Dear Mr Tarbell*

Hon. Newton Bateman's "Personal Reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln", first published at Galesburg, Illinois, 1899, is not only interesting to read, but is a valuable contribution to Lincolniana on account of its wealth of original, source material.

Copies of the first edition are now quite rare, and command a price of $5. to $10. each.

In order that collectors and libraries may have this address in some form, I have had printed a second edition, limiting it to one hundred numbered and signed copies, and using the finest of papers and the printer's highest skill in its production.

This is not made in fac-simile, but is a larger and handsomer pamphlet than the original, first edition.

The price is two dollars each, post-paid, and your order for a copy will be appreciated.

Respectfully,

H E Barker
