

Delineator

BUTTERICK BUILDING

NEW YORK

EDITORIAL OFFICES

September 18, 1933.

Dear Miss Tarbell:

I did so enjoy our lunch together. And I am hoping that the Lincoln and his three women idea has grown and flourished in your mind over the weekend. Eagerly I await a phone call from you.

We did not discuss the matter of payment, if the plan does work out satisfactorily. But I feel I must say a word about it, since it is a fact that may influence your decision. Our budget is hard pressed, and the eight hundred dollars paid for your "The Cure for Too Much" is almost our very top price for articles, now. Is this news going to spoil my dream of a Lincoln article by you - such as has never been written?

Sincerely yours,

Eleanor Carroll
Associate Editor

Miss Ida M Tarbell
120 East 19th Street
New York, New York

