My dear Dr. Jones:

How guilty I feel that you should have had to jog my memory about the Lincoln volume which I promised to autograph and send you. Let me be honest. I did not forget, but I did lose the note which had the name of the volume I had promised. I have been meaning to write you asking about it. Was it "In the Footsteps of the Lincolns" or was it the "Billy Brown" stories. If you will let me know, I promise you that the volume shall go to you on the instant, and with it many apologies for the delay.

It is good of you to speak so kindly of my Lincoln talk in Detroit. You were all too good to me. I always have a heavy heart after I have talked and you did much to lighten it, and I did so enjoy seeing your Church and Library.

With all good wishes,

sincerely yours,

Dr. Edgar Dewitt Jones
