

Oct. 5, 1922

WILLIAM W. ELLSWORTH
ESPERANZA FARM
NEW HARTFORD, CONNECTICUT

My dear Miss Tarbell:

cc: No I have been in New York for a few days and your letter of Sept. 29th with enclosures, has only just reached me. I don't believe that Mr.
McFerguson has the book in his possession but it would do no harm to write him (Thomas B.
McFerguson, Asst Attorney General of the State of Kentucky) and ask, for my photograph, as I remember it was made by the clerk of the Little Pigeon Church, near Lincoln City, Ind. Reproduce the pages if you wish, - and if you care to give me any kind of a credit it will be appreciated.

Now I found out about it I can't remember, but having found out it was easy to get the work done.

I have made a point in my Lincoln lecture for many years of these pages, especially the one with the "J. Lincoln, mod." signature, showing, as you ~~say~~, that he was not an absolutely shiftless person, that he was of enough importance to be made moderator of a meeting.

I content myself with lectures — and love them. Here are circulars of a couple of ^{new ones} and "The Joy of Writing," very popular in schools. All good wishes to you in your work.

Sincerely
W. N. Ellsworth