July 20, 1922.

My dear Miss Tarbell:-

I am delighted to own the Lincoln volumes, and to have their author's signature on the front page, It seems a very large reward for the little that I did, which was more than repaid by the pleasure of meeting you.

We have a ~~photographer~~ photographer, Wm. E. Woodside, who has done some work for me. ~~only~~ The ~~old~~ similar bit however was the photographing of a decree of the probate court. This was entirely legible, which is all that is necessary, I suppose. I thought I had a copy that I could send but they are all gone. I can see him for you or you can write direct.

Mrs. Lincoln tells me that her nephew's attempts to photograph the Cushing Mss. entry were complete failures; but that she is willing to have a professional come to the house and take it, especially she would trust Mr. Woodside. Anything that I can do in this matter, I should be only to pleased to, as well as taking Mr. Woodside to the town clerk's office.

I am going away tomorrow to be gone until the first of August, so I cannot do anything until then. Won't you write me out a list of the matters you would like attended to, so that I shall miss none? I will have the silver photographed, when the rest is done. Do you want the Two Hundredth Anniversary volume? Please don't hesitate to mention everything.

The chaperone is well, and just at this moment has invaded the study, and seems to think she would like to use the typewriter!

Cordially and gratefully yours,
