January 19, 1909

Dear Miss Tarbell:

We had so much to talk about yesterday that I did not find room for the suggestion that if you would "lend me the loan" of a set of your books, it would help very much in the consideration of the matter.

I am on jury for the rest of the month, which fortunately is not a great while, tho possibly in spite of that, I may be able to give the question sufficient attention before my period of service closes. Are you in any hurry?

If I want to have a talk, would it be better for me to go to your place, or for you to come to mine?

Faithfully Yours,

[A signature]

Miss Ida M. Tarbell