Dear Miss Tarbell,

Apparently a letter of yours, on Delineator's covering the subject of temperance, has gone unanswered. Mr. Moore has been holding it and considering your suggestion. But he has now come to the conclusion that the situation at present is so confusing that we had better not attempt to do anything with it editorially for a while at least. And it so happens that Dr. Phelps has elected to discuss the subject in one of his forthcoming regular contributions.

I am returning the clipping which you want to keep and hope very much that I shall see you soon.

With best holiday greetings,

Sincerely yours,

Eleanor Carroll
