

Lincoln Memo:

Mrs. Pothergill (see attached card) called in regard to a manuscript that she has been working on, she tells me, for twenty years, in regard to the Virginia Hanks. She thinks she has established the connection of Nancy and that it is entirely creditable. She wants a publisher, has already consulted several houses. She is canny ~~about suggesting that she~~ evidently does not want me to ask to read the manuscript before I can help her. I do not ask it. I suggest certain possible channels which I think are practical and she goes away promising to follow them up. If she has got what she thinks she has it is of course important. I understand from her that Dr. Warren has already given her a hearing, but that he did not ask to see her manuscript or for details of her research.
