

A boys' ideas -

Henry E. King says in one of his personal recollections that he was rather disappointed in his father when he was a "little slaver" because he did not - once in a while get drunk & "cut up caper" - "a company of really well-respected men on ^{occasional} a drunken frolic" not surprising.