Mr. Henry E. Wing,
West Redding, Conn.

Dear Mr. Wing:

Please believe that I have not forgotten you and Mrs. Wing or abandoned the idea of working up your reminiscences. The contracts I had on hand when we first talked of the matter have turned out to be more trying and time-taking than I appreciated. My publishers are insisting upon my finishing up at once a book which I expected not to bring out until next spring. This has made it imperative that I put aside all work until that book is done. I hope you will believe that it is not from lack of interest that the delay is so long, though I think I warned you at the start that a long delay might be necessary.

I have not been able to be in the country much this spring, but after the first of July shall try to take my work there for some little time; and when I do that I am going to drive over and see you and Mrs. Wing. I hope both of you are well.

Sincerely yours,
