

Howell

Sept. 18, 1929

Talked with Mr. Howell about the Lincoln estate. He will write to the Riggs Bank to see if it is possible to get the Lincoln accounts. He thinks that it is probable that some one of Mr. Lincoln's friends invested his savings for him. Asked me who might have done it. I tell him I think Dodge here in New York might possibly have done it. It is possible that the Jay Cooke people might have done something, but I didn't speak of that. The accounts might reveal this.

Howell called me up this morning, in reference to the September Bulletin of the Lincoln Association.
