

REV. H. E. WING

West Redding St. Mail 28 Feb

Dear Miss Turnbull

About that Lincoln
story, sent in the mail:

I took a lad to Lincoln, who had been sentenced to prison, for "giving aid and comfort" to the enemy, to get the President to "parole" him. The lad's mother went with us. She was one of the "77" - in fact, a niece of Mr. Mason, who represented the Confederacy in Europe.

I never saw Lincoln so embarrassured, as at his appearance, and the stupid defects both in a very awkward character.

This is ~~perhaps~~ probably the reason Miss Andrews rejected it, as it does not describe him as the person whom she believed to parrot.

Now, do you want it? If so, would you like to illustrate it?

We have just got in to our little bird house, here, and there is a few days work, to get settled: so I would prefer to postpone the task of reprinting it till later; but, if it would be of any advantage to us, to have it soon, I will put other work aside.

We are pleased to be back in our own home. Perhaps we may grate you again, here, a little later.

Sincerely yours,

H. E. Wing
