Dear Mr. Wahlstrom:

Some time ago you wrote me a letter which interested me very much, but which has not been answered before this because I have been so exceedingly busy. In that letter you told me that you were making a special study of the Lincoln-Douglas debates, and asked if I had written anything further than is found in my published books. No, I have not. The article in McClures to which you refer was rewritten from my Life of Lincoln - the same material was used.

I am glad you are making this study. I quite agree with you that the Debates made Lincoln a National figure. It is a fine study and if at any point you think I can be of any use to you I shall be very glad indeed to at least try.

Apologizing again for the delay in replying to your letter, believe me

Very sincerely yours

P.S. When your work is published I shall appreciate your letting me know.
