My dear Miss Tarbell:-

Your letter of September the twenty fifth is at hand.
When father explained to me what he wished to go to Hartford, he made no mention of any correspondence, which should be included, in fact I was am aware of such correspondence.

The summer after father's death, I found my hands very full;
It was necessary to go through a great many papers and pack up a great deal. He had many letters which I have packed away and which are in storage at the present time that I have never been through, thinking that I could delay until I had a greater amount of leisure at my command. I have never come upon the letters that you mention, and they may be among those I have made as yet no disposition of.
It may also be that he had made disposition of them, as he had done of two or three other things that he had mentioned.

I packed up and put into storage all the books and papers not disposed of at that time and they have remained there ever since, as I have had no suitable opportunity to undertake a matter requiring so much time.

I am sorry I can not give you
