Dear Miss Tarbell:

I am preparing for publication some chapters of great biography. I am quite desirous of securing your permission to use chapter three of Volume I of your LIFE OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN. I have been successful in securing permission from several publishers, among them those of the Life of Alice Freeman Palmer. The book will contain an introduction, containing a survey of the development of biography, twenty specimens of biography, and notes. I understand from the bureau of copyright that you hold the copyright in your name. May I have your permission to use the above chapter in my collection? If I am mistaken about your holding the copyright, is it too much to ask you to right a word for me to your publishers?

I hope you will pardon this liberty I take in asking this favor.

Respectfully yours,

James M. Milenburgh.

P. S. MY official address is the University of Nebraska where I am a member of the English department, but I am "summering" at Central Park, Holland, Michigan.
