My dear Miss Tarbell -

Mrs. Bingham
had written me that you were returning to her the manuscript which she had put into your hand - and now I have it again.
The whole thing was really a letter to you, but I happen not to have any copy of it.

I thank you for your cordial letter. I am no more a researcher than I am a genealogist and I don't know as I want to be the ancestor of anybody - but perhaps I shall pluck up courage to ask Mr. Lincoln a few questions.

If anything comes of it I will certainly let you know. I feel as you do that the matter ought to be cleared up if it may be.

Gratefully yours
Constance P. Wilder
