

Dear Mr. Bryan:

Thank you for that prompt answer to my recent letter. You inclose Otto Eisenschini's review of your book and your reply. Also you inclose my own letter with the paragraph which interested you and which you want expanded.

I regret that I cannot immediately reply, that is not before the middle of the next week. I am off for the hospital for a siege with my teeth and they will not delay it for anything so much more important as we see it than the Booth Inquiry.

As soon as I am back at my desk I shall write you, and in the meantime thank you heartily for your courtesy.

Very sincerely yours,
