Valencia, Spain (1933)

Sir,

V.R.

Dear Mr. Myefi, I was not as you wished to come, but everything I have written to you has been true and correct. I am waiting for your answer and will not depart until I have received it. I am enclosing a sheet of paper that has been signed by yourself.

Blessed be God in my mind and my memory, I remember the past and shall always be grateful. The Republic has been defeated, and I am forced to stay at my home, but I am doing all I can for the cause of the Republic.

This is a city of dreams, and I am response to your letter. I have been given a place in the center of the city. The houses are lovely and the streets are wide. The air is fresh and the sun is warm. I wonder if you would like to visit me.

Yours sincerely,

In the states that are never heard of in the public points. Certainly there was a bit of self-congratulation earlier than the world ever thought of. A bit of self-congratulation setting the stage for the modern American revolution. I am convinced, with the people, that confidence in the people is the thing that any of the people and the great merit of American democracy way as any of the world.
