Dear Sirs,

I must really let you this time I have often intended to tell you how I must. I am so pleased with Miss Tarbell’s articles on women in their condition and her idea for their betterment—her—I want them to publish them in book form and let us have a chance to pass them around to our sisters in the interest of future generations. Hoping this will meet with her approval and that we will soon have a chance to obtain a cheap and handy edition that can be given away by the thousands.

I remain your interested friend,

Mary Henderson
