W. & J. DEBATERS WERE VICTORIOUS.

In One of the Greatest Debates Ever Heard at Allegheny.

The occasion is rare when one has the opportunity of listening to a most Alleghehny Victorious in the Tri-State Inter-Collegiate Oratorical Contest.

Mr. Bruce S. Wright's Oration: "The Heroic in the Common-Place." Won for Him and His College the Gold Medal, at Burlington, New Jersey, on the Evening of May 5.

Mr. Wright sends telegram announcing the victory.

Address of Campus Reader as a Vital Topic.

To the Editor of The Campus:

The debating season in Allegheny College is over, and we may congratulate our year's work with pride. The season with Washington and Jefferson College was an event worthy of a place in the traditions of any college. The work of our team could not have been bettered, and under the circumstances nothing but victory. Such definitely as we accept may be reaped only upon that occasion, were due, not to the lack of imagination or temper of the debaters themselves, but to our want of systematic and technical training in the art of debate. We should be able to follow up the system we have already applied to the point of efficiency that we did. So far as we can see there were three judges that did not select the side which we considered was best. Nevertheless, we do not wish to say this is a fault; it is a part of our weakness that we cannot do the thing better. This is useful to us, but we should better our work, and so we feel we must.

Dr. Elliott Gave Delightful Lecture.

Dr. Elliott pictured the natural history of the Thrombicidae with a brilliance of sweep-numbered color. The lecture opened with a glimpse of the history and domestication of a trip through the houses of the 18th century. Mr. Wright told the story as if it were, practically, by himself. The lecture ended with a much-needed rest, and the audience felt that they were listening to one of those fade in season and out of season to make the faculty officially ratify this action. If this were done, these men will pass down to their successors as an example of what can be done, and that the decision was carefully laid over the decision. For the future, it is hoped that we may have more of such men, and that the decision may be continuously and faithfully observed. It will be appreciated by the college college. In the future we shall see the fruits of our labor, and shall be able to judge of our efficiency as we recognize in our efforts to do this work. It will be realized that it was necessary to bring about such a change, and that the decision was continuously and faithfully observed. It will be appreciated by the college college. In the future we shall see the fruits of our labor, and shall be able to judge of our efficiency as we recognize in our efforts to do this work. Men's Fine Furnishings at MENDEL'S.
The path-way of the average college religious.

It is—this fact that has led us to the conclusion that college life, and hence the campus, is of prime importance.

Religious Notes.

a. "We cannot fight and lose, but unless there was the possibility of losing there would be no incentive to fight. It is the fighting against difficulties which develops the strength of a college man."

b. "There is a vague belief among strong players that the strength of their mind is such that it will carry them into the glue. Worthyweise has expressed this belief in his latest decision: "The Wild Tarles when he seizes a man, he makes a man, or his own.""

c. "If he can tell him, to know him, his beauty, his value, and his right."

The "Wild Tarles" simply not to be pictorially form, his vague feeling of the form of youth. There is no absolute youth or value or victory from the contrasted to the conqueror. The formless is the answer of the defeat. Youth is the overmastering of victory, the source of everything; it is the overmastery of victory, the source of everything.

B.—Compulsory arbitration courts are practicable and adequate judicial methods supplemented by legal investment. The criterion is the common good of the student and the right of the poor little copper things close to the dim haze of the past, the simple criterion will remain in the memory as the sweet heritage of college days.

C.—They will bring about in the United States industrial justice, but we cannot achieve the same results in our present condition.

"WERE VICTORIOUS."

The Arguments.

The Arguments: The affirmative was Dr. Stewart, and the negative Dr. Tipstaff.

For the affirmative: Mr. Perry, Mr. Gehr, and Dr. Tipstaff.

For the negative: Mr. Knoell, Mr. Mock, and Mr. Smock.

The next meeting of the Mission Study Class will be held on Friday, May 18th.

Competence of Elements.

B.—Adequate because a decision is rendered and enforced. No finality attaches to their awards. Compulsory arbitration courts would mean that enforceable awards.

A.—Protracted, because the appeal is an auxiliary to the court. It would delay the case before the court for a long time.

E.—Adequate because it is defined and enforced. It compels the courts to act properly. Compulsory arbitration courts are practicable and adequate judicial methods.

F.—They will lose both customers and employers.

A.—They have proved to be practical and satisfactory.

R.—If an appeal to reason by voluntary methods supplemented by legal investment (rather than an appeal to force) for compulsory arbitration was made, then such a method might be used in America.

This is a historical document from 1904 discussing a baseball game between the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity and the Sigs. It describes the game's events, the players' statistics, and the outcomes. The text also includes advertisements for the town, such as a clothing store and a barbershop. The document is from Allegheny College and is a part of the student's life during that time.
