

Nov. 14, 1921.

Mrs. Janet M. Blair,
947 Sheridan Avenue,
New York City.

My dear Mrs. Blair:

Your note of November 9th has found me in Washington where I am to be until the middle of January at least.

It goes to my heart, all your trouble. I wish I could put you on the track of just what you want, but I do not know of anything. I shall not be there again before April and Miss Scanlon takes care of my irregular work. I do not fit your needs at all. All I can do is just to say I will not forget you and if I hear of anything at all will write you about it. Please believe I am so sorry.

I hope Mr. Blair is getting better and that Janet is well. Look after yourself.

Yes, thank you, my family is all well, save my poor brother, who has not quite come back yet but is keeping up a brave fight out in Kansas.

Yours with real sympathy and affection,
