ROSE HILL
JOHNSTOWN NEW YORK

April 28, 1939.

Miss Ida M. Tarbell,
120 East 19th Street,
New York City.

My dear Miss Tarbell:

Your picture in Book Review of the Herald Tribune Sunday, the 23rd, brought to my mind pleasant memories of many years ago of a luncheon given by Miss Gertrude Lane at her club in New York City in honor of yourself and Miss Sophie Kerr, to which I was invited.
This event occurred in the early days of my business career and I hesitated about attending the luncheon with such talented women - but found to my surprise "big women" were just like "big men" - human beings - and I enjoyed the occasion so much that the memory still lingers. -- Since that time I have always enjoyed your writings.

You and I are the same age, and I hope as you travel down life's highway you are enjoying life the same as the writer.

Wishing you continued success in the splendid work you are accomplishing, I am

Cordially yours,

(Mrs. Charles B. Knox)
