Dear Madam.

In a recent edition of The Boston Independent
was printed an article in regard to the
so called Bigby letter.
Written to Mrs Lydia Bigby, by A Lincoln expressing sympathy to her upon the loss of her son.
The proposition mentioned that the whereabouts of the original letter
was unknown and that if it should be unearthed in some neglected attic the holder of it might

realize quite a price for Garber. I happen to know where it is possessed by a
grand child of Mrs Pitby, and am informed that you are an authority upon
all such things of Lincoln time.

If it would not put you out too much
I would appreciate
any reply from you.

same.

Jimmi Peppy.
