Dear Mr. Reynolds:

I am enclosing the letter which I sent to Mr. Weeks which may give you pointers in sending out the article. It has no value as a Lincoln Birthday article, but something for the Seventy Fifth Anniversary of the assassination. If you would care to have me write to Burton let me know when you submit the article and I will do so, that is if you think it wise.

There is something in what The Atlantic says, and a good deal more now that the Sandburg is out. There is going to be a Lincoln revulsion, but it will come back.

Sorry you are having so much bother with these things. I am thinking over the woman article and as soon as I have it better to my liking I will return it to you.

Very sincerely
