New York City

Dear Miss Tarbell:

May we of The Freeman staff extend our congratulations on your birthday? Your career, in which you have done more than any American of our times to nurture clear thinking on socio-ethical economic problems, is an inspiration to us; it is indeed fortunate, in these days when sound intellectual leadership is so badly needed, that you are able to continue it at your life-long pace.

I need not tell you, I know, that the columns of The Freeman are open to you whenever you care to express your opinions on the inter-relation of economics and ethics in the solution of modern social problems. And I need not assure you of the welcome they would receive from our readers, who are mainly the 5,000 business, laboring and professional men and women who are graduates of the Henry George School of Social Science.

With all good wishes.

Very truly yours,

The Editors, The Freeman
