INSURES AGAINST ACCIDENT, SICKNESS AND DEATH.

Associate Editor American Magazine

Dear Madam:

I am enclosing clipping which has a heading, "Says Suffragette is useless and revolting." Clearly using the word revolting as an adjective since it is joined to an adjective, "useless", by "and".
Again as subhead, "Suffragette is doing no service".

I see nothing to warrant using "Suffragette" at all as it does not appear in your words.

Do not these captions convey a meaning almost the antithesis of what you really said? or they not mis-leading and unfair.

Yours truly
Franklin S. Dewey
