My dear Miss Tuckel:

I am one day late—and the stenographers found it too long than they had expected.

I am sending the tables of each set also, since certain answers are expressed in figures or short statements and these seemed the most necessary for making extracts from them.

You will notice I have not given you much on definite workers, but one can see so little I think we are skating on thin ice in mentioning... them as a group at all.

If I have not given you all you needed for your pleasure, I could send the questionnaires themselves if you found it necessary to have the whole thing.

The typed written material I have copies of—but please have the charts returned to me.

I am beginning to be of your opinion that the more convenient the letter magazine for this article is, the better.

Sincerely yours,
