Dear Miss Tarbell

In despair I turn to you. You, a woman, will probably have what none of these men can lay their hands on. I am collecting illustrations, general pictorial material for Lincoln Steffens' autobiography which Harcourt are publishing in the early spring. I wonder if you wouldn't have photographs or informal snapshots of the muckrakers, including yourself of course. All Mr. Steffens' personal papers were burned in a fire at his house so I have labored to collect every...
a new. If you want me to be there acceptance you go through your papers I will come where you say. Perhaps you could suggest some who else might have done some. We should very much like some cartoons or caricatures of the muchachers. [In pen] Have you been some? I hope you can come to my next lecture.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

Ella Winter.
