Miss Ida Tarbell,
120 E. 19th St.,
New York, N. Y.

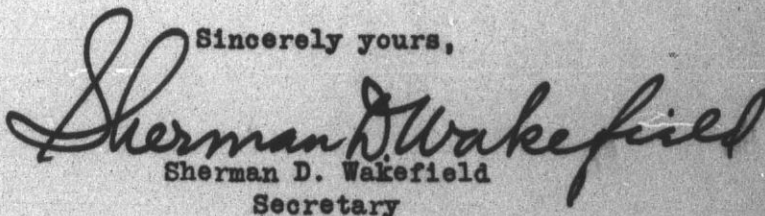

Dear Miss Tarbell:

You are cordially invited to attend the annual Lincoln's Birthday luncheon of the Lincoln Fellowship Society of New York, to be held on February 12th in the Blue Room of the Hotel Lincoln, at 1 P.M. The charge will be only $1.25.

This will be an affair which you cannot afford to miss. Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott, grandson of Owen Lovejoy, the abolitionist contemporary of Lincoln in Illinois, has agreed to address us. I am sure you will not want to pass up the opportunity of hearing his inspiring talk on this occasion. Judge William Harman Black, of the New York State Supreme Court, has also kindly consented to speak for us. Dr. John H. Finley, of the New York Times, has signified his intention to be present and to speak. Negotiations are under way for further speakers, and a fine occasion can be assured.

The luncheon is not limited to members of the Society. Please bring members of your family and any friends who are interested in Lincoln, or may become interested in him. Please send in your reservations at once, so that the Blue Room of the Hotel will be held for us.

Sincerely yours,

Sherman D. Wakefield
Secretary
