Atlanta, Georgia

September 24, 1922

Dear Miss Tarbell:

I was very glad to have your letter of September the eighth, and to know that I may have the pleasure of having you with me for a little visit when you come to Atlanta in November.

I shall see the date in the paper, but you must tell me what train to catch.

I shall be so glad to have you under my own roof.

I am glad to know that the manuscript finally reached you. Please let me know whether you
incurred any expense
in getting it from Bethel.
I forwarded it the day
before my last note to you,
August seventh.
When you return it please send it by express collected.

I have so many things to talk about that writing seems entirely too slow.

With best wishes,

Affectionately,
Clairde P. Lamar
