suggests, that is, that "there is work to be done in the world even if there are not enough paying jobs to go around." It is an important point and I have tried to make it. I hope what I have written will be satisfactory to the one making the suggestion.

I am sending you a revision of Page four giving my notion of the way in which the real worker attacks his problem when he loses his job. What about it?

With renewed thanks for the kindness of your letter, believe me

Very sincerely yours
